Leaders In Co-operation Heard At Vermilion

Co-operation in Alberta as it finally developed into one of the most gigantic business propositions today on the North American continent, and how that project distributes among the purchasing nations of the world the millions of bushels of wheat garnered from the four corners of the Canadian west was the salient feature of the program of the Institute of Co-operation held here last week.

Just how the farmers of Canada disposed of their wheat through the wheat pool was the subject matter of the address given by George McGivern, general sales manager of the Canadian wheat pool. It was a most informative talk, showing how grain was bought and sold in the open markets of the world. Livestock and dairy had their innings at the next sions as well.

By the close of the sessions every possible phase of co-operation had been dealt with by the ablest co-operative men on the continent.

Premier Speaks at Banquet

While co-operation is only in its infancy in the province of Alberta yet, it is entering into every phase of its industrial and social life and becoming a great factor in the moulding here of a happier, more contented and prosperous people, was a declaration made by Premier Brownlee at the banquet in the dining hall of the dormitory of the school of agriculture here on Thursday evening to mark the close of the meeting of the Alberta institute of co-operation, Vermilion section.

There were about three hundred guests and visitors present at the function. Seated at the head table and flanking on either side of the chairman of the evening, J. R. Love, M.L.A., secretary of the Alberta dairy pool, were the guests of honor, Premier Brownlee and Mrs. A. W. Wray, president of the U.F.W.A., and Mayor and Mrs. Pallow, Pte. E. G. Nourse of Washington, W. J. Blackman, the pool representative in the Argentine, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Harper, Chicago, Prof. and Mrs. Horner, St. Paul. Miss B was a brilliant occasion

The premier was convinced that in no country, with the possible exception of Denmark, had the idea of co-operation been developed to the extent it was in the province of Alberta. He recognized it as the one sound fundamental upon which agricultural progress depends, but he warned that the more co-operation the more opposition to it was built by those whose minds were not trained along agricultural lines.

It was a pleasing force not only in the agricultural life of the province, but every other industry we had left the efforts of it

Co-operation after all, he said was only a great brotherhood, and it was upon an enlargement of this theme that the premier spoke for over an hour to the large gathering that heard him.

Agency for Peace

Mrs. Warr spoke on co-operation as an agency towards bringing peace between nations. She claimed that over half the farmers in the three western provinces belonged to the pool and that its turnover in 1928 was nearly three hundred and twenty four billion dollars, as compared with two hundred and seventy six and five hundred and twenty nine billions for the C.N.R. and C.P.R. respectively.

The Canadian wheat pool, she said was the only business in the world today that handled one billion dollars every working day of the year. In operation, Mrs. Warr maintained was the greatest force in social welfare in the country today.

W. J. Jackman, in speaking of the conditions under which wheat was grown and sold in the Argentine, said that as long as the Argentine farmer is forced to dump his wheat into the market as he does today you will not get the full rewards at your efforts as do producers here.

Men Leave for Barrier Camp; 40 from Here

Forty men from Vermilion left on the special train at 6 p. m. Monday for Barnes training camp, these forming the 1st division of C Squadron of the A. M. R. under command of Lieut. W. B. Casey. Each man has to equip his own horse and these were also taken in two stock cars on the same train. The men will train for ten days at Barnes Camp, Calgary.

BUSINESS MEN and FARMERS OF THE DISTRICT ON TOUR

About twenty of the town's leading business men and farmers of the district left on a three-day tour of this section of Alberta by motor car this (Thursday) morning. The route mapped out will be from here to Edmonton, taking in all places of interest on the way, and from Edmonton to Wainwright, and from there home. It is proposed that they visit several large dairy and stock farms, the Olive institution, and the Wainwright oil fields, as well as several other interesting points en route.

CONDITIONS QUEER BIG DEAL BETWEEN BLOCK NEARLY SOLD

The poor crop outlook and conditions in general of the district, had a decidedly effect on a large business deal being put through early this week. Large business interests from Toronto, Alberta, had practically decided to purchase the Hynyk block on Main street south, as well as the billiard equipment in connection. Their intentions were to extend the present building now occupied by the H. H. Lockhart drug store out to the lane and add two bowling alleys to the recreation equipment. However, the poor crop outlook decided the men in question against locating here and on Wednesday they went to Lloydminster to look over conditions and open lines there. It is understood that the proposed deal with Mr. Hynyk was a cash proposition

Spare the Wild Flowers

Possibly nothing is more truly a part of life than the cradle for the grave of flowers. See the infant down amongst wild flowers and immediately he wants to eat them all. Then the wee toddler arrives with something for Mom! The chubby little fist will only contain a hasty crushed dandelion, but in his eyes it is very precious.

We all remember the bouquet of wilting flowers brought after the circus. No one had done any housework so our teacher's desk looked like a condensed flower show. The dear lady must her grave be covered with violets? I tried to look very serious and profound as she told me but deep down Patty puffed in ten minutes late with a bouquet of seven enemy-as sunflowers for teacher. Then she had to laugh, and we roared. She stood the sunflowers in the corner where she had to stay several Patty and grew up to be a wonderful nurse which is woefully needed. Yes, a careful person of flowers is the only gal and the sight of the chocolates bunch the other fellow brought. As I grew on all through life, in times of joy, and times of grief, flowers will bring messages of goodwill and hope into our lives.

And now old and young alike welcome the first flowers of Spring, and rejoice in their ever-changing glories as they wend their way over the hills until flowers in all their multi-coloured varieties turn the long bleak garden into a thing of beauty and the unattractive bulb produces blooms of exquisite loveliness.

In isolated parts of Canada's great national parks, and in remote parts of this great Dominion be not unpeopled by man, wild flowers are so beautiful a perfect symphony in each variety, one color is filled with rapture and aim to revel in at the knowledge that so much beauty could be found in one place. It is difficult to realize that there was a time when beautiful flowers grew in profusion all over the park. The thought-less and excessive gathering of flowers has completely removed many of the most beautiful examples from the realm to remote places where weeds now predominate.

The threatened extinction of the most attractive of our park wild flowers has become a matter of grave concern to all lovers of nature. The distinction between a flower and a weed is in a measure only a question of scarcity or abundance, their desirability depends as a rule on their rarity. The man who could not appreciate the beauty of the dandelion or the wild thistle, that they would be gathered in profusion to the avalanche lily, the columbine and the lady's slipper would become immediately popular with the park authorities. Unfortunately the gathering of a bouquet of these wonders would create about the same amount of hilarity as the amateur duck hunter proudly displaying his bag of mud hens.

According to the park laws, the man who chops down a set of ornamental trees merely to bear them trash and the man who fills his car with wild flowers merely to throw them out withered and useless at the end of the day are both equally guilty and both are liable to a heavy fine. While nearly nine out of every hundred tourists would view with satisfaction the arrest and subsequent punishment of the tree chopper, only one out of the same hundred would not consider the flower vendor a victim of oppression were the same treatment meted out to him as to the tree chopper. The reason is that flower picking has become a universal habit, which holds on the part of a minority of individuals becomes a public nuisance depriving others of the enjoyment of the flowers which he only appreciates in the getting. A striking contrast is the love of flowers who sparingly and carefully preserves his appearance for reference or visits the growing flower many times to study its development.

If the tourist would only realize that the unpicked flower will retain its beauty for days and add greatly to the pleasure of many future tourists while the picked flowers only lasts a half-hour or so when it becomes a nasty wreck and is thrown away in disgust to bring no pleasant memories to anyone.

The tourist traffic has become a great asset to Canada. It is a financial asset of hundreds of millions of dollars annually. But it is more than that it brings ten of thousands of people from other countries who come to know and love Canada. Their understanding of peoples means better understanding, goodwill, and world peace. But tourists will not flock to barren, weedy wastes, and unattractive countrysides. They come to view and enjoy the beauty that is Canada. The grandeur of its scenery, of its lakes and rivers forest and mountains, and its unspoiled natural beauty.

Every flower uprooted and soon thrown away, every blossom thoughtlessly picked instead of being left to mature and re-seed itself for next year is a serious depreciation of that great national asset, and an ultimate enormous loss to Canada.

Think it over the next time you are tempted to pick an armful of lovely wild flowers turning some secluded spot along the highway or in a national park into a place of ugliness and unattractiveness instantly.

Dust Taken Long Journey

Australians Soil Travelled 1,000 Miles Through Air To New Zealand

One of the most unusual dust journeys on record was that made by many tons of Australian soil which travelled more than 2,000 miles through the air to New Zealand, according to recent reports. The greater part of the journey was over water. In many parts of New Zealand during the first fogs, when the dust was brought down by rain, the mixture was referred to as mud and out of it, as well as sweaters of players during a football match, and so discolored them that it was difficult to pick out the particular shade of different teams. Although not the first dust storm to travel from Australia to New Zealand, the deposit was remarkable both for quantity and the area over which it was recorded.

HEALTH REGAINED

Mother and Daughters Restored Through the Use Of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

Contrary to what my friends once thought, I am not a chronic invalid," says Mrs. Norman White, New Canada, N.S. and I give the credit to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I had been a sufferer from nervous headaches, dizziness and run-down; my heart would palpitate violently at the slightest exertion and I was so weak that I could not do my housework. I was under the doctor's care, but it did not benefit me. A second doctor was called in, but he, too, failed to help me. I was told I was almost bloodless, and I became so weak I could scarcely walk across the room. My friends did not believe I could live. Then I got Pink Pills, and within a neighbor strongly urged me to try them. Without faith in them, but like grasping at a straw, but six boxes of this medicine were got for me and I began taking them. When I had taken them I was able to sit up. Another box and I was able to walk. Then I was able to go about, my health steadily improving. I continued to take the pills until I felt my health fully restored. In another year I had entirely regained health, strength and activity. You can see therefore that it is impossible for me to praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills highly enough. I hope every weak person who may read this will benefit by my experience."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Alberta Town Planning Scheme

Most Progressive Plan To Be Found On the Continent Of North America

The most progressive town planning scheme to be found on the entire continent of North America was that recently established by the province of Alberta, H. L. Seymour, C.E., told the members of the Town Planning Institute of Canada at a meeting in Winnipeg.

The laying out of rural parks, picnic grounds, tourist camps and school grounds, of fair grounds and hospital grounds, was all provided for; advice to cities, towns and villages on their planning problems was available; and the services of the board were open to farmers in helping them to lay out homesteads, grouping buildings, and securing water. It was a service extending all over the province, Mr. Seymour said.

All this had been made possible by the support of the people of the province. The inspiration had come from the premier, who, on his visit to England in 1927, saw the beneficial effects of town planning and it being carried out in the Old Country

Wheat Pool Development

Saskatchewan Pool Estimates 112,000,000 Bushels Of Grain Will Be Handled This Season

Combined handlings of wheat and coarse grains by the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool during the 1928-29 crop year will amount to approximately 175,000,000 bushels, according to an estimate presented to delegates in attendance at the semi-annual meeting of the organization at Regina.

A tabulated statement showing the handlings by the pool of various kinds of grains during past years, together with an estimate of the total handling for 1928-29, indicated that this season will far surpass former dealings.

A thorough review of the development of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool elevator system, however, was the most interesting feature of the day. Delegates were presented with a financial statement, showing the capital position of the organization, as to its ability to finance further extensions of the country elevator system.

WINDOLITE
The Improved Glass Substitute
MADE IN ENGLAND

COMES WITH A MESSAGE OF HEALTH

THE sun is the all-powerful life producer, Nature's universal disinfectant and tonic. WINDOLITE is the sun's most important ally.

Medical research has definitely proved that from the point of view of Health and Hygiene, the most valuable among the sun's rays are the Ultra-Violet rays, which possess the greatest power for the prevention and cure of disease and debility.

Science has further established that ordinary window glass does not admit the passage of Ultra-Violet rays, so that by using glass we are artificially excluding these vital health-giving rays. Therefore, the invention of WINDOLITE has completely enlisted the long-felt want. Exhaustive experiments have conclusively proved that it is a most effective substitute for glass, that it freely admits the Ultra-Violet rays, and that its use has a most beneficial effect on the growth and development of plants and chickens and on the well-being of cattle, stabled for the first time to have healthy light instead of darkness in their sheds.

Indeed, the discovery of WINDOLITE has during the last few years completely revolutionized gardening, given a new stimulus to poultry breeding, increasing the egg-laying capacity and fertility of chickens, has greatly improved the health of cattle and is now being used in domestic and household requirements.

WINDOLITE stands for 100 per cent. sunlight. It makes light but strong windows for cattle sheds, dairy stables, poultry houses, wooden and all out buildings. It is economical, unbreakable, flexible and is easy to cut and fit. It is now being successfully used for nurseries, verandahs, schools, factories, hospitals, sanitariums, hot beds, plant coverings and greenhouses. It keeps out rain—will not crack or chip—cuts with an ordinary pair of scissors and is easy to apply. WINDOLITE is made in rolls any length but in one width of 36 inches only. A square yard of WINDOLITE weighs about 14 ozs., while a square yard of glass of the ordinary thickness weighs almost 120 to 140 ozs. The improved WINDOLITE requires no varnish. WINDOLITE is made in England.

Price $2.50 Per Square Yard, f.o.b. Toronto.

EQUAL TERMS IN SETTLEMENT OF RESOURCES DEAL

Ottawa. — The Dominion government is now prepared to accord to Alberta and Saskatchewan, in settlement of the natural resources question, "treatment similar to that granted to Manitoba with respect to the continuance of Dominion subsidies."

It was stated by the prime minister that the Dominion government, having in the past year concluded agreements with the provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan, and the representations of the governments of these provinces with respect to the continuance of the payment of subsidies in accordance with the terms of existing legislation, is now prepared to accord to Alberta and Saskatchewan, in settlement of the resources question, treatment similar to that granted to Manitoba with respect to the continuance of Dominion subsidies.

The report recommends that Manitoba shall be granted an annuity of $384,312 in cash as the balance due for past arrears covering the period during which the resources were being alienated. It also recommends that from now on until the population of Manitoba reaches 800,000, the province shall receive annually the sum of $562,500. When the population reaches 800,000 the report proposes that this sum be decreased by one per cent. per annum. Finally, when the population increases to 1,200,000, the annuity will be reduced to a figure to $1,125,000, and remain unchanged thereafter.

Subsidy must be paid from the treasury and the country generally must provide the cash. It has been demonstrated that the trade of the eastern provinces of Canada considers themselves very important parties to any settlement that is to be made by the natural resources question. The treatment must be fair to both east and west.

The function of the commission was to ascertain what financial readjustment should be made for the purpose of placing Manitoba in a position of equality with the other provinces of Confederation in respect to the administration and control of its natural resources. The report is the commission's answer to this question.

To Find Solution Of Naval Problem

Premier MacDonald Is Very Hopeful Of Ultimate Outcome

London, England — Premier Ramsay MacDonald made known he hoped before many days it would be possible to make definite announcement of how naval discussions and negotiations were to be conducted, where a conference would be held, and the precise objects of that conference.

He was speaking at a Labor reception held at the Friendly Meeting House, in Euston Road. At the same time he disclosed that he had had a long conversation with General Charles G. Dawes, new United States ambassador to Great Britain, and had seen Hugh R. Gibson, United States ambassador to Belgium, who arrived in London to assist General Dawes in finding a solution to what has been termed the out-standing issue between the two Englishspeaking peoples.

Premier MacDonald, while very brief, was extremely hopeful. After he referred to the great political victory Labor had won and the general position of his government, remarking that events would be unique miracles and no magic, but a sincere determination and courage to face public questions, he plunged immediately into his revelation.

"We have allowed no grass to grow under our feet," he said in effect "We have started conversations with the United States.

"I am not a prophet, and am not going to be a prophet, as one able to prophesy. I am convinced of this, that the obstacles that have been in the way of our understanding have been removed, and that if we can get the right spirit created, if I may ring the changes on one English word, by a lack of misunderstanding of each other. The great thing which is wanted in the world today is capacity of different peoples, different races and different nations, to put themselves in each other's shoes. That will be one of the things we shall try to do in the conduct of these negotiations."

Crop Conditions Good

But Not Up To Last Year Says C.N.R. Official

Montreal. Crop conditions throughout Western Canada, with the exception of excellent in certain districts, are not generally as promising as at this time last year, stated Dr. W. J. Black, chief of colonization and agriculture of the Canadian National Railways, who has returned from an inspection trip to the west. Notwithstanding this, however, conditions generally are more prosperous than at any previous time in Western Canada Dr. Black.

There is a tremendous area under cultivation this year throughout the entire Peace River country and land settlement has been going forward there at a most gratifying rate. Settlers have even gone in large numbers as far northwest as the Fort St. John district. They appear generally to be a fine lot of people.

In his brief opening address, Mr. Stewart pointed out the importance of this step as a preliminary to reforestation plans

Plot in South Africa

Durban, Natal, South Africa. The most destructive hailstorm in this city's history occurred here causing intense damage which some estimate at 500,000 pounds sterling, about $2,500,000. A few minutes after the hail started, it lay eight inches deep on the streets, some of the stones being four inches in diameter.

Damage By Storm Cannot Be Computed

Cost Of Semi-Tornado In Montreal District Will Run Into Millions

Montreal.—The full story of the electrical storm and semi-tornado which swept down from the north, spreading death and destruction in its path from the Laurentians to the eastern township, remains to be written. The death toll stood at seven but news from the Laurentian district north of Montreal was only fragmentary owing to continued disorganization of communication lines.

Total damage caused by the storm will never be completely computed, but it is estimated it probably runs well into the millions, $1,000,000 worth of damage alone having resulted when lightning set fire to the Sacred Heart convent at Sault au Recollet, near here, and completely destroyed that widely known educational institution.

MAY RESUME TRADE RELATIONS WITH MOSCOW

London, England. One of the first acts of the new Labor government has been to rubbe the announcement to all the representatives abroad of the British Empire that Great Britain intends to resume diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia in the near future.

Political observers believe the Labor government will probably ask sufficient support from Conservative and Liberal members of Parliament to enable it to resume full diplomatic relations with Moscow

It has long been known the Labor party was desirous of resuming diplomatic and trade relations with Russia, broken off by the raid on Arcos House, London headquarters of the Russian commercial delegation made by the late Conservative government in May, 1927

Although His Majesty's government is not technically dependent on approval of its new Russian policy by the Liberals, it is generally understood that parties of the British Empire is evidently desired in London Well-informed persons think the resumption of relations with Russia will be proposed in the King's Speech from the throne on June 7, when announce the program of the government

It is thought the government will count on support from both opposition parties, since the leader of the Liberal party recently criticized the refusal of the Conservative party government to resume relations with Russia a few months ago, caused his death. Trained in the Russian peace methods, Philpott, M.P. for Halton, was one of the foremost Red Leaders in the Great War

Famous Movie Dog Dead

Hollywood, Calif Rin-Tin-Tin, famous motion picture dog actor, died here today of a throat infection resulted from distemper. He asked the dog's owner, Lee Duncan, that his body be cremated. Duncan was by a number of friends when the dog died.

Duncan refused to accept the offer of $100,000 for the dog's body, which could be made into a number of trophies, declaring that he would not sell it.

He called Rin-Tin-Tin's body to be cremated and the ashes placed in a golden urn. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at the Hollywood Hills Cemetery, where the dog will be buried.

Rin-Tin-Tin was found in a bombed out kennel in France by Duncan, who was then a sergeant in the American army. He brought the dog to the United States and trained it for motion pictures. Rin-Tin-Tin starred in many films, including "Where the North Begins," "Clash of the Wolves" and "The Lighthouse by the Sea."

GRAIN DRYING DETAILS GIVEN TO COMMISSION

Winnipeg The suggestion that two standards for grain grading be established one for grain destined for the eastern seaboard and the other for westbound cargoes, was put before the approbation of James D Fraser chief of the grain inspection department, when counsel for the Saskatchewan Royal Grain Commission, acted as spokesman of the project during the commission's sitting here

I don't see how two grading can be made as the grades are fixed by the inspector chief for the western division "Once the standard is set by the board it must be maintained regardless of its destination."

Technical knowledge of grain drying was given the commission by Professor F. Tiedke, professor of agricultural chemistry at the University of Manitoba who was a member of the Canadian commission of inquiry into grain drying Declaring that if grain can be dried from 30 per cent moisture to 15 per cent moisture in 24 hours, the operations reached the limit of practicability, Professor Tiedke said that grain may be a commercial possibility if

Edmonton Fair Opens July 15

While agricultural and live stock exhibits receive the first attention of the Edmonton Exhibition Association and these will be fully up to standard at the big Fair which opens in Edmonton on July 15th, it is the attractions features, however, which are necessary to draw the crowds, and these will be the best ever seen at any Western Canada Fair. Horse races, vaudeville acts fresh from New York and Eastern triumphs, the ever-popular Johnny J. Jones Midway Shows, and all the other departments of a well-rounded Exhibition will be presented to patrons.

A special train to art lovers will be the exhibit from the Royal Canadian Academy of Arts, in the Manufacturers' Building. New Provincial and Federal Government exhibits, and a baby clinic, will be included. A Horse Shoe Pitching Tournament will be popular with devotees of the game.

Sixteen Years Ago Today

JULY 2nd, 1913.

The provincial government has started on its program of extensions to the rural telephone lines in this district. It includes a line to the Beaver Valley with branch line to Lavoy, also a line connecting Vermilion with Wainwright.

D. L. Kennedy, N.W. 30-3-17 has a Gurney Gold of 6-cured Mcnamy bar by 16 inches, the manuscript is inches in length. A field of 42 acres of Red Fife wheat is in the shot blade and stands 46 inches high, there is no choice in the field.

Mrs. S. R. P. Cooper, Blanche, Ruby and baby Dorothy left Sunday for a couple of month's visit in southern Manitoba.

It is learned that the provincial government is rushing in all its construction gangs engaged in public works throughout the province. The government having failed to float its recent loan, finds that for lack of funds it cannot go on with those works. It is likely this will mean further telephone work in this field is curtailed.

Kenneth McKay was severely scalded about the arms July 1, during a picnic party at Gap Lake. The little fellow tripped and fell, his arms going into a bottle of boiling watery left standing on the ground. He died Friday night.

Arthur McAdam, M.P. for Portage la Prairie, Manitoba, has been appointed Solicitor-General for Canada. This gives Western Canada four cabinet representatives.

BIG RUSH ON DRIVERS' LICENSES; EXTRA TIME IS BEING ALLOWED

A rush for automobile drivers' licenses continues, and Inspector Secretary Tees hridge has a full staff busy issuing the small-sized documents that are so much in demand. It is the intention of the government to give a few days of grace in respect to the application for licenses, in order that the public may have a fair opportunity to secure service at the various issuing centres, and the police will not begin their inspections just yet. As soon, however as the rush of applicants has been taken care of and it is evident that intending applicants have been served, a check up throughout the province will be instituted.

The license no issued requires the signature of the license holder to be inscribed upon it and along with it is a little booklet containing a synopsis of the Vehicles and Highway Traffic Act, Rules of the Road and Hints on Careful Driving. This pamphlet contains all that the driver need put in respect and is probably the most useful and compact little book ever issued on this topic.

Work of Counterfeiters Is Now Engaging the Attention Of the League of Nations

It is not generally known that since the Armistice there has been a huge increase in the crime of counterfeiting, and amongst the lesser but practical endeavors which have engaged the attention of the League of Nations is an attempt to minimize this international evil.

The extent of the menace is indicated by the results of an enquiry taken in 43 countries which shows that in a three year period no less than $5,000,000 in counterfeit currency was seized by the police authorities while it was estimated that at least twice that amount remained in circulation.

Since the war the multiplication of currencies and the vagaries of the exchanges has afforded wide scope to counterfeiters, who find in them themselves of the differences between the penal legislation of various countries and the lack of co-operation between their police authorities to ply their trade and escape punishment.

This led the French government in 1927, to suggest that the matter should be taken up by the financial section of the League, and excellent progress has been made in curtailing the operations of the counterfeiters.

The convention on this subject which met recently at Geneva has for the contracting parties to punish the counterfeiting of foreign currencies just as severely as the counterfeiting of their own and contains extradition clauses to make sure that offenders are brought to justice.

Canada in the past has suffered severely from the operations of the counterfeiter and it would be well to close interest the findings of the police, legal and financial experts, who are dealing with the subject at Geneva.

Famous Forest in England Is To Be Cut Down

Great Britain's largest oak forest, the Royal Forest of Dean, which was planted to provide timber for the British Navy, is being cut down. Unlike Sherwood Forest, which is gradually disappearing to make room for military development, the Dean is suffering from the ravages of disease.

Hundreds of acres of trees are being attacked by a mysterious ailment, and are going prematurely to decay. Their branches are shriveling up and dying, and their trunks are becoming overgrown with moss and fungus. The forest, in some parts, is bleak, but over a large area in the centre the decayed boughs and stunted trees make a piteous picture. The giant of the forest is a giant no longer, Pitiless disease has sapped its vitality.

The exact cause of the forest plague cannot be determined, although experts have made frequent investigations to discover it. The investigation, however, has ascertained that the chief cause of the rot is an unknown fungi entering the longer dead or dying branches of the trees. One theory is that harm is done by the frequent tunnelling and earth disturbance occasioned by the working of mines under the forest.

Egg Laying Contest

Barred Rocks lead for both total and weekly production in the Manitoba egg laying contest at the experimental farm at Brandon. The pen owned by John G. Scott, of Minto, leads for total production with a score of 1,586.7 points and 1,436 eggs, and the pen owned by T. E. Hoome Medora, is leading for weekly production with a score of 71.5 points and 61 eggs.

Good Opening Here For Danish Farmers

Great Opportunity For Western Danish Adviser Tells C.N.R. Officers

"We are pleased to know that Danish settlers are so acceptable to Canada, and I can see that there is great opportunity for them in agriculture here, provided they are ready to work," stated Chr. Christensen, government adviser in agriculture for Western Jutland, Denmark, while on his way home after escorting a party of Danish settlers to Winnipeg, where they were located under the auspices of the Colonization Department of the Canadian National Railways.

While in Canada Mr. Christensen took the opportunity of studying the Junior farmer movement, and the work of the boys' and girls' clubs, which has proved immensely successful in Canada in raising the quality of livestock produced on the farms.

"With the same amount of work he would have to put into an ordinary farm holding in Denmark, a Danish farmer should be able to become very prosperous on the wonderfully fertile Canadian soil," said Mr. Christensen, discussing with C.N.R. officials the matter of Danish settlement in Canada. "It takes a good deal of money to go into farming properly in any country, but I observe, in the matter of farm lands, and the possibility of operating a great deal more land, to better advantage with the same effort is a great attraction for our people to Canada. We do not advise any of our people to come here, however, who are not willing to go into farm work."

Religion in Russia

Soviets Learning Nature Of People Cannot Be Changed By Law

The Russian soviet government has abandoned so many of the things it stood for when it came into being that it would not be surprising to receive confirmation of the report that it has decided to abandon its official opposition to all religion.

According to dispatches from Moscow, an amendment to the constitution is to be submitted removing restrictions on religious practices. The parties is not to abandon passive objection to religion but it is to abandon its active efforts at suppression. It will decree separation of church and state, and schools and church, but it will grant its people the right to such religious practices as they care to adopt. In other words, it will cease to persecute its people on religious grounds.

The Russian people are essentially religious in their nature. They have an "inborn faith, which though it has been rough ridden by their rulers, has not been eradicated. According to observers, it is simple but fervent and deep rooted. Under the rule of the soviet, its outward manifestations have been disrupted, but the spirit among the masses has been unquenched.

Slowly the soviet is learning that the nature of a whole people can not be changed by law and edict. That which has been bred by centuries of habit and motivation can not be destroyed in an instant. A nation and its habits of thought and living is the product of long development. That which has been created through such a period is part of the foundation that reaches deep into the spirit.

The horse had long since been retired and had been living at his ease in the pasture of W. J. Moore river valley hill, enjoying such rough fare but plenty of south of Dewdale. The horse didn't have any complaints, so he was seen around the pasture in the morning's browsing the grass as usual, but in the afternoon was discovered dead

Here and There

Four hundred thousand babies have been born at Banff during the past fortnight. It is not the fine mountain air that accounts for this phenomenon, but the romantic scenery, and the babies are rainbow trout from the Dominion Government Fish hatchery on the banks of the Bow River. They will be placed in the lakes and streams of the Rocky Mountain Parks.

Canadian Pacific Railway Police, Ontario No. 1 team, are champion revolver shots of the Dominion. After winning the Chief Constables' Association Trophy in May, the team shot against the Lethbridge detachment of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police which had won the championship for Military forces, and defeated them 1417 against 1376. Possible score was 1600. The victorious team is composed of Investigator K. O'Brien, Sudbury; and Constables H. H. Gyves, Port McNicoll; J. M. B. MacDonald, Toronto; D. Prendergast, Sudbury, and W. E. Turgeon, White River, Ont.

With a population that ranks 20th among the countries of the world, Canada 37th in area, Canada ranks third in total turnover of trade.

Charles Olson and Raffaele Mahillart, rival vegetable world owners, are trying to make a trip circling the globe in less than 80 days using only "vegetable means of transportation." Olson left Victoria on the Canadian Pacific steamship Empress of Asia June 13, and Mahillart arrived at Vancouver on the Empress of France June 23. Airplanes alone within the term of the contract since both men have already used them. The race is date of writing is very close.

A problem that has defeated the learned for centuries—the squaring of the circle—has apparently been solved by L. W. Hartman, Canadian Pacific Railway timekeeper at Lethbridge, Ont. Hartman claims he devised a geometric method by which to reproduce the exact area of a circle in the shape of a square. University professors are now examining his solution. He was born in Rumania and never saw a railway, but speaks English, French, German and Rumanian fluently.

Adelard Goulet, head barber of the Banff Springs Hotel, had what he regards as a close shave the other day when he was off duty on the golf links and saw a black bear. He topped his drive and the bear beat a hasty retreat. Wild animals are very tame in this district this year.

Of the 2,750,000 acres taken up by settlers in Canada in 1928 eighty per cent was in such northerly districts as Prince Rupert, Saskatchewan and the Peace River district Alberta. The migration northward was most pronounced in the Peace River region, where 4,000 homesteads were taken up last year. In this district, there are still available 40,000,000 acres of fertile land, capable of producing all that is dealt with the annual value of the Dominion's crops.

EXTENSIVE ROAD BUILDING PROGRAM UNDER WAY.

Fifteen separate road building contracts are now under way throughout the province in addition to the work being done on the Peace River highway which is on a part contract and part day work basis, it is announced by Hon. G. L. McPherson of the Department of public works. The total expenditure by the Alberta Government on roads this year as represented by the above contracts and other items will be in the neighborhood of $5,225,000. There will be $2,450,000 of capital expenditure alone of which $1,500,000 will be for new highway construction now under contract, the Peace River and Jasper highways, and various grading and improvement projects and $1,150,000 for district and secondary roads in aid of municipalities. In addition some $625,000 will be spent on maintainance of roads, bridges and ferries and $500,000 in grants to municipalities out of income and $1,150,000 in carrying charges.

JUNE 1929 DRY MONTH BUT NOT RECORD-BREAKER

While June, 1929, was a dry month, it didn't quite reach the record-breaking class, according to Mrs. W. H. Owen, in charge of the dominion meteorological office in Edmonton.

During the month, precipitation of 1.5 inches was recorded, the weather lady says. This represents the driest June since 1920 with the exception of June, 1925, when only 1.01 inches of rain fell. In June, 1923, the precipitation was 2.17 inches.

Absence of rain and consequent damage to crops had its counterpart of brilliant sunshiny days and during the month 253 hours of sunshine were recorded. The record compares with 211 8 hours in June 1928.

The highest temperature for the month was 86 above; the lowest, 34; and the mean monthly temperature 59. The mean monthly temperature in June, 1928, was 56.3.

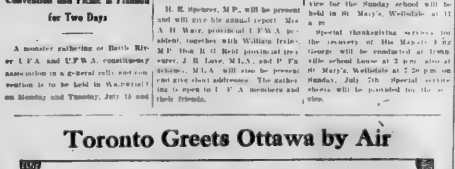
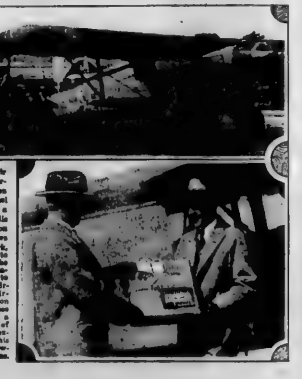
Toronto Greets Ottawa by Air





WHEN the Canadian Pacific Air Service was inaugurated on King's Birthday between Toronto and Ottawa, Mayor Samuel McBride of the Queen City sent a silver tray to Mayor Arthur Ellis of the capital in commemoration of the event. Photograph shows J. W. Somers, Toronto City clerk, handing the silverware package to Captain Earl Hand, pilot of the plane, which is shown at the Leaside Airport, Toronto, ready to start. On June 6, Hamilton Airport was opened with similar circumstance and at this function also the Canadian Pacific Express was represented and carried a number of packages. Opening of these airports indicates a wide extension of airplane service in this country and a proof of the growing "air-mindedness" of Canadians.

JULY 10TH.

There will be a weed conference at the School of Agriculture, Vermilion on July 10th, under the direction of W. J. Stephen, Seed and Weed Commissioner for the Province of Alberta.

There is nothing, at the present time, that is a greater menace to farming in the three prairie provinces than the problem of weeds. Many of our farmers know that in certain parts of Saskatchewan and Manitoba the country has been taken up by weeds to such an extent that the farmers had to move out. There are certain districts where, at threshing time the dews from the new mist that is blown for miles to record and propagate this weed, which is one of the greatest curses to agricultural work. Already the new thistle has been found in small patches in the Vermilion district and there are places where weeds found that are just as dangerous

Now it would seem like good practical farm business to get together to discuss the eradication of these weeds. There will be samples of the worst weeds in the district and if any farmers have weeds that are not known to them, would they kindly bring them in so that they might be discussed. We want to make the meeting just as practical as possible and shall be glad if the farmers of the Vermilion and other neighboring districts will come in for a short discussion of the weed problem. It is not only necessary that we know what to do but it is also necessary that we know the weed needs

The discussion will commence at 10 o'clock in the morning and the meetings will only last for the one day. We shall be very pleased to have at the Conference all farmers in the Vermilion district who are interested in the eradication of weeds and in clean farming.

Canada Has Doll industry

Toronto Firm Makes Them Heavy and Cheaper Than Germany

Lolla manufactured in Toronto have cut out German dolls in the South African, New Zealand and Australian markets, according to G. S. Stevens, Canadian trade commissioner to South Africa.

In a recent interview, Mr. Stevens said the greatest surprise he got during his several years' regime as Canadian trade commissioner to South Africa, was that a Canadian firm was able to produce better and cheaper dolls than the Germans and undersell them in the South African market.

The history of this enterprise is a most interesting one. In 1921 two Toronto brothers started in one room at 301 Queen St., W. Their present warehouse, which they have occupied for two years comprises over ten thousand square feet of floor space. Last year their business increased 50 per cent.

Recently the buyer of a large Toronto firm ordered a sample doll. He took the sample to Germany and asked a firm to duplicate it in quality and price. They were unable to do so. Today the Toronto firm has 200 different types of dolls on the market and they are almost unable to keep up with the demand.

"How did you learn the doll-making business?" one of the partners of the firm was asked. "I taught myself," said one of the brothers. "It seems that we both had a natural bent for the business. We designed all our own dolls and have instituted all kinds of new features that the Germans cannot duplicate."

In a visit to the factory bones filled with jigger arms, heads, bodies, dresses show and all the requisites of doll-making are seen in the shipping department were many kinds of dolls awaiting transportation to Cape Town, Auckland and Sydney.

Dog Rations

Fishmeal As a Substitute For Skim Milk in Dog Feeding

While it is recognized that dairying and hog raising go well together, one need not be discouraged in undertaking to raise pigs in the absence of a by-product of dairying. Fishmeal, a commercial product of considerable importance, is proving a useful substitute to skim milk as a supplement to the grain ration during the fattening period. At a trial carried out at the Agassiz, British Columbia, experimental farm, during sixty-four days, the two feeds were compared. Two pens were fed a ration consisting of one part bran, one part corn meal, two parts shorts, and seven per cent. fish meal. Two other pens were fed a similar ration except that no fishmeal was included. The hogs were given instead of the fishmeal six pounds of skim milk per day per pig. The milk was charged at 25 cents per hundred pounds, and the fishmeal at $60 per ton. While the skim milk, fed to groups produced slightly cheaper gains, the rate of gain was practically the same for the two lots. In his report for last year, published by the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, the superintendent of the farm concluded that the results secured from this experiment and previous ones show that skim milk at 25 cents per hundred pounds gives cheaper pork than fishmeal at $70 to $80 a ton. The difference is 2½ cent in this test amounted to about two cents a pound of grain made by the hogs.

Thousand Accidents Due To Carelessness

Forty Per Cent. Caused By Negligence Of Drivers At Protected Railway Crossings

In nearly one thousand accidents cases reported to the Board of Railway Commissioners during the past year, there was danger of loss of life or damage to property because of negligence at highway-railway crossings, according to a bulletin re-issued by the Canadian National Railways. Of these accidents 389 were reported on the lines of the Canadian National System. Under the various classifications of negligence more than 40 per cent of the accidents occurred where crossing gates are operated. There were 323 cases where vehicles broke or dashed through gates which had been lowered; 23 cases where drivers ignored signals and drove through gates; 25 cases of driving under gates which were being raised or lowered; seven cases of driving on to crossings after opposite gate had been lowered, five where drivers under the influence of liquor crashed into the gates, and three accidents due to pedestrians climbing over or under gates.

Under the heading "Inexplicable Negligence" the Board lists 105 cases in which 44 drove into the side of moving trains, 28 drove into the side of standing trains, and nine drove between the railway cars during switching. Twelve persons stopped on parked too close to railway tracks, and seven drove their automobiles along the railway tracks, while one driver went to sleep in his automobile after parking directly on the railway line, and another stopped his car in the middle of the crossing while he walked back to find something which he had dropped. The accidents driver of a wagon stopped on the railway tracks to adjust his load ineffective brakes were responsible for five accidents as reported, and the balance of the list were under the heading of "Not Classified."

Operating department officials of the Canadian National System point to the stress under which such negligence by automobile drivers and others places locomotive engineers, who have to be constantly on the alert to avoid injuring or killing such people for whom every possible safeguard is provided, though they will not avail themselves of the protection offered, and also point out that large numbers of locomotive engineers suffer nervous breakdowns during their service because of the anxiety and their endeavour by the carelessness of people using the highways.

The Music Of the Bagpipes

Question Is Asked In It Music Or Just Regulated Noise

Opinions may differ among the Scotsmen as to whether the strains of the bagpipe should be designated as music or just regulated noise, but the members of the Toronto Gaelic Society have no doubt in their minds as to the correct appellation. "It is just exasperating when people say they don't 'enjoy the pipes,' a speaker at a meeting of this society stated the other evening. But the Gaels should make due allowance for those whose ears have been untuned to the sound of the pibroch, and in whose veins there flows none of the blood of the Scots who were "out in the 45." Most people are agreed that a thing for the national music of the Highlander is born with a person and cannot be acquired. It is begotten of instinct, not of training. To a Scot, six pipers in a drawing room playing 'Moorymusk' is the approach to celestial art ever attained by man, but the non-Scot have other opinions on the subject. The latter are to be pitied, no doubt, but surely not condemned. It is just their misfortune not their fault. Toronto Globe.

Making Things New

To make things new is not the same as to make new things. To make new things is the work of the hand; to make things new is the work of the heart all things are made new. They are made new without changing a line without affecting a feature. Fashions in your heart an object of love, and you have created the universe. You have given an added note to every bird, a fresh joy to every brook a fairer tint to every flower.—George Matheson

Cherry Growing in Manitoba

Breeding Of New Varieties in Progress during Good Results

Cherries of fair size and fair quality are produced in the province of Manitoba. At the Morden Station, one of the federal experimental farms system, the breeding of new varieties by crossing and the growing of hardy varieties brought from other countries is producing hopeful results. Losses from injury by winter killing and freezing back of named varieties at the Morden station is leading to more and more dependence on seedlings from hardy European varieties. Fair crops of fruit were harvested last year from seedlings of the variation Rhubarskaia, and Vladimir, which are proving better than named varieties grown at the station. According to W. R. Leslie, superintendent of the station, in his report published by the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, the fruit from some of the trees while sour was of fair quality. The best results were obtained from trees on their own roots being sufficiently hardy to withstand the cold of winter even in seasons of light snow fall.

Poultry Pool

The Poultry Pool has formed a new organization under the name of the Canadian Poultry Pool Limited which will be the selling agency for the individual pools of the four western provinces, with head office at Winnipeg, and with A. W. Landreth as president and superintendent.

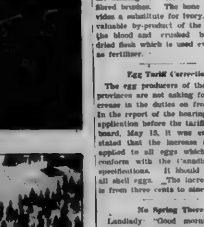
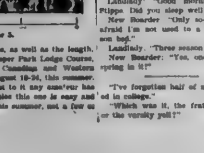
A HARD PAR FIVE



No. 2, Old Man—450 yards, Par 5.



No. 2, Old Man—450 Yards, Par 5.

The slope of the ground, the bunkers and traps, as well as the length, make this one of the many difficult holes on the Jasper Park Lodge Course, Jasper National Park, Alberta, over which the Canadian and Western Canada Amateur Championships will be played, August 10-16, this summer.

Par for the entire course is 72, and the nearest to it any amateur has come to date is 74. Compared with some other holes this one is easy and that means a lot of reputations may be wrecked this summer, not a few of them right here.

Protecting Calves Against Shedding

Disease Is Preventable By the Use Of Vaccine

In certain sections of the country, particularly where the drainage is poor, cattle owners suffer losses through the disease of shedding which attacks calves after they are six months of age and up to the time that they are two years old. It seldom attacks cattle of older ages and rarely affects other classes of live stock. Dr. A. E. Cameron, chief veterinary inspector of the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, describes the disease, which is marked by loss of appetite, dullness and high temperature, Swelling of the body above the legs at any point is a common symptom and is accompanied by a crackling sound when pressed with the hand. The crackling, Dr. Cameron explains, is due to the formation of gas in pockets in the tissues beneath the skin. Fortunately the disease is preventable by vaccination with blackleg Agressin. Filtrates of Vaccines produced originally by local practitioners, druggists and veterinarians. In Bulletin No. 117, of the Department of Agriculture, instructions are contained for submitting specimens to the laboratory of the department for examination. A few drops of blood of an animal that is suspected of having the disease, in an equal amount of glycerine, may be placed in a phial. If a phial is not convenient, a few drops of the blood if dropped on a sheet of clean note paper and allowed to dry, will answer as a specimen. In either case the package must be carefully packed with the sender's name, and address and the history of the case and carefully wrapped according to instructions contained in the bulletin, which is obtainable from the Publications Branch of the Department, Dr. Cameron describes as "a preventive measure the inoculation of young calves before they go to pasture, and in badly infected districts, inoculation again in the fall is recommended.

Shared Honors With Foch

Homage Tendered Haig By Troops Waiting For Great Soldier

A British spectator of Marshal Foch's funeral procession tells of a touching incident unrecorded by the newspapers.

The streets were empty, and two lines of soldiers were drawn up on each side, waiting for the great soldier to pass by for the last time. Suddenly there appeared from a side street a small and very humble hearse followed by five or six poor people on foot. It passed the Hotel de Ville, and from his balcony the spectator saw how at every point the troops gave the military salute.

Application Is Delayed

The hearing of the application from poultry producers of the western provinces before the tariff advisory board, asking for an increase in the duty on all foreign shell eggs, which do not comply with the specifications of Canadian extras, will not be heard until September, according to intimations which have reached Ottawa.

Adopting New Method To Fight Tuberculosis

Reliance Is Placed On Science In Effort To Conquer White Plague"

Some of the accomplishments of the first great modernization of science in a fight against tuberculosis under the National Tuberculosis Association are revealed by Dr. Kendall Emerson, managing director of the association.

These results, he says, may have a revolutionary effect upon the methods of attacking disease germs.

Seventeen American institutions have pooled their research brains and facilities in a national drive to eradicate tuberculosis. Through development of a synthetic fluid in which microbes flourish, a technique has been evolved for discovering by chemical analysis all the substances of which germs are made—their proteins, fats and sugars and how these are built.

The aim is to isolate the specific poison and then to find an antidote. Whatever is accomplished is expected to throw a few light on the other germ diseases that still are uncontrolled.

This period research is sponsored by the National Tuberculosis Association through a special committee on research.

A harmless bacillus which lives on the Timothy Hay and is named the Timothi Bacillus, has become an important factor in this fight. The Timothy germ, which instructions are contained for submitting specimens to the laboratory of the department for examination. A few drops of blood of an animal that is suspected of having the disease, in an equal amount of glycerine, may be placed in a phial. If a phial is not convenient, a few drops of the blood if dropped on a sheet of clean note paper and allowed to dry, will answer as a specimen. In either case the package must be carefully packed with the sender's name, and address and the history of the case and carefully wrapped according to instructions contained in the bulletin, which is obtainable from the Publications Branch of the Department, Dr. Cameron describes as "a preventive measure the inoculation of young calves before they go to pasture, and in badly infected districts, inoculation again in the fall is recommended.

Whaling In North Pacific

Whaling Steamers Leave For Summer Work In Northern Waters

The whaling steamers are off for the west coast again again for their summer catch of the big ocean mammals. They will be gone until early in the fall, the practice being for the little vessels to make their summer base at Alaskan bases located in the Queen Charlotte Islands, whence they make their excursions to the open sea.

Whale in most parts of the world's whales are reported to be vanishing, the last few years have given little evidence of this tendency on the north Pacific and the annual catches appear to be fairly consistent, the average being about 700 annually.

The whale is no longer killed for its oil alone, although that is still an important article of commerce. A wide variety of products are now manufactured from the bone and carcass of the whale, such as "egret" and "aigrey" plumes which, as they were originally known are no longer legally available owing to the scarcity of the birds that bear the feathers. The whale generously comes forward with a substitute manufactured from certain parts of his bony structure. Slatted whale tails are a delicacy in the far east and whale meat is growing in popularity in the southern states and in Europe. Whale bone is still used in the making of corsets and fish-fibred brushes. The bone also provides a substitute for ivory. Another valuable by-product of the whale is the blood and crushed bone and dried flesh which is used extensively as fertilizer.

Egg Tariff Correction

The egg producers of the western provinces are not asking for any increase in the duties on frozen eggs. In the report of the hearing of their application before the tariff advisory board, May 15, it was erroneously stated that the increase asked for applied to all eggs which did not conform with the Canadian extras specifications. It should have said all shell eggs. The increase asked is from three cents to nine cents.

Does Mixed Farming Pay?

Pictures In Cardston District Apparently Think It Does

The Cardston (Alberta) correspondent of the Lethbridge Herald writes: Here is what the Cardston district farmers know about mixed farming: $700 a week from cream checks right now, at a time when it used to be that everybody's cows had dried up; $4,000 a week from (and recently it was $10,000), hogs alone, and this has been steady now for some six weeks, and over $15,000 in new money from sale of horses, which does not include many other horses sold in trade for tractors. This "horse" money is the finding it, too, for they have been mostly mere "grass eaters."

That mixed farming is working a miracle here can be readily seen when one comments about the snow storms and late spring. "Doesn't it make great?" and "Who is worrying?" or "I should worry!" or the usual remark, "Lots! Yes, the very plant so much wheat anyway, and sell it, then have to buy chicken feed and hog feed at elevator prices!"

The bagotiations now under way to place 600 milk cows on the U.I.D. is going to give a wonderful impetus to the creamery business, and thousands of dollars of "cream checks" will be written in this county in a few years where hundreds are now written. Increased milk production will increase the hog production, and other by-products, particularly poultry.

In fact, the vision now seen of the Cardston district is more rosy than for many years past. The individual holdings may be smaller but the returns less per farmer than in the big "wheat" areas, but these returns are growing to be sure and regular, and "wheat bills" are going to disappear, and machinery bills, and big land payments, etc. At least, that is how many farmers picture it today.

Strawberries For Canning

Tests Made For Suitability For Canning Of Different Varieties

The strawberry holds an important place in the dessert fruits enjoyed by the people of Manitoba. The large garden crops on many farms provide fresh strawberries during the ripening season as well as large quantities for canning purposes. Tests for suitability for canning of different varieties grown at the Morden Experimental Station were made by the university graduates in Home Economics. M. W. R. Leslie, the superintendent of the station, in his report for last year, gives the results of the tests on the basis of colour of the fruit when canned. The varieties turning out very rich, red fruit are given as Marwel, Premier, Prince, Easy Picker, and a few others, including Champion. "For good colour Dunlap, Dr. Burrill, and Progressive are rated high. Of the medium pink to light red colour, Glen Mary, Minnehaha, Mohonsic, and Mastodon are classed. Of the lighter, poor coloured varieties Simmons Lain, Rockwood Giant, Cooper, and a few others are named. The report of the station for last year, published by the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, gives the other qualifications of these varieties including softness, productiveness, and shape. The report is based on a four-year period with fruit grown at the station and canned under definite controlled conditions. Mr. Leslie observes that fully red berries are desired in order to obtain the best bright colour in the canned product.

Bicycle Gaining In Popularity

It is evident from an official report recently issued that the bicycle is gaining in popularity in Canada. In 1929 the production of bicycles in Canada reached a new high record with the selling value of products 52 per cent higher than in 1928. Last year 27,909 "wheels," as bicycles are popularly termed, were sold by Canadian manufacturers valued at $389,460

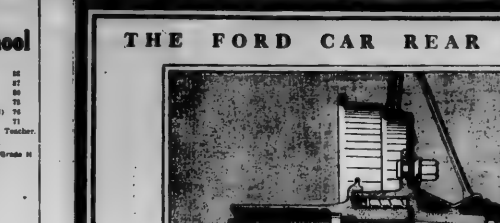
THE FORD CAR REAR AXLE



Expense no object in Achieving Perfection

THE rear axle of the Ford car is of the three-quarter floating type with spiral bevel gear. The pinion hub is exceptionally heavy, and, as the pinion is carried on double taper roller bearings, perfect alignment of the gear is always assured. The rear axle has a total of four roller bearings which add considerably to the cost of manufacture but are a protection for the owner against wear.

Special care is taken to insure silence in the pinion and ring gears. These are made up in sets and carefully matched, each set being run in to eliminate all possibility of noise in operation.

The differential side gears are forged integral on the rear axle shafts and the teeth then cut This permits of lighter and more simple construction. The shafts are unusually strong, and, as the centre line of the wheel comes over the bearings, there is no overhang of the axle shaft, and it has no weight to support.

The use of malleable castings is eliminated in this new axle housing which is made entirely of steel. Bell forgings welded to steel tubing make up the shaft housing which is bolted to an all steel differential housing. The care and skill devoted to the manufacture and assembly of rear axle parts is typical of the high standards of Ford engineering.

Britain's Finest Woman Cabinet Minister Well Fitted For Position

Miss Margaret Bondfield has been given an important office in the Labour Government She is Minister of Labor and the first woman to hold Cabinet rank in any British administration. She is also a member of the Privy Council

Miss Bondfield is a former president of the Trades Union Congress and she was one of the prominent personages at Washington when the International Labor Conference was held there

A valuable report on child migration to Canada was produced by Miss Bondfield in 1924, when she was parliamentary secretary of the department she now heads.

Once, when bidding farewell to a party of boy emigrants bound for Alberta, Miss Bondfield told them the mistress of the house had a right to expect a "good, honest day's work."

The appointment to Cabinet rank of Miss Margaret Grace Bondfield is of particular interest to Canadians who remember her visit to Canada in January, 1927.

She was then elected to Parliament by Northampton, which she represented in 1923-24. She has served a thorough apprenticeship for her present Cabinet position, having been parliamentary secretary to the Ministry of Labor in the MacDonald Government in 1924. She was the successful parliamentary candidate in Wallsend in 1926.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JULY 7

THE STORY OF EZEKIEL

Golden Text: "As I live, saith the Lord Jehovah, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked; but that the wicked turn from his way and live." Ezekiel 33.11.

Lesson: Ezekiel 1.1-3; 1 to 3.27; 8.1-4; 11.22-25; 24.15-26; 33.30-33.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 121.

Explanations and Comments

Ezekiel's Vision, Call, and Commission, 1.1 to 2.7.—In the first chapter Ezekiel describes the indescribable—the complicated vision which he had of God of the wonderful chariot, the fiery cloud, the four living creatures, in their midst the perpetual flash of lightning and the glow of fire, above them the crystal firmament, on it a sapphire throne, and on the throne Almighty God, Himself.

The prophet fell prone upon his face, till the awful silence was broken by the voice of God bidding him stand upon his feet and receive his commission for service.

"Move important than the attitude of worship is the attitude of readiness for service.

"And the Spirit entered into me when He spake unto me and set me on my feet," Ezekiel declares. "This is the divine energy, enabling a man to come to the height of his divine bend, and so to find readiness to hear the word of the Lord," says Campbell Morgan. The service to which God called the prophet was to proclaim to the rebellious people the divine message, the "Thus saith the Lord Jehovah." The Israelites have been rebellious throughout their national history; they are imprudent and stiff-hearted and they may not listen, but the prophet must not be disturbed by their words and looks, even though there are "briers and thorns" and he dwells "among scorpions" symbols of his surroundings as they most.

Ezekiel's Inspiration, 2.8 to 3.3 — That Ezekiel was divinely inspired, that the message which he was to declare was communicated to him by God, is symbolized by his eating at God's command a book (roll) on which was inscribed God's message, of lamentation, mourning and woe inscribed in the visionary book (in point of fact, Jeremiah describes the general contents and temper of Ezekiel's message throughout the earlier part of his ministry and the first half of his book, that is, down to the fall of Jerusalem).

The conception of inspiration implies that the message he is to deliver must be his own. It is God's ultimately, but Ezekiel must make it his own, work it into the very life of his being, assimilate it, as we should say this is the meaning of the strange language of 3.3 until it is himself that he is uttering. When he eats the roll, bitter as are its contents, it is as sweet as honey in his mouth, for it is sweet to do the will of God, to be trusted with such a trust.—A. S. E. Peake.

The Book suggests that the cooperation of man is indispensable to the adequate reception of a message from God. The roll is a gift of God, but the man has to eat it. The message is, we may say, supernaturally communicated, but it has to be appropriated and assimilated. The man has to make the gift of God his own."—J. E. McFadyen.

The Vimy Monument

Created With Being the Finest Of Any in the Battle Area

"The Vimy monument is the finest of any in the battle area," declared Sir Herbert Marler, Canadian envoy to Japan, upon his return to Canada from a European trip. Mr. Marler, who is sailing for Tokio from Vancouver on August 9, passed on the "Empress of France," was in England and France on business matters and while there viewed the Vimy Memorial. Mr. Marler, showed interest to be kept informed on the Canadian conditions, and asked a number of questions about the Dominion.

"After spending some little time in England, I went to France, and then near the battlefields. Among the most of monuments that have been erected those of Canada are the best, and the Vimy monument is the finest of any in the battle area. On it are to be sculptured the names of 11,000 Canadians who fell at Vimy," he said.

The Reason He Retires

Two spinsters of uncertain age were exchanging confidences. One said:

"My dear, which would you rather be a husband, wealth, position or appearance?"

"Oh, appearance by all means, and I want him to appear pretty soon, too."

Quite So

Traveller: "You have a wonderful crop of peaches this year. What do you do with those you can't use?"

Hotel Manager: "The ponches we can't use we can."

Traveller: "We adopt the same principle with our orders. What we can't sell we cancel."

"The poor we have ever with us."

"Yes; and aren't their flivvers a nuisance?"

Red Mexico Of Drink Evil

President (E) Inaugurates Campaign To Restrict Sale Of Intoxicants

President Portes Gil's campaign to rid Mexico of the drink evil has gained such momentum that it has become one of the chief topics of discussion throughout the country and one of the principal subjects of legislation.

The president's appeal to state governments to second his endeavors has met with ready response in the form of orders restricting the sale and consequently consumption of alcoholic liquors, as well as regulating the number of saloons.

Governor Raymundo Rodiguez, of Chiapas, has instructed the state treasurer to establish so heavy a tax on intoxicating drinks that their manufacture will be unprofitable. This measure, in addition to discouraging manufacture of liquor, is calculated to oblige the saloons to charge prices beyond the reach of the average man.

Governor Enriquez also has ordered that the saloons be forced to pay prohibitive taxes, hoping through this means to cause many of them to close. Furthermore, he has prohibited the sale of intoxicants on ranches and farms, many of which employ hundreds of peons.

Similar, although less stringent measures have been adopted in other states, and the war department has prohibited sale of liquor to soldiers.

The government of Mexico City has placed a ban on sale of liquor in public halls and has notified cabaret proprietors that they will no longer be allowed to employ waitresses.

Anti-alcohol leagues have been formed throughout Mexico among mothers, teachers, school children and workers, and lectures on the evils of the drink habit are being given in theatres, the schools, union headquarters and other public assembly places.

Little Helps For This Week

"The Lord will give strength unto His people; the Lord will bless His people with peace." Psalm xxix. 11

Let fainter now lie spread the shades of night,
And upward shoot the trembling pinions of light,
Suppliant we bend before the Lord of light,
And pray at early dawn.—

That His sweet charity may all our hearts
Forgive, and make our miseries to cease,
May grant us health, grant us the gift divine
Of everlasting peace.
—Brevlary (trans. by Edward Caswall.

There is indeed a peace on earth; but it is not the peace of inaction, or prosperity. It is the peace of him who accepts the condition on which life is given, who girds himself for the battle that he has a clear, strong faith that conflict is wisely ordered, and who has an earnest in his heart which is the pledge of the perfection of his soul and the triumph of a higher world.

—William Ellery Channing

SYNOPSIS

As gray dawn creeps over the New York skyscrapers, Marcus, the famous revue producer, is leaving the fashionable Plaza night club with a party of four. As one of the company suggests that they go to Blackie Ball's club, where "fun is just starting," and Marcus consents. At Blackie's shabby club the newcomers are seated at a "ringside table" in front of Rome, Blackie's head singing waiter and comedian, who welcomes they are. Grace, the pretty cigarette girl, catches Marcus' name "Marcus," and hopes the celebrated producer will "put something in" Baby Al, whom she admires tremendously

CHAPTER II

As Al hurried toward the door, leading to the bar, Grace speculated as to whether she could cut across and intercept him, but he was moving too fast and there were too many tables in between. She decides to wait until he returned, then she would drop a word as to Marcus' identity. It was necessary for Al to know that, so he could put every thing possible into the comic scene he would sing in a few moments

Grace's admiration for young Al was a study in devotion. Al Stone had been her best friend at Blickie's place for years, she had taken the job of cigarette girl a few months before, the crowds, waiters, hat-checkers and performers frightened her, the rough-and-ready manners of all the place made her timidly draw into herself. Then it was that Al had put his hand kindly on her shoulder and looked down into her apprehensive brown eyes.

"Don't be scared, kid. Everybody's all right here."

Two minutes later, Al had forgotten his words, but Grace treasures them as a sacred gift. Al Stone had promptly fallen in love with him. Al did not know this, no one knew it, not even Grace herself, but it merely knew that the dark, gentle eyes of the young singing waiter had a quality she had never seen in the eyes of another man.

Now he was obscured for a moment as a chorus girl, carrying a tray, tripped across the floor The chorus was safe, but that was all you could say. The girls were neither graceful nor beautiful

Marcus, the producer, the connoisseur of feminine beauty who had picked only the loveliest girls for his revues and rehearsed them for months until they were whipped into shape—Marcus made no attempt to hide his disdain at this apology for entertainment Grace saw him turn to the pretty actress at his table with a bored look that said only too plain ly "So this is what you brought me to see?"

Then Grace heard a voice behind her, a rough masculine voice

"Hey, cigarette girl come here a minute." She swung about and carried her heaping tray of cigars and cigarettes to a nearby table There were two blonny-eyed and uncertain of speech, looked up into her face

Had Diarrhoea Bowels So Active Feared For His Life

Mrs. E. J. Jago, Cheadle, N.B., writes: "My little boy, when three years old, had a severe attack of diarrhoea. The bowels were so active, and he vomited so much, I feared for his life. I tried many medicines but he was always getting worse. A friend told me of and after the second dose I saw an improvement I gave him almost half a bottle and he was completely relieved.

"I have used it for the other children, and my husband and myself My husband gives it great praise and when he goes away from home to work he always takes a bottle with him

"Want some — sig — cigarettes," said one of them.

Elmer lowered her tray for this patron to make a selection and, as she did so, became aware that one of his companions had drawn his chair closer to her.

"Say, you're a nice kid," suggested the second man, with a regal expression on his face. "Do you know you're cute. I been watchin' you."

Grace smiled faintly, but ignored him otherwise, while she passed out the cigarettes to the first customer. That was what Blackie and Al had told her to do when the patrons became personal in their remarks—say nothing and attend to business.

As she leaned across the table to hand another pack of cigarettes to the third man of the party her shirts rose a trifle. Without looking she knew that one of the customers was looking her up and down. Then suddenly she felt her other hand in his clutching grasp.

She straightened up sharply and tried to draw away. She knew she must not try to make a scene, for, after all she was only a night club cigarette girl, and the customers must be tolerated in time.

At this moment, Al Stone, just about to turn the corner to the door leading to the bar, shot a glance across the room and visualized Grace's predicament in a flash. In moment he had veered across, while Grace gazed hopelessly into the drunken man's eyes and murmured, "Please let go."

Then Al loomed at her side and stepped sharply on the man's foot. A cry of pain came from the customer and he released Grace to nurse his aching toe. The girl caught Al's signal and made good her escape. While the three unsteady Don Juans stared up in bewilderment at Al's broad grin

"Why did you step on my foot?"

"Did I do that? I'm sorry."

Again the broad, but guileless grin of Al Stone he moved off, swiftly as he had come.

But now he felt a hand lightly on his sleeve and looked down into Grace's whitish eye.

"Thank you, Al," she murmured. The waiter patted her on the shoulder "That's all right, Grace. Those things will happen

"But you again let me know."

Al glanced down at the diminutive grace and his handsome face softened, as it always did when he read some part in her of the tenderness of her dark eyes he saw only the gratitude of someone he considered merely a sweet child To him the marked evidence of acceleration in her breathing and the faint tremor of her slender and lovely little mouth were only her reactions to fright. Nor did he see her head turn, as he turned away, while her eyes followed him adoringly

Not until he disappeared and the door to the bar had swung back to normal did Grace recall that she had a message for him

Before the singing waiter, resp peared with his four beers on a tray he did not bend straight across the room to the bar, but veered to the narrower entrance and glance down a corridor Through an open door-way he saw a good-looking blonde girl, a few years older than Grace seated before a mirror in a negligee. She was evidently studying her reflection in a self-satisfied way as she slowly and rythmically brushed her lustrous golden hair. This was Molly Winters, the ballad singer at Blackie Joe's

Al moved slowly toward the door as if drawn by a magnet, forgetting his order for a moment. His eyes lit up at the sight of Molly and with fascinated gaze he watched the white, rounded, raised arms protruding from her pink silk dressing gown, as she slowly manipulated the hair brush

Molly was undoubtedly a pretty girl and one of the favorites at Blackie Joe's. Yet there was a hardness about her eyes and a petulance discernible at the corners of her mouth that bodied no good for the man who would fall in love with her. Al, however, was blind to these defects.

As he neared her dressing room door she saw him, gave him one indifferent glance, then turned to the mirror again to rouge her shapely lips. At that moment of studying her reflection Molly, the heart-sang specialist, was gazing at the person she loved best!

Bicycle-boating across the Channel has replaced swimming in popularity.

The bicycles are fitted to two long-pointed pontoons and the pedals are attached to paddlewheel propellers. The sea-bikes make about five miles an hour, but currents bother Channel riders.

BOY SCOUT NOTES

Well we all had a good time off Tuesday, and so far no boys have reported being sick afterwards, but it is understood that neither of the S. M.'s did much work the next day and have not looked at pie since.

All boys are asked to be out on Saturday afternoon at the depot at 2:30 p.m. to give Marwood a real Scout welcome. The pioneering badge is now received and photographs are wanted to fill it up. Anyone having views of the district and the present troop are asked to hand them to Jack Struthers before 7 p.m. Friday evening. All Scouts are requested to come in and sign the album before Saturday.

Next meeting will be held as usual next Tuesday when the list of campaign for camp will be distributed.

Keep in mind Saturday afternoon at 2:30 for Marwood's send-off

All report a good trip

On Thursday afternoon, June 27th, the members of St. Saviour's W. A. held their last meeting until September at the home of Miss Ferrell. The genial hostess excelled herself and a most enjoyable time was spent by all. The only regret being that the time passed all too quickly. The W. A. take this opportunity of thanking the ever-ready chauffeurs, Messrs Pilkington, Taylor and Cook, also Mrs E. Corley for taking care of the transportation part of an afternoon that will long be remembered.

While most of us have been accustomed to high winds and dust storms during the past few months, the wind and dust of the past week have been more than usual. About 5 p.m. last Friday the town was completely enveloped in a canopy of dirt, which was associated with a light rain of short duration. Tuesday the wind was again worse than usual in that it was extremely hot and dry. Towards 6 p.m. the dust in the air was lessened by a few raindrops which at once caused the atmosphere to say the continuous wind parked grit, dirt and dust about with abandon — but we're used to it now, so why complain.

The Rev T. J. Macdonald and family from London, England, who is needs to settle in Alberta, is expected to arrive in Vermilion this Friday

Mrs J Waring left today (Thursday) for a trip to Ontario where she will visit several different places.

Tour Of Vermilion Farmers

(Special to The Standard, by one who made the trip)

The tour of business men and farmers at the district as scheduled for last week came to an end about 10.30 on Saturday evening at Secretary Bunton's office. I think it would be safe in calling this the first annual tour, as no doubt after the delightful and instructive entertainment received by the party on tour that this event will become an annual affair. The party consisted of seventeen members for the entire route and eighteen part of the way. And if the business men of the town were mostly conspicuous by their absence, the farmers of the district were well and nobly represented. Mr. Andrews of the demonstration farm was manager in chief and headed all arrangements in his quiet and efficient way and in a very pleasing manner to both ourselves and our hosts at the different points of call.

The first stop was made at Lindbergh where we were taken out to the Dobson and Hunter ranch by Mr. Hunter and shown over their 2500 acres, where we saw part of their herd of Angus cattle which includes about 150 head of purebreds and some 250 grades. These cattle have a range of about six sections of land. Mr. Hunter tells us that they have about 1100 acres sown to wheat this year.

The next stop was at Vegreville where we had dinner and were then taken out for a look at the Vegreville Hatcheries by Mr. McCrae, secretary and manager of the Vegreville agricultural society. This plant has a capacity of 150,000 eggs, but to date has only been used up to about 50,000. The plant is modern and well equipped to handle a great many eggs in record time. We also learned that we had the honor to be the first visitors to be allowed to inspect the plant. Mr. McCrae then took us in to see a chicken ranch owned and operated by a Mr. Perepelytsia. Now Perepelytsia might be all right for Sundays or on his birthday, but for business purposes it is somewhat of a mouthful. Mr. McCrae told us they had changed it to Warden, as the place is known as Warden's chicken ranch. So we figure that Warden is Alberta for Perepelytsia, and if there are any Wardens in this district contemplating a visit to Ukrainia, their name there will be Perepelytsia.

However, we found Mr. Warden a very genial business man with a good command of the English language and full of enthusiasm for the chicken business. He has about 1200 S. C. White Leghorn laying hens at present and he imported this summer from B. C. about 3000 chicks including Rocks, both white and barred, also Buffs and Reds. Mr. Warden explained that his Red chickens all came from hens who had records of not less than 250 eggs.

We then proceeded to Fort Saskatchewan where we had supper with Mr. and Mrs. Brown, formerly of the Brunswick hotel here. We might mention here that Mrs. Brown had some (nearly to goodness) strawberry shortcake for supper which was very much appreciated. And Mr. Brown had some rare old Corn-Cola of 1929 vintage which was very palatable after our dusty ride.

And now we come to the menial hospital farm at Oliver and we can assure our readers that it was well worth the trip to see the gardens and flower houses on this farm and have things explained to you by Mr. Paden who, although he claims to have no education as a gardener, can yet tell you every detail of the history of each plant and flower under his care. Here we were also shown a fine herd of Holstein cows, two of which hold records, one, Muriel Bell Alcartra 2nd hold the Canadian record for two year olds, namely 14423 lbs of milk in 305 days. Here also they have a beautiful bunch of Dorset-Jersey plus, hard to beat anywhere. Also a pair of brood mares, one Clyde and one Percheron, with a foal. And a very nice 5-year-old stallion, Emigrant's Masterpiece, weighing about 1900 lbs. We made Bunnston that night and early next morning visited the Utal verity where we were welcomed by Prof. Sackville, and after seeing the dairy cattle and some beef steers we went out to the farm about two miles and had a look at some 300 pigs which were on experiments for varieties of feed. Afterwards we went to the University where Dr. Adam gave us a very interesting talk on the different samples of rock ore on exhibition there. This, with a look at the Indian relics and bones of pre-historic animals made a very interesting hour for us.

After dinner we headed south to Wetaskiwin. Near Millet we called at Mr. Howes' farm and had a look at his herd of Red Polls — a very nice even bunch, 19 head of purebred milk ing with about 12 head of young cattle on the range — the entire bunch bred up from one cow purchased.

The next call was at the Harvey farm, where there are a few dual purpose Shorthorns, with one outstanding cow whose record for milk sellpon, with the record of the Oliver farm cows—about 12,000 lbs of milk testing 4.6 to 7 point

The next stop was a few miles up at Wetaskiwin at the famous alfalfa ranch of Montgomery Bros. Mr. Montgomery and his farm manager are both very much interested in foxes, both are good talkers and were quite willing to give us all the information on the business we asked for. There were a few bonus spent very sightly looking at the foxes. They look like long pelts and this same deer there were 300 pups incidentally we learned a great deal about foxfarming and also how besides the present flesh story and bear meat it is a good doe story. We can't do it justice on paper, but if you want to hear it, ask Bill Steele

It was here also that we met our old friend H. W. Scott, a former manager of the demonstration farm here. The pleasure of the meeting appeared to be mutual, I know we were glad to see him and I think he was glad to see us, and for the benefit of those not present I will say we found his much as usual, even to that rosewood stem his bowl pipe. You know, every time we looked at the bowl of that pipe we thought that Scotty smoked F.P. tobacco But that is not so because he was with us from Wetaskiwin to Wainwright and can vouch positively that on several occasions we saw him dig up his pouch and fill that big bowl with his very own tobacco.

We had supper at Wetaskiwin and then made Camrose for night, where we were welcomed by Mr Kerr and Mr. Slattery, and taken by them next morning to see a couple of fine herds and also a fine bunch of Jersey heifers at Mr Slattery's place. In fact the gentlemen made us so welcome that we were most reluctant to leave.

Mr. Rose, who farms on the Iosland district, was our next point of call. He has a nice flock of bred to lay Barred Rocks The early hatch are exceptionally well managed for this time of year and the June pullets are a healthy husky looking bunch, and are coming along rapidly Mr Rose is to be commended on his clean and handy poultry runs

We had dinner at Daysland and then went out to see Boggs' famous herd of white-faces. Although Mr Boggs is not fitting anything for the fairs at present, his herd are in very fair shape and all show strong lines of good breeding He has one young bull, Alberta Panama 2nd, who shows every promise of repeating the successes of his sire, Alberta Panama, who is too well known at western fairs to need mention here After seeing the herd we were taken to the house and saw the display of prize ribbons won there was a quilt made from prize ribbons and it alone contained 300 several prizes ribbons and 150 champion ship ribbons besides others and I need safe in saying that there are still enough ribbons hanging about to make another quilt, besides rosettes and cups. Mrs. Boggs and the Misses Boggs very kindly treated us to tea cream and cake, and it was with some difficulty that we could get Sid Hawkes away, he seemed to have some idea that he could persuade Boggs to sell a dept. him.

Finally we went to Strome and visited the fair ranch. Mr. Robinson invited us to stay with him over night before Eagle Creek and he drove us in his big car. We followed him over the [illegible] and we can say that would hold her own in any company

The next stop was at Ridgewood where Mr. [illegible] and took dinner and looking thru ranch. This is no name to Vermilion, and he invited us to be excused our party on to Hardisty and through the park to Wainwright, where G. C. Dunsmore appear and we got lost for a time We might mention here that Harry Elliott got lost in Vegreville Dave McFee in Camrose and Alex Allanach in our old place at all. In regard to crop conditions we can safely say that Vermilion and district are not the worst by any means A short distance east and west of the Post here about as good as any unless it was a field or two north of Wetaskiwin But in general opinion among the party appeared to be that this year would fall far short of a normal crop

Some of our readers may considering we are advertising outside business in this We'd like to be used to advertise ourselves at home, but if anyone wishes to follow our route any time for the next few years they will find lots of people who will know a lot about this district This you will readily understand when you look over the following list of those who kindly took care and those they took

J. F. Andrew, D. McPhee W. L. Robinson, H. A. Searle, W. M. Steele, S. C. Heebner F. Watling, F. Van Waganbhen, E. Hart, A. F. Barnett, H. Elliott, A. Turner, R. J. Whitehead G. C. Dunsmore, C. Bedford, R. Barton, A. Allanach

The One Hundred Percenter

Lady Astor, the Bernard Shaw, has the habit of saying startling things that make people thank says the Winnipeg Tribune. In the recent election campaign in Great Britain she struck a responsive chord in many minds when she said:

"It is the 100- per cent American and the out-and-out Englishman I fear. I think 100 per cent citizens ought to be locked up. They are a danger to the world.

Everybody knows what a 100-per-center or an out-and-outer, is. He is to be found in more or less substantial numbers in every country, although his favorite stamping ground is the North American continent The 100 percenter may be distinguished by several well-known characteristics

In the first place he has a fine, full, rich sense of the importance of his intrinsic entirety as the family unit. May my country be always right, but my country right or wrong. That naturally scale down into "my state right or wrong; my party right or wrong; my family right or wrong, myself." In essence it is placing a nation, or a locality, or a group of persons associated together for some common cause, above every ethical or moral judgment of mankind, since the sense of right or wrong.

Another sign of the 100 percenter is a steadfast belief that everything that is American or Canadian, or English, or Italian is right, because it is American or Canadian, or English or Italian The logical consequence of such an obsession in that he chespense his country's flag by dragging it in and flaunting it on every possible occasion.

The 100 percenter is not all bad, of course He merely fails to see that patriotism is not the cause but the result of a sound and honorable national life. He is the victim of current standardization of thought which manifests itself in slogans and banalities. Not everyone wants to go as far as Lady Astor and have him locked up. Nevertheless he is a danger because his enthusiasm is rooted mainly in a mass of intolerances. And intolerance, as Lady Astor implied, is one great obstacle to civilized social progress.

And in civilized social progress lies the hope for the future peace of the world. If the American, the Canadian, the Englishman, the Italian insist upon the acceptance of their particular national views, and insolently refuse to see any good or virtue in the views of others, what hope can there be of the nations drawing closer together?

And if the 100 per cent doctrine is sound and right, and the 100 percenter is to have his way, what hope is there for the future of many nations of today? Take Canada as an example If the 100 per cent. Easterner adheres rigidly to his views, declares he alone is right, but whether right or wrong, he will not budge from any position he has taken on fiscal or other questions and the 100 per cent. Westerner adopts the same attitude, what will be the outcome of the Canadian Confederation?

Apply the same attitude of mind in matters of race, language religion, and government in Canada, and in each of these questions becomes an impossibility The 100 percenter would wreck everything if he does not have his own way

All history proves that intolerance has been the cause of the world's greatest sorrows the underlying cause of 9- bloodiest wars Intolerance of race, intolerance of national customs intolerance of religion intolerance of social conditions the 100 percenter in the ranks of employers and in trade unions, these are the real dangers in the world today as they were in the years that are past

The 100 per cent demagogue with a glib tongue and a reckless disregard for truth and fact by attracting the attention, playing upon the passions prejudices and sentiment of those who are so swayed rather than guided by their intelligence, can undo the work of generations of statesmen, and render difficult and oftimes impossible the work of the true statesman.

The man who boasts he is 100 per cent. this or 100 per cent. that is merely advertising the fact that he is intolerant in his views and narrow in his vision and conception of life He may be a never but his narrowness of his intolerance and his intolerance has its foundation in ignorance and a prejudiced mind As such he is a national danger.

To Test Air Television

Monoplane Has Been Especially Constructed To Try Out Invention

Flight test will soon be made of television apparatus calculated by its inventor, C. Frank Jenkins Washington proposes to reproduce conditions as seen from an airplane on 8 moving miles away.

Moving pictures of moving objects in real time broadcast by aerial television are what Washington hopes to see from an airplane on a moving automobile.

The test flight will be made in one of the new passenger monoplanes now being constructed by a company which has been especially organized for the purpose of developing the invention of C. Frank Jenkins, Washington physicist, to reproduce conditions as seen from an airplane on a moving automobile.

The new process have already been conducted with ground models from a laboratory to be announced and a flight over some junior cabin monoplane had been especially constructed for practical test purposes

Will Increase Empire's Trade

U.S. Tariff Likely To Divert Trade To British Dominions

Increased United States tariff against Canadian products will divert Canada's trade more and more to the other Dominions of the British Empire, believes Norton Frumbull, president of the Chamberlain New Zealand chamber of commerce, now on a visit to Canada and the United States for the purpose of studying conditions between the farmer and city industry on this continent.

In an interview at Winnipeg Mr Frumbull said he does not think Canada can meet the tariff situation by further raising her own tariff wall, but should concentrate on increasing her manufacturing and in her empire trade

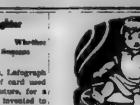
Can Measure Laughter

Machine Determines Whether Comedy Film Is Support Or Failure

"John James, comedian, Lafograph 7" may be the form of card used by entertainers in the future, for a new apparatus has been invented to register the exact "strength" of the laughter aroused by a recent piece in a theatre or concert hall. It registers the truth and nothing but the truth. The machine will presumably have a figure to denote absolute efficiency, and should a musical comedy fail to come up to scratch it will not longer be possible to suspect that the failure was due to the critics. Also the critic's work will be made easier. Instead of praising an author's wit, or deploring his dullness, it will be necessary merely to say that he "Lafographed 100, or 50, or 0," as the case may be. After a first night the public will be able to see the registered rise and fall of the needle how it began at "titter," rose to the accompaniment of "chuckle" and "laugh," leapt to the higher "outburst" or "scream," or reached the supreme heights of "screech."



Important Move Made By Labor Government

World Have Foundations Agree On Signing Of Optional Clause Of World Court Statutes

Important negotiations affecting Empire affairs, are reported to have been initiated by the new Labor government of Great Britain. It has communicated with all the Dominions in an effort to gain agreement to the signing of the optional clause of the word court statutes, under which questions of international law would be submitted to the permanent court of international justice, at the Hague.

The Labor newspaper, the Daily Herald, said also that the Labor Government has informed the Dominion governments that it proposes to recognize diplomatic relations with Russia.

The world court matter requires agreement of all the Dominions, and it is expected this can be secured without much trouble. Australia, Ontario, and probably the whole Dominion reluctant to sign the optional clause, and it is understood this refusal has now been removed to a great extent.

In any event, Premier Ramsay MacDonald is hopeful of the success of his attempts Empire agreement on joining the world court when he visits the League Assembly, at Geneva, in September.

So far as Russia is concerned, the Labor Government is already pledged to renewal of diplomatic negotiations, this being a necessary and important step towards the desired increase in British trade with the Soviet Union.

PAINS IN THE BACK

These Are Usually Due To a Weakened Condition Of the Blood

The muscles of the back are constantly in motion, and a weak back will have but little rest throughout the day. They are subject to the strain of all the nourishment and strength that pierces the whole body from the heart. Unless they have this help, you will have backache and continue to have pain.

Backache seldom or never means kidney trouble. It is usually more than the tired, wornout muscles of the back that are to blame, but little rest throughout the day. They are subject to the strain of all the nourishment and strength that pierces the whole body from the heart. Unless they have this help, you will have backache and continue to have pain.

Backache seldom or never means kidney trouble. It is usually more than the tired, wornout muscles of the back that are to blame, but because of the lack of good, pure blood. Sufficient quantities of this nourishment and strength that pierces the whole body from the heart, has been improved through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Mrs. Mrs. Mrs. F. Fairbairn, Essex, Ont tells what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for her. She says: "I suffered for nearly two years with pain in my back at times the pains were so bad that I had to walk bent. I doubted what I tried several doctors with very little relief. Then I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I did so, and with the joy of knowing being able to stand up straight without suffering intense pain. After using two boxes they were free from pain. I used eight boxes in all and have not since had a return of the trouble I can do all my housework and not feel tired nearly as much as formerly. For all this I thank Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

If your dealer does not keep these pills you can get them by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont

Her Little Boy Was Very Ill With Summer Complaint

Famous Detective Retires

Scotland Yard Officer Was Successful In Solving Many Celebrated Cases

Retirement of Frederick Wensley, 54, ag cadet of the intelligence division of Scotland Yard, has brought to an end a career which began in the Limehouse district and resulted in the solution of numerous murder and other mysteries. He came to know every nook in Chinatown and the East End, the anarchists' haunts and dens of iniquity. With hawklike features, piercing eyes and bushy eyebrows, Wensley resembles Lord Reading, and really looks the part that novelists have assigned the detective. In real life his work often shamed the amateur exploits of his prototypes in fiction. Most of his murder mysteries were solved as he sat back in a big armchair in Scotland Yard Building. He would sit for hours staring at the floor while studying every angle of the case, and when he left that chair things began to happen

Back in 1856, Wensley took part in the famous Whitechapel hunt for "Jack the Ripper," who murdered many young girls. He shared in the Sydney Street siege when a group of murderers barricaded themselves in a house and fought a battalion of Scots Guards.

One of his most famous exploits was the case of the mystery house where he found that Maltby, the tailor, had been living for years on the hand barricaded doors, alone with the bodies of the women he had killed.

One of his most astute solutions was in the murder of Madame Gerard, which he solved by finding a hole close to work on a laundry mark and a piece of paper with the cryptic words "Monte Belgium."

Most of his cases were sordid murders which were not sensational but which required much skill to solve.

Excellent For Croupy Children.

When a child is suffering with croup it is a good plan to use Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil It reduces the inflammation and loosens the phlegm giving speedy relief to the little sufferer. It is equally reliable for sore throat and chest, earache, rheumatic pains, cuts, bruises and sprains Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is regarded by many thousands as an indispensable of the family medicine chest.

Britain's Oldest Bloods

The oldest inhabited residence in the kingdom is said to be Dunvegan Castle, in the Isle of Skye. Part of it dates from the ninth century, or a couple of hundred years before the conquest of England by William the Norman.

The cheapness of Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator is within reach of all, and it can be got at any druggist's.

Could Qualify

Castoria is a constant when Baby is fretful. No sooner taken than the little one is at ease. If restless, a few drops mean being contentment. No harm done, for Castoria is a baby remedy, made for babies. Perfectly safe to give the youngest infant. Mothers know the word for that! It is a vegetable product and you could use it every day. But it's in an emergency that Castoria means most. Remember that when constipation must be relieved — or colic pains — or other suffering. Never be without it: some mothers keep an extra bottle, unopened, to make sure there will always be Castoria in the house. It is effective for older children, too; read the book that comes with it.

English Farmer, Sixty-Seven, Flies To Holland and Back

Aviation In South America

Air Lines In Operation In Every Country Of South America

By the end of 1930, it will be possible to travel by air from Montreal to Santiago, Chile, across the lower Andes to Buenos Aires and to return via the Brazilian coast to New York and Montreal. There are air lines in every country of South America, and many of them are in daily use. This great improvement in the communication facilities of the continent has been made in the past eight years, before which period no commercial aircraft were in operation, and already its influence upon the development of South American republics is apparent.

On that vast continent where the population is engaged chiefly in the production of raw materials and where distances between large centres of population are so great, rapid development is particularly dependent on the means of communication and transportation. Argentina has the most extensive railway system of any country south of the United States, and is now navigable the year round. This may have much to do with the fact that her foreign trade is by far the largest of the total commerce of the continent, and that among the nations of the world she ranks as thirteenth in per capita trade. Other countries on the continent have not the topography favourable to the building and maintaining of railroads. Inaccessible, costly and difficult nature of which has been an important factor in their rapid advance in the field of aviation.

The greatest development in aerial transport in South America is found in Colombia and Peru, the two predominant countries of the north and west. Colombia's main artery of communication is the Magdalena River, whose shallowness has made the introduction of supplementary facilities essential. This has been given the country precedence in South American aviation, both in priority and in the number of aeroplanes. Royal Bank Monthly Letter.

Hazards in the Home

Accidents Happen Just Wherever You Happen To Meet Them

The man who feels safe must be because he is at home is an optimist. Accidents occurring at house make up a large part of accident statistics. Acually the home is not so hazardous as a factory, but there are plenty of opportunities for slips, trips or scalded or burned. The force of gravity will pull you down to earth just as hard at home as on the street. A careless use of fire or scalding liquids will result in destruction in other place A noted instance of a tumbled down a stairway at his home and broke his ankle. Steel workers' lives are lost when narrow girders high up in the air have most of their fall- right down on the ground. A scrubwoman who has a punch press or circular saw but they do mangle arms, hands The reason for all this seem to be that we are used to the big hazards but often close our eyes to the little dangers that lurk at every turn. In all accident factories, inspections are held regularly to see that mechanical equipment are in safe operating condition, but the average home no one is responsible for maintaining safe conditions. Many fatalities occur in the home due to an injury at home Border Cities Star

Gaining In Popularity

It is evident from an official report recently issued that the bicycle is gaining in popularity in Canada. In 1928 the production of bicycles in Canada reached a new high record, with the selling value of products 32 per cent higher than in 1927. Last year 27 new models of bicycles are in popularity termed, were sold by Canadian manufacturers, valued at $400 000

Increasing Bee Colonies

The Better Way Considered To Be Blocks

Beekeepers multiply their colonies by either of two systems. The bees may be allowed to swarm or the colonies may be divided by the beekeeper, and queens added when necessary. At the Scott, Saskatchewan, experimental station, swarming is not permitted, as it is considered a better way to increase by division. In the report of the station for last year the superintendent explains two systems that are followed, one of dequeening and requeening, and the other separation of queen and brood. In the first of these methods the queen is removed and all queen cells are destroyed. The colony is left queenless for ten days when all queen cells are again destroyed and a young laying queen introduced. Where this system was followed in the Scott Station no further signs of swarming were evident during the season. The other system is to separate the brood from the bees by placing them down Hudson Strait and to the ports of Europe. It was the work of the Canadian Wheat Board to investigate conditions and the difficulties with which commerce would have to contend in shipping the newly constructed Hudson Bay Railway. The course on which winged ships of the Hudson's Bay Company more than 200 years ago was the same one the expedition followed. But they explored it, charted it from end to end in their part. They discovered, in brief, that there was a reasonable period of time when navigation was possible. Ice-breakers would be necessary to keep the ship lane clear for a longer season and gales for shipping agents have to be erected, but over the same channel the clipper ships of two centuries sailed with the aid of no navigational adventures. the future lane of commerce could be established.

The report is the sequel to this story of the exploration of the Hudson Straits. It will be written into Canada's history by men who guide the nation's commerce.

Rich Amber Deposits

One Of the World's Richest Deposits Is Located In Northern Manitoba

What is believed to be one of the world's richest deposits of amber has along the shores of Cedar Lake, Manitoba, located about 20 miles south of The Pas and close to Lake Winnipegosis. For generations the Indians gathered amber there, and large pieces found are in display by a robin's egg and vary from pale yellow to dark brown in colour. In the last ten per cent. of the material of the bench is made up of amber.

Reports on these amber deposits were made to the Canadian Government over 50 years ago, but advice was against the exploiting of the field on account of the impossibility of bringing machinery 1,000 miles overland from Eastern Canada or the United States. The situation is now entirely changed, for the Hudson's Bay Railway is less than 30 miles away, with connection at The Pas with the Canadian National Railways direct line to Winnipeg.

The reception of the amber deposit near Albany, N.Y., the other deposits of any consequence are in Sicily and in ages back they were used in beads, ornaments, and pipe stems, and the inferior grade right

Whether the Cedar Lake amber deposits will eventually be profitably worked remains to be seen, but Manitoba still grows millions of bushels of amber coloured wheat for which it has become famous throughout the world.

A Growing Grain Fuel

The steady extension of the cultivated area in Alberta is an assurance of Vancouver's continued growth as a grain port. The shipment of grain from this province to the bend of the lakes in a thing of the past. The opening up of the famous Peace River country will contribute to the volume of western grain shipments, and the increasing demand in the Orient for Canadian wheat is another important factor in stimulating the trend of wheat westward to the sea -Calgary Herald.

Report Is Most Favorable

Exposition Found Basis --From Churchill To Europe Feasible

Scarcely a hint of danger is contained in the "blue book" reports of the lender and the logs of the ships which carried the Hudson Straits expedition of 1927-29 to the Far North on its perilous undertaking. The modest report of N. B. McLean, leader of the enterprise, conducted under the directions of the dominion government, and the logs, have just been made public. Accompanying Mr. McLean were his commanding, flying officers and the crews of the stout vessels which kept McLean in contact with the outside world until one of the great adventures of modern times concluded its labors on November 11 last.

The purpose of the expedition was to establish the feasibility of a shipping route from Churchill, through the waters of Hudson's Bay and Straits down Hudson Strait and to the ports of Europe. It was the work of the Canadian Wheat Board to investigate conditions and the difficulties with which commerce would have to contend in shipping the newly constructed Hudson Bay Railway. The course on which winged ships of the Hudson's Bay Company more than 200 years ago was the same one the expedition followed. But they explored it, charted it from end to end in their part. Won Victory Over Blindness

Louis Braille Conquered Loneliness Suffered By the Sightless

This year is the centenary of one of the world's most famous victories.

It was not won by an Admiral or a Field-Marshal, but by a blind youth named Braille, and the battle he conquered was the loneliness of blind people.

Louis Braille was his name, and he was but eight years of age when, as the result of an accident in a Paris church and a leather in a school for blind children, he found he was there to be invented a system of six raised dots whereby it was possible to read by touch. Hence was born the famous Braille system, which is now in use in every civilized country in the world.

Keeping Interest In Horse Industry Alive

WHEN FARMERS GO VISITING.

Edmonton Journal—One has grown used to reading of parties of business men from the larger centres making visits to the smaller towns and villages, or even going farther afield and touring a whole district. There is something distinctly novel, however, and something significant in that item in Saturday's Journal which told of some twenty farmers from the district around Vermilion starting out on a tour which is to include Edmonton, Wetaskiwin, Hardisty, and Wainwright. These wide-awake farmers are visiting experimental stations, exhibition grounds, breeders of stock and the agricultural branch at the University of Alberta.

When members of a chamber of commerce start out on trips, they expect to enlarge the market of their industries and businesses, they cultivate good relations with possible customers, and they learn a good deal about the province in which they live. In the same way, these Vermilion farmers will help to establish good relations with customers in the cities and towns, will pick up pointers from other experts in agriculture, and will learn of first hand more about Alberta. It is a fine idea and an example that farmers of other districts may be expected to follow

In the public notice of By-law being published by the Council of M.D. of Vermilion Valley, No. 482 relative to domestic animals running at large within the district, the following territory is excepted: "That part of Township 50, Range 5, south of the C.N. Ry."

The bride was arrayed in a pretty dress of sky blue taffeta, with white stockings and silver shoes, while the bride-maid, Miss Alison Minnette, sister of the groom—wore a beautiful dress of pink crepe de chene decorated with beaded ribbonettes, with shell pink stockings and black shoes. The groom was attended by Mr. John M. Johnson of Maidstone, Sask.

After the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served at the home of the groom's parents, the happy couple leaving on the night train for Maidstone, where they will in future make their home. Mr. Johnson accompanied them on their journey.

World's Greatest High Diver To Appear At Vermilion Fair

Sensationalism is what the world desires today. This has been proved by the enormous crowds that attend any event where sensation is the chief attraction. Two years ago a young man from Sweden arrived in the United States unheralded and unsung. He stated his business to several exposition and circuses, but all turned him down, as they stated he was attempting the impossible. After many months, a well-known Fair agreed to give him a trial, but discriminated any responsibility should anything happen to the young daredevil. When the directors of the fair saw the young man rearing a slender ladder over one hundred feet in height, they began to be doubtful as to their judgment in allowing him to perform, but when they saw the small steel tank containing less than six feet of water into which the young daredevil intended to dive, they were absolutely convinced that their judgment was wrong and refused the young man the opportunity of presenting his dive before their patrons. Eventually the daredevil agreed to perform his act for the benefit of the directors only, climbing the long slender ladder until he reached the top, where he looked no bigger than a new child. He eventually passed on the small platform and taking a graceful dive, emerged from the tank alive and unharmed. The directors were astounded, but could hardly believe their eyes when he again mounted the ladder and did a back somersault dive into the same small tank. From then on the young daredevil, now known the world over as the Great Soderberg, has been in increasing demand. Soderberg, appearing in Canada for the first time, will give his act twice daily, on each occasion demonstrating a different dive, at the Vermilion Fair, Aug. 1-2-3.

At Vermilion Fair, August 1-2-3

The Conklin & Garrett Shows have this year added new features to their aggregation, making it without doubt the largest all Canadian show in the Dominion. Principle among the new attractions must be mentioned three new riding device, namely, The Caterpillar, Tilt-a-Whirl and the Swooper. Several shows have been added to the long list, while new features have been installed in the old ones. One of the special attractions this year will be the 100 foot high dive into a small tank of water by the great Soderberg. This act has caused a sensation wherever it has been staged. All in all, this year's Midway will be bigger, better and grander than ever. Don't miss it, at the Vermilion Fair, August 1st, 2nd and 3rd.

This will be based on the results of experimental work and will show the advantage in the raising of pigs from using home-grown feeds, suitable pasture and a mineral mixture in the ration. Typical lots of hogs will be used to illustrate each of these features and the results of the experiments will be available to farmers and others who are interested in the best methods of swine production.

The exhibit will be in charge of Mr O. S. Black of the Alberta Department of Agriculture.

Promises to Be Musical Treat

The Sunday evening concert which is to take place in the Columbia Theatre on Sunday, July 21st, promises to be a rare musical treat for the music lovers of Vermilion and district.

In addition to local talent Mr. Elford has been fortunate in securing the service of Mr. Ernest West, of Hollywood, California.

Mr. West has earned a high reputation for his work in California, where his outstanding ability as an organist choral director and teacher has been recognized by many prominent appointments in the musical field.

At the present time Mr. West holds the position of conductor of two musical societies, and on the occasion of the visit to California of Gipsy Smith, the evangelist he was selected to direct the massed choirs of three Los Angeles voices.

Mr. West has studied in the United States under the best teachers obtainable

Development of Highways In the Three Prairie Provinces Presents Difficult Problems

Before the end of 1929 there will be between four and five thousand miles of permanent highway in the prairie provinces. The problems connected with road building in the western have not been few. In the first place the area to be moved with even the most ordinary roads was so immense. One of the first efforts in a community to lay out a road connecting it with town and school and during the progressive years there is little further work done beyond the log-grubbed arrow of water hole and some dirt thrown over the bottom of the first plow-made furrow. The next step in advance was a municipal organization charged with the responsibility of building and maintaining a road system. Then came the demand for better roads and still better roads, and the demand for better roads and still better roads would be passable in all sorts of weather. It could not be denied that the trouble is that both the King's subjects and road at the head of affairs have often shown a want of imagination.

Trying To Develop Hardier Strawberries

Plant Breeders Are Now Turning To Wild Variety

All the strawberries in Canada and the United States and most of the world that is, the cultivated ones—are descendants of two wild strawberries, one a native of the Pacific Coast, and the other a native of the eastern United States.

There are many other wild strawberries, however, that did not take part in developing our present kinds, in the untried wild ones may hurt one valuable trait that can be bred into our domestic varieties which may make them even more desirable than they now are. At any rate, plant breeders are turning to the wild sorts for improving the strawberry, especially to develop new types hardier adapted to such specific purposes as raising preserving and candy making.

This hole on the Jasper Park Lodge Golf Course, Jasper National Park, Alberta, over which the Canadian and Western Canada Amateur Championships will be played from Aug. 19-24 this summer, is more difficult than it seems. The green is well trapped and the long driver is sure to find trouble.

The fact that the Western Canada Amateur also takes place over this course at the same time as the Dominion event, assures all golfers, no matter how high their handicap of lots of competitive play.

Educational Films

Excellent Films Supplied By the Government Natural Resources Act

As for the other matter, the type of moving picture possessed by the Canadian audiences, an interesting and valuable suggestion was made recently, that the excellent films in possession of the governments—Dominion and provincial—which are at present available for exhibition in the schools, should be shown also to the general public. Whenever there is a request for such exhibitions, the answer is always made that the producers and theatre managers are catering to popular taste—that it is a case of supply and demand. But there is little doubt that the appetite for low-grade pictures grows by what it feeds on. The sentimental, nauseating rubbish which is served up to patrons has a vitiating effect, especially on immature minds. The suggestion made by C. H. C. There is no reason why such a weekly showing of educational and entertainment films should not be established.

Closely Connected With Agricultural Market

Empire's Greatest Hotel Will Buy Bulk Of Supplies in Canada

That the erection of the tallest building in the British Empire should have any direct connection with the market for Canadian agricultural and food products of the highest quality is something not directly apparent on the face of it. The tallest building in the Empire is, however, also the Empire's greatest hotel, the Royal York, in Toronto, which was recently opened. The Royal York's annual bill for foodstuffs will be in the neighborhood of $750,000, the great proportion of it to be spent in Ontario or the Dominion as a whole.

Live lobsters will come from the Maritimes in special crates three times a week. Salmon from the Skeena by already canned. Hundreds of gallons of the finest Canadian maple syrup will be used in the creation of special Canadian dishes. A supply of millions of ultra-fresh eggs is secured. Canadian beef and lambs selected on the hoof are to be expulled nowhere else. Canadian fruits and vegetables will be brought from various parts of the Dominion famed for their own particular output. As a matter of fact, a painstaking survey of Canadian dishes has been made on behalf of the new hotel with the idea of bringing our tastes and produce to the attention of visitors from overseas.

It requires that the stubble to be burnt must be completely surrounded by a fire guard not less than 20 feet in width, and the fire must be guarded by three adult persons This law, in its future, is to be more stringently enforced.

Where combines or swathers have been used and the stubble is longer than ordinary, the fire guard provisioner warns, extra precaution should be taken.

Finds Ivory In Yukon

Most ivory hunters go to Africa and similar elephant, but Jack Elliott seeks his prize in the valleys of the Yukon, and the tusks and bones he finds are those of animals that have been dead for thousands of years Elliott went into the Yukon when the first flush of the gold excitement had paled. He did not find gold, as hundreds of his predecessors had failed to do, but he did dig in the creek beds and he found another treasure there.

Canada May Consider Relations With Russia

Communications From British Government Have Been Received At Ottawa

Ottawa. Certain communications of a "general and preliminary nature," looking to the signing of the optional clause, and also bearing on resumption of diplomatic relations with Russia have been received by the government of Canada from the British government, that was the extent of the information given out here with respect to these matters which are accorded specific motion in the King's speech at the opening of the parliament.

Just what position the Canadian government is taking on the question of resuming diplomatic relations with Russia has not been stated, but it is considered likely however, that Canada will support any such move.

Message Sent To Police Officer In Far North To Advise Him Of Illness

Ottawa.—A sick child to a hospital bore is waiting reply from his father at the lonely Royal Canadian Mounted Police post at Chesterfield Inlet on Hudson Bay, to a message broadcast over the Canadian National Railways Radio chain.

The message was to advise Staff Sergeant M. A. Joyce, that his 14-year-old son, Reid, is seriously ill here, and asking him to get in touch with Ottawa by radio if he can get to a sending station.

World's Population

Believe Population Will Be Doubled In Next 150 Years

Chicago, Ill.—Mankind probably will require at least 150 years to double the world's present estimated population, which is between 1,700,000,000 and 1,900,000,000, if fertility and mortality rates are to remain the same. A mere doubling of the world's population however, will produce a striking change in the race composition with a greatly increased percentage of Slavs. The population of North America, Western and Northern Europe, and Australia even now are no longer reproducing themselves.

Rumor Is Denied

Ottawa. A rumor that Canada has made an offer to the Newfound land government for the purchase of Labrador was given official denial here "In no way is it true," said Premier King when the matter was drawn to his attention. The rumors indicated that the price offered by the Dominion government was one hundred million dollars.

Edmonton Hon Peter Heenan federal minister of labor, will be in Edmonton shortly to open on behalf of the Dominion government the necessary documents and agreements in connection with the old age pensions scheme, about to go into operation under the joint auspices of the two governments.

Non-Party Designation

London, England. With the decision to send a non-party delegation to the league of nations assembly in September, it became known that Viscount Cecil would probably be one of the delegates.

A small "crusoe" plane of sufficient capacity to shelf provisions for the motor boats which ply the Mackenzie River during summer may be built this summer a short distance from the Arctic sea.

The Hudson's Bay Company boats which leave McMurray and Fort Smith on their voyage down to the Arctic may carry the nucleus of this refinery. The company has investigated the feasibility of taking such a plant into the high north, and it is held probable that within the present year crude oil from Canada's highest north oil field will be supplying gasoline and other fuel for the various shipping and other operations in the north.

Just before the war the late Dr. T. O Bosworth, well-known British geologist, visited the far north, making his way down the Mackenzie to the Arctic. He came back with news of possible oil structures near Fort Norman. Then the war came and it was not until 1919 that the Imperial Oil Limited, sent in a crew to drill a light drilling rig. As may be imagined, the transportation problem into this country was daunting.

On what was afterwards known as Discovery flange, about 60 miles north of Fort Norman, the crew drilled to the first well to a depth of 910 feet, at which they struck oil sand with a gus flow. This well flowed in "bursts" or spasmodically with enough pressure exerted to force the oil to the surface.

Rumors heated up the river to the north a big oil gusher and a rush for the field was started, men making their way in even during the winter months. The well actually did increase production to about 100 barrels of high grade crude oil after being deepened.

Imperial Oil, Limited, pushed its development work with enthusiasm and brought in a complete drilling material over the 1,400 miles of wilderness between Edmonton and Fort Norman. Gas power lines and airplanes to help them with their communications. In one season freight bills alone amounted to $140,000.

Several dry holes were abandoned at other points near the river, but Discovery No. 1 increased production and Discovery No. 2 was drilled.

It is the opinion of many oil men that the Fort Norman region offers a great reserve of oil on which Canada may draw in the future. With mining development pushing towards the north, it is not too much to predict that before many years ways and means will be found to bring the Arctic petroleum to market.

Fort Norman oil is 53.6 degrees Baume gravity, with paraffin base and is extremely high in gasoline content. It is practically free of sediment, and north stations were called out and asked in bringing the injured from the building.

Must Work On Roads

Every man in Jugoslavia must give his services for six days in every year for road making, according to a new Government decree. Owners of motor trucks and horse-drawn wagons must lend their vehicles for three days each year. According to Premier Jovitchitch, the country's most pressing need is a first class modern system of roads.

State Control of Radio

Royal Radio Commission Makes Important Recommendations

Ottawa.—Government control of all broadcasting stations, elimination of advertising from the programs and that listeners-in pay the upkeep by means of licenses advocated before the Royal Radio Commission at the final session here by the All-Canada Congress of Labor and the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service Leagues.

The Canadian Congress representatives also recommended that the present commission be continued or a similar organization be established vested with complete administrative control of radio broadcasting.

The Canadian Legion advocated a broadcasting organization that would develop imperial patriotism and Canadian culture. Canadians said the Legion briefly were being overwhelmed with foreign programs charged with propaganda.

The commission will at once begin the preparation of its report. It will probably be available about the end of the month.

Cleveland, Ohio. The little power boat Karf, manned by five men who built it, put out from here on an adventurous attempt to cross the Atlantic ocean.

LEVEL CROSSING ELIMINATION IS BEING PLANNED

Ottawa.—The Board of Railway Commissioners, the road departments of the Provincial governments of Canada and the railways of Canada are making a joint survey of the level crossings situation with a view to a definite and comprehensive program of level crossing elimination.

The provincial officials are now engaged in classifying the crossings from the point of view of the degree of danger and the nature of the protection needed. When this has been done, the board, the provinces and the railways will confer and decide where the greatest urgencies lie. The most dangerous crossings will be eliminated or protected first.

The program to be drawn up will require from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 a year from federal government, which means an expenditure of two to three millions annually. The grade crossing fund which has been replenished at the rate of $200,000 a year for many years is, proving insufficient since the campaign of the last few years inaugurated by the Hon. Charles Dunning, minister of railways. At present it is down to about $130,000, and Mr. Dunning will probably ask Parliament next session to increase the $200,000 to the larger amount.

Under the provisions of the Federal government the fund, which is administered by the Railway Board, will pay up to 50 per cent of the cost of any crossing elimination and protection.

CROP CONDITIONS ARE VARIABLE REPORT REVEALS

Ottawa.—The telegraphic crops report issued by the Dominion bureau of statistics showed a wide range of conditions across the country. Crop prospects continue satisfactory over Southern and Northern Alberta. Warm weather with plenty of rain is needed in Saskatchewan and Manitoba. Fall wheat is excellent in Ontario. Scarcity of rain also is reported from Nova Scotia. The largest strawberry crop is expected in the history of British Columbia. Favorable reports are coming to hand from New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

Reports by provinces for the end of June:

Manitoba — Manitoba department of agriculture:

Crops started late on account of cool spring. Light frosts early in fall left little soil moisture this spring. Germination fair. Slight setback to crops fields by frost on June 12. Rain fall scattered and variable. Need heavy general rain over province. Prospects poor.

Saskatchewan Saskatchewan department of agriculture:

Growth was retarded in June by cool weather and lack of moisture and crops are generally behind the average. Although moisture conditions were improved toward the end of the month by rain, warm weather with plenty of rain, especially in the southern part of the province, needed in July. In the South Current district wheat is week later than the average. Moisture supply rather widely variable. Will need good rains during next three weeks to make even fair crop

Crop prospects continue satisfactory over southern and northern moisture supply rather irregular. Reduced over central area but conditions of coarse grains and feed improved by rains during past week to Fall wheat very satisfactory in south. Good crop alfalfa ready for first cutting. Livestock generally good. Dairy production increasing with improved pastures.

Saskatchewan crop generally good.

British Columbia British Columbia department of agriculture

Weather during June has been cool with frequent showers which have generally benefitted all crops Grain crops making rapid growth and appear to be fully normal for date Haying in general, but due to the cold backward spring the prospects that the crop will be light. Root crops and vegetables are in splendid condition and making good growth Possibly the largest strawberry crop in the history of the province is being harvested, but prices are lower than last year. Raspberries and loganberries will yield approximately the same as last year. The yield of apples and other tree fruits will be about 25 per cent less than last year

PLAN TO SOLVE LABOR PROBLEMS IN GREAT BRITAIN

London England In debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne Right Hon. J. H. Thomas Lord Privy Seal and minister of employment in parliament outlined the government plans for solving the unemployment problem in Great Britain

Schemes must of be considered with which many people would not but also from the standpoint of stimulating trade at home and abroad, he declared. What we want we should make for ourselves" he asserted amid cheers from the opposition benches

Mr Thomas continued that the railways imported wooden railway sleepers when if the statistics had shown that only technical difficulties prevented them from using steel sleepers which could be made in Britain.

Road schemes costing $167,500,000 and providing work for five or six years would be speeded up, Mr Thomas said adding that the government's contribution would be paid out of the road fund.

Arrangements would be made for the immediate re-construction of the Waterloo Bridge on which depended the great Charing Cross railway bridge which he said, could not be safe if it remained much longer. Other schemes to be submitted to the railway company were for the electrification of the Great Eastern Railways suburban lines running out of Liverpool Street station tube railway extensions improvements to docks and harbours and a freight railroad around outer London to relieve the London traffic.

The natural resources of the country would be developed including land drainage forestation and hydro-electric

Mr Thomas declared he had seen locally conducting a private business Scotland none attractive and thereby enable our Government to see to be the limit of the dole A statement that caused laughter.

Mr J H Thomas announced he was going to invite experts to examine the coal of the country with a view to ascertaining the chemical products it contains

The minister claimed that it was the government's duty to help the Dominions in training of young men from the surplus that the Dominions needed. He was not in favor of assisted passages but he believed it to be natural that Canada should be the particular concern of the Canadian people

Locomotive Hauls 56 Grain Cars Thru Mountains

Jasper, Alta., June 28.—The heaviest train ever pulled by one locomotive over any railroad through the Canadian Rockies arrived here recently over the Canadian National Railways from Edmonton. The train carried 56 fully loaded grain cars or a total of 4795 tons and in addition two business cars, a dynamometer car and a caboose.

The locomotive which pulled the train without any assistance for the entire distance of 226 miles is one of the new mallet type which have been specially designed by the motive power engineers of the company for heavy mountain work. The test was followed carefully by S. J. Hungerford, operating vice-president of the company, W. A. Kingsland, general manager of the Western Region, C. E. Brooks, chief of motive power for the system and A. H. Eager, general superintendent of motive power for the western region and other operating officials of the company. With the use of the dynamometer car a complete record of the performance of the locomotive was obtained and the experiment proved completely successful that it has been decided to add at once to the number of such locomotives now being prepared for this particular work.

Awaits Trial On Grave Charge Of Assault

John Zacharuk, farmer of the Vermilion district, was taken to Fort Saskatchewan last Wednesday to await trial on a charge of assault occasioning actual bodily harm, having been committed by Magistrate F. G. Pillsie of Vermilion Wednesday afternoon. Karl Sarak, neighbor of Zacharuk, and the victim of the assault on June 15, has been confined in the Elk Point hospital recovering from his injuries, and even in court Wednesday the 67-year-old farmer plainly showed evidences of the terrible beating he received.

The quarrel between the two farmers arose over the fencing off of their respective properties. Dr. Miller of Elk Point was one of the principal witnesses heard at the preliminary, describing the numerous head wounds and bruises from which Sarak was suffering when admitted to hospital. For a time his recovery was doubtful.

JUMPERS WIN BALL TOURNEY AT MANNVILLE SPORTS

Vermilionites Take Horse Shoe Prize

The Standard omitted to mention last week that the high school ball team walked off with the Junior first prize money at Mannville on July 1, having to win two games to cop it.

Other Vermilionites in the limelight at the western sports were John Mackenzie and Jack Farmer, from east of town, who gave the natives an exhibition of how horse-shoes should be played, and won the grand prize.

Edmonton Exhibition Should be Greatest In History Of Associat'n

This year's Edmonton Exhibition, to be held July 15-20, should be the greatest in the history of the Association, if the present prospect is any criterion. Never before have the manufacturers and merchants been so keen to secure exhibit space, and it has been necessary to construct a new exhibits building, and enlarge the grounds, to provide the necessary accommodation. The big 50th anniversary programme announced by the Manager, Mr. P. W. Abbot, is proving a tremendous drawing card, and visitors to the Edmonton Exhibition this month will find that in every department, the fair excels that of other years.

Special features are hoped to draw visitors from outside points for the opening day, to hear and see Hon. Frank Oliver, the outstanding "Old Timer" of Western Canada, officially open the Exhibition. The mammoth street parade is receiving the enthusiastic support of the business houses, and some gorgeous and novelty floats will be in the parade. The bands competing in the Amateur Band Contest (twelve in number, will be in the parade, along with the Edmonton Newsboys' Band, the Princess Pat's Band, and other city bands. Arrangements have been made with Miss Ethel Lidgewood, world championship jumper, to give an exhibition of jumping on the opening day. The admission fee to grounds and grand stand have been reduced, for the opening day, to 25c each; during the balance of the week the regular prices will be in effect

LLOYDMINSTER LAND NOW UNDER SURVEY

Major Jack Miller, assistant superintendent of colonization for the Canadian Pacific Railway, is making a survey of land at Lloydminster for the extension of colonies established in that district. It is expected that in 1930 the settlement of families under the Canada Colonization and British government scheme will reach the peak, and preparations are now going forward in anticipation of this settlement. It is understood that the Canadian Pacific, either direct or through subsidiary agencies, will settle at least 500 families on farms in Alberta next year

Telegraph System Crosses Canada

Canadian National Buys Western Union Lines in Maritime Provinces

WINNIPEG July 8 Commencing July 1st, the Canadian National Telegraphs will acquire and operate the complete land mileage of Western Union Telegraphs in the Maritime Provinces of Canada, was announced recently by W. D. Robb, Vice-President in charge of Telegraphs and Telephone services of the Canadian National Railways. Montreal Negotiations for the purchase of the Western Union land lines in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island have been under way for some time, fulfillment of this project having been accepted by Mr Robb and these negotiations were brought to completion by W. G. Barber, General Manager of Canadian National Telegraphs

At the present time, Canadian National Telegraphs have 182,000 miles of wire in service and they operate 1932 telegraph offices within the Dominion. The addition of the Western Union property in Canada will add to this 6,670 miles of wire and 184 offices. In addition to this physical mileage of wire, the Canadian National System has its carrier current channels across the Dominion, on which twelve channels can operate at the same time in each direction, thus obviating the necessity for thousands of miles of individual mileage of wire.

Up to this time the commercial telegraph business on the lines of the former Intercontinental Railways have been operated by the Western Union Telegraph Company The purchase of this property Mr Robb stated gives to Canadian National telegraphs complete control of all commercial facilities on the lines of the Canadian National System from Nova Scotia to British Columbia, and thus finally rounds out a complete transcontinental system A few of the principal cities which will now be served by Canadian National facilities direct are Halifax, Sydney, New Glasgow Truro and Yarmouth in Nova Scotia, Saint John and Moncton in New Brunswick and Charlottetown, P.E.I

Holidayers Must Have Their Paper

Staff Begins to Think They Are Appreciated

Members of the Standard staff have been talking would-be subscribers of the value of the paper and we know that they have almost come to believe it themselves, and a series of incidents during the past week have led them to the belief that the Standard is appreciated in spite of everything Late last week a subscriber asked to have his paper forwarded for some six weeks to the States as he was making a visit there This didn't make much of an impression, nor did the second vacation bound forthcome who came the following day with the same request, but when two more subscribers wandered in and wanted their copies forwarded for various periods of two week to two months, the editor called with the office dog and the compositor, being disheartened, began to think that there must be something in their limericks, all

FERRARI & DICROSTI TRIO

A wee slip of a girl who plays the accordion like a master, a man who plays the violin-cello and a musician of rare excellence, a dainty miss who dances like the premier dancers of the Metropolitan Opera House, comprise the Ferrari and DiCrosti Trio These three accomplished entertainers have an act that always pleases the most fastidious audiences Dressed in Neapolitan costume they play melodies on all sorts of brass instruments while the girl whirls around the stage in terpsichorean ecstasies that are amazing and entrancing.

Miss Ferrari is an accomplished musician on the piano accordion, playing from opera to jazz always keeps the audience entertained, and in the violin-cello she has the audience singing with her 100 part plays a number of brass instruments wonderfully well both as solos as well as in duets with Miss Ferrari

They have played the leading vaudeville circuits throughout the world and have received, and this is the first season they will play the great outdoors, and there is no doubt that they will meet with success everywhere

This act is entirely different from any acts you have seen heretofore performs before the grand stand, and to say the audience will be pleased is putting it mildly.

Has Gained Popularity

County Contest Teaching Toledo School Children Facts About Canada

A Canadian essay contest in the Toledo Ohio, schools, sponsored by Edmund G. Odette, M.P., for East Lorne, has gained such popularity in that city that one of the newspapers now is carrying a daily feature entitled "Facts About Canada."

"Canada," one of the Toledo papers pointed out, "is a big source of home-owners in the farming district 75 per cent. of the people owning their own homes."

Other facts listed from day to day deal with Canada's natural resources, its hydro power, its fishing and its industrial enterprises.

The competition among the Toledo school children was started last fall when Mr. Odette, addressing the North Toledo improvement association, offered to pay the expenses of a trip to Ottawa for the author of the best essay on "Canada."

The personal received such a favorable impression in Toledo, that the chamber of commerce there offered to do likewise for a second student. The object of the essay contest and the trip, is to promote a better understanding between the people of the adjoining countries.

A Pleasing Incident

Beef and Bands Children Are Entertained To a Lecture

This pleasing and pathetic little incident took place in Montreal recently, at the largest health exhibit ever shown in Canada, when the Canadian Social Hygiene Council assisted the Montreal Federation of French Health Agencies in a practical demonstration.

Morning, afternoon, and evening, health lectures were given, thousands of school children being carried free on the street cars. And one day they brought all the little deaf and dumb children in Montreal.

They gathered that silent company in the big lecture hall and placed them in little groups of fifteen or so around lady teachers. Each teacher faced the lecturer, and the children solemnly looked at their teachers. And then the lecturer began to speak to the children, while they stood, unbemusing and watched their teachers.

He spoke only a few sentences and stopped. And all the teachers began to move their fingers, translating the lines. The children's eyes followed eagerly as they under stood the words that were being repeated to them, the crude native language that they could not understand until it was translated into it.

Children are notably flighty at lectures but not so these youngsters in that hall. Never before in the world did it was enough to bring tears to many eyes that watched them. They were being brought into closer touch with the world of their voiced playmates, their partial isolation was being temporarily broken down. To each of them, that lecture was a big event.

Out Of Their Element

Eskimo Boys Cannot Stand Climate Of Eastern Canada

Ben Eli, nine-year-old son of Chief John Eli, head of the Southampton Island Eskimos, and Sam Podlutt, who have been endeavoring to learn the ways of civilization at Lakefield preparatory school, near Peterboro, Ont., have been forced to give up their studies there and hurry home on account of illness.

Ben and Sam soon became favorites at the Lakefield school where they have been for two years, but before Christmas both were forced to relinquish their studies to face an ordeal of sickness. Influenza, pneumonia, measles, tonsilitis and operations for mastoids and adenoids proved too gruelling a test, for little Eskimo constitutions and it has been decided to send them back to their northern home.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JULY 14

EZEKIEL TEACHES PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY

Golden Text: "Each one of us shall give account of himself to God." — Romans 14:12.

Lesson: Ezekiel 18:1-32; 33:1-20.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 139.

Explanations and Comments

The Prophet's Responsibility. verses 7-9.—Ezekiel is set as a watchman unto the house of Israel. He must hear the word of Jehovah and he must proclaim it; for as a watchman he is responsible for warning the people of the consequences of sin. He must know that God punishes wickedness, and he must warn the wicked from his way. If he fails in his duty of warning and the wicked man dies in his iniquity, the prophet is "blood guilty," accountable to God for that sin. However, the prophet warns the man and the man fails to heed him, the prophet has "delivered his soul," he is free from guilt in the matter. His was the responsibility, not the following obedience, but of uttering the warning. Recall how Paul declared to the elders of Ephesus that he shrank not from declaring unto them anything that was profitable, and taught them publicly, and from house to house, testifying both to Jews and to Greeks repentance toward God, wherefore he test fled unto them that he was pure from the blood of all men. (Acts 20:20-27).

"No one of us is free from the danger of taking spiritual alligators too lightly. If we are Christ's disciples at all, surely it is essential to be the word of reconciliat ion.' We are not in true relation to God if we are intimately connected with the destinies of men." It is within our power to speak words which make our eternal difference to those who hear us, and upon our faithfulness may depend their opportunity of realizing the only way of escape and life. And yet how often are we content with commending words to God rather than the service of a true watchman" — J Stuart Holden.

Heating By Radio

Controlled Stoves No Have Superseded Them Sending Music Around World

While some, perhaps many, of the wonders prophesied for days to come may be far-fetched and foisted on a gullible public, all the amazing triumps of the modern age were once in a similar case. Had anyone foretold the coming of radio not so long ago, ridicule would have been his portion. So the telephone was a miracle in its day, and the typewriter had to fight its way into universal use. Who could have foreseen the place the automobile was destined to occupy from its first examples or t induced people to believe that white coal could be harnessed for the service of mankind. Now we are told that radio will bring light and power to our homes and industries and provide heat as well. Centralized stoves instead of control heating plants are no more impossible than sending music around the world without wires.

Just a stove for the entire city and that raised 1,000 feet in the air, is the possibility announced by Paris, France. The scheme entails the establishment of friction ovens up to west from the top of the Eiffel Tower. In each house there would be set up a machine, like, yes unlike a radio, that would intercept the waves, transform them into heat and become a radiator to warm the rooms. The proposed waves would be, of 400 to 500 volts in waves of two to three meters' length. All that is required is to place on the receiving posts a filament that the wireless flow will raise to a condescending heat will have your stove until. Given enough such filament units and you have the only way of escape and life. And yet how often are we content with commending words to God rather than the service of a true watchman" — J Stuart Holden.

Who could have foreseen the place the automobile was destined to occupy from its first examples or t induced people to believe that white coal could be harnessed for the service of mankind. Now we are told that radio will bring light and power to our homes and industries and provide heat as well. Centralized stoves instead of control heating plants are no more impossible than sending music around the world without wires.

Just a stove for the entire city and that raised 1,000 feet in the air, is the possibility announced by Paris, France. The scheme entails the establishment of friction ovens up to west from the top of the Eiffel Tower In each house there would be set up a machine, like, yes unlike a radio, that would intercept the waves, transform them into heat and become a radiator to warm the rooms. The proposed waves would be, of 400 to 500 volts in waves of two to three meters' length. All that is required is to place on the receiving posts a filament that the wireless flow will raise to a condescending heat will have your stove until. Given enough such filament units and you have the only way of escape and life. And yet how often are we content with commending words to God rather than the service of a true watchman" — J Stuart Holden.

The Singing Fool

By HUBERT DAIL

Copyright, 1928, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

SYNOPSIS

After a night of revelry at a New York uptown night club, Marcus, the famous revue producer, takes a party of four to Mme. Joe's downtown club, which stays open until morning. Marcus orders the "ringside table" by Al Stone, Blackie's chief comedian and singing waiter, who takes their order for beer. Al is unaware of Marcus's identity. Grace, the cigarette girl, is devoted to Al and really in love with him, but he does not care. Al fills the order for beers and on his return from the bar meets Molly, the head singer in her dressing room. He serves tonight her as if drawn by a magnet. He is in love with her, but Molly is indifferent to him

CHAPTER III.

Al entered Molly's dressing room, depositing his tray of beers on a nearby stand. He forgot the drinks, forgot the party of fashionably dressed men and women who were impatiently waiting for them in the big room outside, forgot everything except the girl he adored —Molly.

He stood quietly by her side for a moment, saying nothing. And Molly, the ballad singer, continued deftly the business of making up, as she sat before the dressing table. She wished to goodness that this singing waiter, who was always composing silly songs, would terminate his affections to someone else. But, finally, she couldn't escape the penetrating delight of his eyes as he bent gazed over her shoulder at her decidedly attractive reflection in the mirror She turned her head with a sigh of resignation, and said ambiguously:

"Ain't love grand!"

Al did not know quite what she meant by that. If she were spoofing him, well, she could be didn't mind Whatever she said she couldn't prevent his loving her But now her remark unlocked the flood gates of his speech

"I can't help it, Molly. If I'm crazy about you," he whispered ardently coming still closer. "I've been that way ever since the first time I saw you I think you're the most beautiful girl in the world on the level I do"

Al longed to reach out and stroke her glossy golden hair; he wanted to smash her powdered and made up face and pull her close to him. But he realized he couldn't do that now, her attitude said so plainly. "Stand off!"

As for Molly, she was mildly pleased and flattered at the impression she had made. No woman dislikes being called the most beautiful girl in the world, even if she doesn't love the man who says it, Al, after all, he was just a singing waiter, a chap with no prospects. She said to him crisply::

"Why yourself, waiter."

The remark should have been like a slap in the face to Al. But it wasn't. If he had stopped to think he would have known she addressed him as "waiter" simply to humiliate him.

"You know, Molly," he began earnestly. "I'm not going to be a waiter all my life. Some day I'm going to sell some of the songs I've written. Don't you see, Molly, that it's just have you by my side I can do it. I can write ballads that will put you over big—make you the talk of Broadway."

Molly's boredom was apparent

"Oh, run along, Al. I've heard all that talk before."

But Al scarcely heard her words. He was reaching in his coat pocket for some of the songs he had written. He drew them out, sorted them in nervous haste, and produced the one most previous to him "Always." This was the heart-throb song he had written just the night before, thinking of Molly every moment during the creation of it. As he had penned the words and arranged the music he had visualized Molly singing it in her deep, sonorous rich voice to voice. It was her song; she had inspired it completely

Molly had returned to her make-up boxes; she did not even glance up as Al extended the song for her inspection.

"Molly!" he pleaded desperately. "Can't you see that,' although I can't talk the way I feel, I can write my feelings into music. I've written this song just for you I want you to do something for me—sing it to night."

Al's beseeching tone would have brought a sympathetic response from almost any woman, but not Molly She was humming softly to herself as if to drown out the words. Nevertheless, the hero stood on the nearby table, the while, feathery foam gone from their tops. Meanwhile, Marcus the great producer, was in the outside room raging at the delay

He rapped peremptorily on the table and finally summ-mer Blackie Joe himself to make a complaint. Blackie bet-ted, nodded rapidly and then bended for the bar in search of Al But at the doorway he glanced down the corridor and saw his singing waiter in earnest confab with Molly. Blackie took the situation in at a glance, but decided not to hast out Al. After all, when a man's in love, you must expect him to be balmy, reasoned Blackie. He stepped to the doorway and said, not unkindly:

"Come on, Al—on the job."

Al turned to his tray of beers but, before picking it up, thrust his precious song on Molly's dressing table before her.

"Read the words, please," he begged and, catching up his tray vanished.

Blackie Joe stood nonchalantly in the doorway, one hand thrust into his trousers' pocket, staring after Al's retreating back. Then the proprietor turned to Molly.

"Molly, do your stuff tonight. Marcus is out in front."

Molly straightened as if touched by an electric shock. All trace of boredom vanished.

"Shut my mouth, Blackie! You don't mean it—not Marcus who puts on the real revues?"

"No one else but." said Blackie, nodding delightedly.

The girl at Molly's eyes was replaced by a cool, calculating stare. Marcus was outside—want an opportunity! Marcus, whose approval meant fame!

"Blackie," she begged, "introduce me?"

Blackie nodded—"Okay, I'll do that"—and returned to his floor show. Molly powdered her nose, putting their stuff near the Marcus table, while Al was serving the beers to his guests.

As Blackie came closer, he heard Marcus's protesting voice:

"There's a fly in my beer!"

Al leaned over, quick as a flash, and answered:

"That's no fly—that's the band waiting there."

Marcus turned away in annoyance. Al shouldn't wisecrack that way to a customer, thought Blackie. It was all right with the regular patrons, but not with anyone like Marcus. Blackie decided to make smooth things out, Al had picked up the glass and hurried off to bring a new beer.

At the bar doorway he again confronted Molly in her most gorgeous costume, garbed for conquest

"Molly, did you like it?"

"Like what?"

"My song. Will you sing it?"

Molly's eyes flashed in sudden anger. "For heaven's sake, Al, let me alone! I'm busy with business enough tonight. I didn't read it and I won't sing it! That's flat!"

As Al reeled before her lashing words his gaze dropped. His song lay on the floor under Molly's slim high curving foot.

Finger Print System

Clever Crook Found Method To Puzzle Police Of Three Continents

The finger print as a means of identification has ceased to be infallible. Quite apart from the ordinary use of rubber gloves, there is at least one on record of a crook who threw doubt upon the whole international System of this method of identification. This criminal was Louis Chabollere, a French doctor who disgraced himself in the profession, served a sentence in prison, and then became a burglar. Once outside the prison gates he set himself the task of finding a method by which he could defeat the finger-print system. He used his professional knowledge to secure a job in the School of Medicine at Lyons. There, with great skill, he contrived to take the skin from the thumbs and fingers of a corpse, being careful afterwards to hide his handiwork by applying chemicals that speeded-up decomposition.

He then mounted the skin on specially prepared parchment, and set out upon a series of audacious burglaries. He deliberately left fingerprints, and stopped up his ears with teething pains and promote healthful sleep. Natural salt deposits, which cattle are fond of licking, are common all over the world, but in this case the animals have apparently been subsisting whole and satisfying meals from the earth itself. So far they have made a cave 10 feet high and 50 feet across deep into the mountain—and they are still eating. They have almost entirely given up eating grass, but they have the appearance of being thoroughly well fed.

Samples of the earth from the cave have been sent to Johannesburg analysts. It is easily crumbled into fine dust and is practically tasteless to the human tongue Experts state it appears to be a clay containing potash and mineral salts, which would make it attractive to cattle with an abnormal appetite

Contract Awarded For New Fair Buildings

Dancing Pavilion and Main Exhibit Hall to be Erected

The Vermilion Agricultural Society has awarded the contract for the erection of a dancing pavilion and a main exhibit building to R. D. Fraser, local building contractor. The pavilion will be 36 feet wide by 80 feet long and will cost in the vicinity of $1000.00. The plan of the building will ensure plenty of air and freedom of exit. Work has already been started and the building is scheduled to be ready for the fair which opens on August 13th.

The exhibit building will take the place of the old sheet metal covered structure that has done service as the main exhibit hall since the grounds were established on the south side. This building will now be taken down and converted into a barn or shed at the other end of the grounds. The dining hall will be removed and turned around so that it will be looking north instead of south as at present. All the buildings will be on the south side of a street extending from the entrance to the horse and cattle barns with a space of some 30 feet between each building. These intervening locations will be available for private exhibitors, machinery, etc. The exhibit hall will be the best building and the dancing pavilion the last. There will be a clear and unobstructed view of the grounds from one end to the other.

The main building will be 32 feet wide by 50 feet long. The total cost of the proposed buildings and changes will be considerably over $2000.00.

Holick's Livery Barn Destroyed By Fire

Spectacular Blaze Early Monday Morning

Fire which broke out at about 1.30 Monday morning, completely razed the livery barn and feed stables of John Holick, who has been in the business here for the past ten years, and caused a small amount of damage to his residence situated in the path of the flames in the east of the town. Owing to the hour of the fire the building was a mass of roaring flames when the alarm was given and the fire brigade turned their attention to insuring the safety of other buildings in the danger zone. All livestock was safely removed from the barn.

The building consisted of the barn originally erected by W. H. Trimble away back in Vermilion's history, and an annex added by Mr. Holick. It was the oldest log barn left in the town and regarded as immune to the epidemic of livery barn fires with which this town is afflicted. The fire marked the fourth barn fire in the block where it was located and the seventh in the history of Vermilion. No cause has been given, but there was never using part of the loft for sleeping purposes.

The burned building was covered by $1500.00 insurance, while the house, which was damaged slightly, carried $700 insurance Mr Holick will not re-build

Weed Conference

A special weed conference was held in the School of Agriculture under the Weed and Weed Commissioner of the Province.

A cut was by long odds the best meeting of this kind that has ever been held in the district. Besides W. J Stephen, weed and weed commissioner of the supervisors from Northern Alberta were in attendance, and as well the municipal inspectors from a great many districts

There were 66 delegates in attendance when the meeting opened at 1 p.m. This number gradually increased until there were 85 at the afternoon session. This was so much business that the meeting did not adjourn until 7 p.m.

W. J Stephen, principal of the school welcomed the delegates and visitors Mr H Ford, weed supervisor for the Vermilion district delivered an address of welcome. A very helpful hour was spent with Mr. Tanner of Edmonton on the identification and eradication of weeds. A great many samples were brought in from various districts which were used for this purpose.

W. J Stephen spoke on the Weed Act" as it applies to the province. His talk was very practical and to the point

Mr. Foster discussed the question of perennials with Mr. Weir as the chairman. Further discussion on weeds

Delegates were present from as far west as Westlock, Bon Accord, Wetaskiwin, Wainwright and Lloydminster. It was announced one of the best and largest meetings yet held

The Prince of Wales, former Premier Stanley Baldwin and many prominent persons were present at a dinner in honor of the occasion.

Mr. Baldwin, who is one of the Rhodes trustees, made the important announcement that for the first time since Germans were excluded from the scholarships during the Great War, German scholars would again be admitted as Rhodes scholars. He said the trustees, subject to the consent of the university authorities, would establish two German scholarships annually, tenable for two years only.

Man's Dress Of the Future

Weird Costumes Are Described That May Be Worn a Hundred Years Hence

Somewhat fantastic is the prediction of a New York clothier regarding the character of the dress for men one hundred years from now. He says legs will be bare from the ankles to the knee and that wide shorts will take the place of trous ers for every-day business wear Coats will disappear and be replaced by a combination jacket and shirt open at the neck like a polo shirt Bright sandals will send shoes into the discard.

The only explanation of this nightmare is that mere men must be getting jealous of the sensible manner in which women are dressing in this day and generation. But, as a matter of fact, anything can happen in a hundred years. What most of us forget is that styles for men are just as likely to change as anything else In the earlier days our forefathers dressed in a fashion which, if worn on the streets of Philadelphia today, would attract universal attention Wigs with pigtails, silk and satin knee breeches, gay stockings and low, buckled shoes were always in order for the well-dressed man.

It would not be so revolutionary if we were to go back to the dress, as well as to the principles, of the men of 1776.- Philadelphia Inquirer.

Rubber From Weeds

Edison Experimented With Many Varieties Before He Was Successful

Mr. Thomas A. Edison has discovered a substitute for rubber. He long ago found that there could be no substitute for the rubber tree as the source of rubber, but he has discovered a weed after experimenting with 17,000 varieties which will produce a latex fluid from which a workable substitute for rubber can be extracted. The weed can be moved into wheat, it was asserted by Mr. Edison's representative, and does not require planting anew every year, being a perennial. Mr. Edison has already been engaged in experiments with the object of making a machine which will separate the rubber substitute from other components of the fluid, but he has so far not been successful in this direction.

Church Of England Sends British Land-Owner To Jail Without Trial

The British public has just found a new and unusual sensation in what the press characterizes as an amazing case involving the right of the Church of England in some instances to send people to prison without recourse to the ordinary civil courts.

John Stevens, a wealthy Cambridge land owner, is now in Bedford jail, where he was sent by the ecclesiastical court at Ely, while a force of lawyers is trying to get him out. Stevens refused to repair the church of St. Edmund, standing on the property he recently bought. Under the terms of the old deed he was said to be bound to repair the church, but he maintained this clause had lapsed through disuse.

The ecclesiastical court thereupon imprisoned Stevens under a law passed during the reign of William IV., giving the church such power in strict cases relating to church or church property. His relatives repaired the church immediately. But Stevens caused get out of prison until the church court meets and considers a petition for his release.

Trade Within Empire

If we are to sell more to Australia we must be prepared to buy more from her. Trade cannot be built up on a selfish basis. Under present conditions Canada has an advantage over her sister Dominion of three to one in dollars. But if we purchase many of the articles from Australia which we now purchase from the United States, the trading exchange between this country and the Antipodes soon would grow to considerable proportions, to the mutual advantage of both these parts of the Empire.—Victoria Times.

ISRAEL'S TURN IS HERE

Golden Text: "Of the increase of his government and of peace there shall be no end."—Isaiah 9:7.

Lesson: Ezekiel 47:1-12.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 100.

Explanations and Comments

The Source Of the River, verses 1, 2.—The prophet Ezekiel is describing his great vision. He sees from his view of the temple, its courts and its worship as they are to be in the new Jerusalem, and now his supernatural guide brings him once again to the door of the temple. There he beholds a stream flowing underneath the threshold waters issue.

The river starts from the sanctuary: from every temple, every influence should stream that quickens and makes the life of all around it. The river sought the most direct course to the desert and the Dead Sea: the Church should carry the water of life to the waste places, the dreary, barren, thirsty places of the world. Is the life of our church limited to its own outer and inner courts?

The Deepening Stream, verses 3-5.—He follows the river with his guide, who measures with a line the distances they travel. A quarter of a mile (one thousand cubits) away from the temple, Ezekiel finds the water up to his ankles. (A cubit varied in length from eighteen to twenty-one inches.) The waters rapidly deepen and he continues their way, and when a half mile is measured the waters reach his knees; three-quarters of a mile, and it is up to his waist; and at the edge of a mile the waters have become a river too deep for them" to ford, deep enough to swim in.

"Ezekiel's pictures may seem to us, in part, mechanical and fantastic, if not grotesque; but it is not difficult for a sympathetic imagination to appreciate the thing Ezekiel would be at, or to share his hopeful and eager wonder at the possibilities of the future time when the Church has secured her true place in the land and in the hearts of the people.

"The background of this vision is a sick and hungry world. This is incidentally suggested by the very bad words of the description, where the fruit of the healing river upon its banks is to be for food, and their leaves for healing. Food for the famishing and healing for the sick souls of earth! These things the Church must be able to provide, or she is no church. The trees with their wholesome fruit and health-giving leaves, are nourished by the waters of the river, and the river has its source in the house of God. Everything shall live whithersoever the river of her life cometh. If this is not literally true, it is ideally true. She has food and healing to offer and she was willing to be fed and healed by her. She can express her life in an infinite variety of ways, and she has an inexhaustible supply of inspiring herself to the various needs of men. ... Ezekiel twelve times a year, do not trees yield their fruit." — J. E. McFadyen.

Appreciation Of Spain

Officers Of British Aircraft Carrier "Eagle" Decorated By Spanish Premier

Premier De Rivera, of Spain, summoned the officers of British aircraft carrier "Eagle," to be decorated with the Spanish Cross of Merit for saving Commander Ramon Franco and his three companions from the mid-Atlantic. The ceremony took place in Madrid.

It was Spain's crowning gesture of appreciation for the great service rendered Franco's plane in the Spanish government in rescuing the fliers. As soon as the full list of the members of the crew of the "Eagle" is received from the British admiralty the sailors and marines of the rescuing ship also will be awarded medals.

The "Eagle" itself will be decorated with special medals. This ceremony will take place either at Algeciras or Gibraltar, as soon as the British admiralty finds it convenient to send the ship there for that purpose.

One of the impressive things of modern life is to stand and watch a single policeman dam the flow of traffic. And hear the pedestrian.

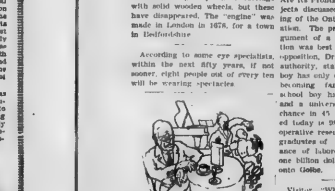
WINDOLITE
The Improved Glass Substitute
MADE IN ENGLAND



COMES WITH A MESSAGE OF HEALTH

THE sun is the all-powerful life, producer, Nature's universal disinfectant and germ destroyer as well as illuminant and tonic. WINDOLITE is the sun's most important ally.

Medical research has definitely proved that from the point of view of Health and Hygiene, the most effective among the sun's rays are the Ultra-Violet rays, which possess the greatest power for the prevention and cure of disease and debility.

Science has further established that ordinary window glass does not allow the passage of Ultra-Violet rays, so that by using glass we are artificially excluding these vital health-giving rays Therefore, the invention of WINDOLITE has completely satisfied the long-felt want. Exhaustive experiments have conclusively proved that it is a most effective substitute for glass, that it freely admits the Ultra-Violet rays, and that its use has a most beneficial effect on the growth and development of plants and chickens and on the well-being of cattle, enabled for the first time to have healthy light instead of darkness in their sheds.

Indeed, the discovery of WINDOLITE has during the last six years completely revolutionised gardening, given a new stimulus to poultry breeding, increasing the egg-laying capacity and fertility of chickens, has greatly improved the health of cattle and is now being used in domestic and household requirements.

WINDOLITE stands for 100 per cent. sunlight. It makes light for strong workers for cattle sheds, dairies, stables, poultry houses, brooders and all out buildings It is economical, unbreakable, flexible and is easy to cut and fit. It is now being successfully used for sunrooms, verandahs, schools, factories, hospitals, garages, bede, plant coverings and greenhouses. It keeps out cold and will not crack or chip.—cuts with an ordinary pair of scissors and is easy to fit. WINDOLITE is supplied in rolls any length but in one width of 36 inches only A square yard of WINDOLITE weighs about 14 ozs., while a square yard of glass of ordinary thickness, weighs about 126 to 126 ozs. The improved WINDOLITE requires no varnish. WINDOLITE is made in England.

Telegraph System Crosses Canada

Canadian National Buys Western Union Land Lines In Maritime Provinces

That the Canadian National Telegraphs will acquire and operate the complete land mileage of Western Union Telegraphs in the Maritime Provinces of Canada, as from July 1st, was announced recently by W. D. Robb, vice-president in charge of telegraphs and telephone services of the Canadian National Railways, Montreal. Negotiations for the purchase of the Western Union land lines in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, and Prince Edward Island have been under way for some time, fulfilment of this project having been sought by Mr. Robb, and these negotiations were brought to completion by W. G. Barber, general manager of Canadian National Telegraphs.

At the present time, Canadian National Telegraphs have 18,000 miles of wire in service and they operate 1,943 telegraph offices within the Dominion. The acquisition of the Western Union property in Canada will add to this 6,670 miles of wire and 158 offices. In addition to this physical mileage of wire, the Canadian National System has its carrier current channels operating in Edmonton, on which twelve channels can operate at the same time in each direction, thus obviating the necessity for thousands of miles of individual mileage of wires.

Up to this time the commercial telegraph business on the lines of the former Intercolonial Railways have been operated by the Western Union Telegraph Company. The personnel of this property Mr. Robb stated, gives to Canadian National telegraphs complete control of all commercial facilities on the lines of the Canadian National System from Nova Scotia to British Columbia, and thus finally rounds out a complete transcontinental system. A few of the principal cities which will now be served by Canadian National facilities direct are: Halifax, Sydney, New Glasgow, Truro and Yarmouth, in Nova Scotia, Saint John and Moncton in New Brunswick, and Charlottetown, P.E.I.

A Wheat Disease

Disease Known As "Browning" Causes Considerable Loss

A disease known as "Browning," causes considerable losses in wheat fields. It is most readily observed during the seedling stage. This disease is included in a number that come under the head of root-rots that are dealt with in Circular No. 72 of the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa. The Dominion Botanist, Mr. H. T. Gussow, the author of the Circular, states that the summer fallow crop is commonly affected with this disease. When the seedlings are from four to six weeks old the lower leaves suddenly turn brownish and die.

This root-rot generally appears in large patches, and from the appearance of the affected patch the name "Browning" was given. Later in the season the diseased areas show a thin stand of single tiller plants surrounded by an abundant weed growth While certain parasitic fungi are commonly associated with this trouble, its real cause has not yet been determined. Other root-rots of cereals are described in the circular which is obtainable from the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa.

An Ancient Fire Engine

The oldest known fire "engine" in England has found a home at the London Museum. It is a large oval wooden tub, and water was pumped through an iron pipe in the middle. It rested originally on a carriage with solid wooden wheels, but these have disappeared. The "engine" was made in London in 1678, for a town in Bedfordshire

Idea Of French Doctor

Blood Transfusion Was First Tried In Sixteenth Century

Blood transfusion, which is the process of injecting into the veins of one person the blood of another, is not, as so many of us believe, a strictly modern innovation of recent medical or surgical science. It has, however, had its greatest development and perfection within the last century.

Peculiarly enough, the orthodox medical treatment for most illnesses was even as late as the sixteenth century—the process of blood letting. However, by 1667, Dr. Baptiste Denys, physician to Louis XIV., of France, had become thoroughly skeptical of the therapeutic value of curing a sickness by removing the blood of a sufferer. It occurred to him that it was more logical to furnish the patient with a fresh supply, rather than to delete his existing one.

So he tried it out on a child just about dead from repeated bleedings, using lamb's blood. Luckily for his theory, the patient recovered, and the new idea took root. It was not until the nineteenth century, though, that the science of blood transfusion began to achieve perfection. Today, of course, it is a commonplace operation. There are persons who make a practice of it, the fee varying from $25 to $75 a pint.

The Yield Of Raspberries

Methods Used At Experimental Farm, At Nappan, Described In Bulletin

As much as 200 bushels to the acre of raspberries have been harvested at the experimental farm, at Ottawa. In a planting of the Herbert variety in a row ninety feet in length a rate of 208 bushels per acre was taken in each of two years. From a row ninety feet in length the average was 229 bushels to the acre. The red Brighton variety yielded over 200 bushels. The heaviest yield harvested by Ottawa, was at the rate of 339 bushels and 26 pounds, estimating the crop at 33 pounds to the basket. This was for the Herbert variety in a row 36 feet long. The methods by which these yields were obtained are told in a new bulletin numbered 114 of the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, entitled "Raspberry and Its Cultivation In Canada." Mr. M. H. Davis of the horticultural division of the experimental farms, the author, names as among the best yielding varieties Viking, Latham, Newman, and Herbert.

Various Names Attached To Staple Article Of Diet

This is amusing to a housekeeper. In Australia toast is dubbed "Spanish toast," and probably in Spain they might not know it under any name and would speak of it as "American toast." The French also refer to it as "pain perdu," or lost bread, apparently because it offered a means of using stale bread. After you have dipped your bread in the batter of egg and milk and fried it to a golden brown, it is served in Paris with sugar sprinkled over it to taste. But the American groceries have maple syrup, which can be recommended to the French housekeeper and which imparts a delicate flavor impossible to get with mere

The Bill For Ignorance

Cost To Country Is Our Billion Dollars Per Year

"Does Education Pay, and What Are Its Profits?" was one of the subjects discussed at the recent meeting of the Ontario Education Association. The president quoted the argument of a bookseller that education was not worth while—pointing in opposition, Dr. Sanger, a recognized authority, stated: "A public school boy has only one chance in 9,000 of becoming famous, while a high school boy has one chance in 450, and a university graduate has one chance in 45. The prosperity enjoyed today is 98 per cent. due to co-operative research on the part of graduates of science. The ignorance of laborers costs the country one billion dollars per year. Interested In Sheep

Eight-Year-Old B.C. Boy Youngest Stockman In Canada

Fraser Kenneth MacKenzie, of Rocks, near Victoria, Vancouver Island, is eight years old, and the owner of nine sheep, assembled by his own initiative. He is also a fully accredited member of the McKenzie Sheep Breeders' Association, and, as such, is believed by the members to be the youngest real stockman in the Dominion. He is the youngest member of his own family.

When less than five years old, Fraser exchanged a goat kid, that had been given to him by a neighbor, for a ram lamb. This lamb when ready for market was exchanged, after some dickering with the local butcher, for an ewe. In due time the ewe produced two lambs, one a ram which was also exchanged, when fat, for another ewe. These three ewes this spring, brought to the young owner, three pairs of twins. His Scottish ancestry, which is unmistakable from his name, kept him on the job with most happy results.

Fraser's objective is one hundred ewes. To expedite matters he has already arranged for exchanging all his lambs for mature ewes. The MacKenzie holdings are across of logged-off land which are at his disposal. When other school boys are playing Fraser is doing a brisk trade in sowing grass seed in accordance with methods approved by experimental farm men. The future of the sheep industry is safe with such youngsters to promote its interests.

Rapid Development In West

Many Resources Being Opened Up In Northern Area

There is no question that Western Canada is on the threshold of a new era of development. The first period was the stage of pioneer settlement, when it was actually necessary to break the natural prairie sod, and virgin soil in order to produce the crops. Then came the great period of agricultural expansion, when the prairies became the wheat basket of the world. Now the west is expanding in its becoming an industrial country; it is developing mining in the north; it is opening up many other resources. It is becoming a many-sided country. The next decade should be a great one in Canada, and particularly for Northern and Western Canada. The north is coming into its own.

Wealth In Lowly Muskrat

Industry Likely To Become As Popular As Fur Farming

The lowly muskrat is taking a place in the sun. The demand for his fur is growing and the muskrat pond is becoming as popular an investment as was the fox farm a few years ago. The sloughs of the prairies and the swamps of other provinces may soon be producing wealth where formerly they were considered waste places. It will be in spots like these that the Muskrat will be raised. Muskrat companies are being incorporated in many provinces, and a new source of wealth is being put under business control with fully as good a prospect for the investor as the fox farm in its early stages. A Healthy Profession

Large Number Of Famous Players Attained Remarkable Age

The attainment of an 80th anniversary by Dame Madge Kendal prompts us to emphasize the healthiness of acting as a profession. Edmund Kean died at 46, and Garrick at 63, but a remarkable number of famous players of the past exceeded the "allotted span" of three score and ten. Fitzhugh Ludlow, 74; Jefferson, 73; Mrs Siddons and Buckstone, 72; Macready and Ellen Terry, 80; Sir Charles Wyndham, 82; Fanny Kemble, 85; Kitty Clive and Mrs. Bracegirdle, 85; Sir Squire Bancroft and Genevieve Ward, 86; Dowton and Yates, 87, are the longest lived of all seems to have been Macklin, who died at 107, having lived under five sovereigns and seen 21 administrations rise and fall.

VERMILION FAIR, AUG. 7, 8, 9. — THE MORALES FAMILY

One would have to travel very far to find a family that could ever dare to hope to equal, for versatility and cleverness, the astounding numbers presented by the world renowned Morales Family, who descended from a long line of circus aerialists.

This remarkable group of artists fill the whole career of circus feats during the course of their exhibition including a double high wire number in which somersaults on a single wire and the unprecedented comedy trampoline offering in which the entire company participates will undoubtedly create a sensation never equalled by any other number being an outstanding feature.

A fast 30 foot quarter mile race track built up and surfaced like a good tennis court will be ready for the 59th annual Dominion track and field championships to be held at Banff next Labor Day. The infield has been specially prepared and renewed and the grand stand enlarged and will be the first time the Dominion championships have been held in Alberta since 1922.

Situated in the heart of the Rockies and of a huge natural game reserve and refuge, the annual at Banff are naturally very same. Recently a bull elk who had been following with keen interest a game of golf played by Lou Crosby, charter member of the Banff Golf Club, picked up the ball after it had been played onto the 14th green, chewed it and finally dropped it in a bunker. Mr. Crosby is willing to take his affidavit that this occurred as described.

Opening of the Pines Hotel at Digby, Nova Scotia, late in June marks the interest taken by the Canadian Pacific Railway in Maritime Provinces tourist traffic. The hotel is handsomely appointed with special swimming and golf facilities and is a centre from which many interesting trips through the Evangeline country and all over Nova Scotia can be made.

New St. Paul School

ST. PAUL, Alta. July 17—The ratepayers of this town voted on Monday in favor of the new high school by-law to cost $40,000. There were some objections to the scheme but on account of the increase in taxation it would mean but the by-law was passed by a large majority.

An Indian grave, discovered by accident by Canadian Pacific employees at work near Brooks, Alberta, last May, is considered by experts to be between 300 and 400 years old. It is thought the grave was originally above ground but the passage of centuries had buried the grave below the soil. An Irrigation ditch was being constructed when the grave was discovered.

Tri-motored airplanes are being launched in one of the most particular flights in the history of aviation. War has been declared by the Canadian Government on the spruce bud worm and the airplane is to be the principal arm of the service. Planes each carry 1,500 pounds of powder, and will dust it while flying low, over the tree tops.

The blueberry industry is showing much improvement in Yarmouth and Shelburne counties, Nova Scotia. Last year there were only 4,000 acres of crown land burned for blueberry growing; this year 10,000 acres have been reported. Value of crop last year was $65,000 and it is estimated that the crop this year will be increased to half a million dollars.

The province of Alberta has inherited Old Age Pensions, the funds for which are provided by co-operation between the federal and provincial governments. The scheme has been adopted by all Canadian provinces from the Quebec boundary westward.

Though crops in several parts of Western Canada would be benefited by rains, crop outlook on the whole is very promising. Reports from all parts of Saskatchewan are definitely encouraging. While Alberta report is good, especially the Peace River district, the prospects indicate one of the best crops on record. About 25,000,000 acres are sown to wheat in Canada this year. Last year the Dominion harvested over 322,700,000 bushels of wheat, the largest crop in the country's history.

The fourth annual midsummer gathering of the Swedish-Canadian Lavorie held a three-day convention at Lac du Bonet, Manitoba, recently and decided to build a home for Old Swedish folks at Winnipeg. Another feature of the gathering was a parade of old Swedish folk-dancing and scenes presented in old-time costume. Many of the dances were the same who appeared at the Regina Festival last year in the year at the Saskatchewan hotel in that city.

A list of extraordinary accidents has recently been published comprising to motorists at level crossings and including the following:—Locomotive driver parked car on tracks and went to sleep. 46 motorists drove into the sides of moving trains. 26 drove into the sides of standing trains. One tried unsuccessfully to drive between railway cars while they were switching. Eleven went far a drive along the tracks and met express trains. One driver left his car on the tracks while he went to search for something he had dropped on the road; when he returned there was nothing left of the car. Eleven found no train in that their brakes needed refining.

CROP OUTLOOK REVIVED

A despatch from Winnipeg to the Edmonton Journal summarizes the crop situation up to July 15th as follows: "Rains reported from many sections of the west during the week have tended to improve crop conditions in areas fortunately unaffected, and to revive hopes for many crops which had previously been despaired of. It is still a question, however, as to whether permanent relief has been afforded, since the majority of rains do not appear to have penetrated sufficiently to adequately provide for requirements of an already acute condition. According to the eleventh weekly crop report of the Canadian National Railways, much of the crop in northern and central Alberta, appear to have been damaged beyond repair. Early sown fields are largely a failure, and late crops are progressing in direct proportion to the rain received. Some rains occurred in these areas during the past week, which have naturally improved local areas, but half-crop estimates continue in the majority. As in many sections of the other provinces, a few good fields may be found, but their frequency in Alberta leaves much to be desired."

HOSPITAL BOARD MEETING

Minutes of the last regular meeting of the Vermilion Municipal Hospital Board held on Saturday, 13th inst. With the exception of J. A. Rosebrough who is still confined to hospital, all the members of the Board were present.

In connection with the material for the fencing of the hospital grounds, Mr. McClellan presented prices on wire and posts and it was moved and seconded that Mr. McClellan and the chairman, Mr. Hope, be a committee to arrange to get hospital grounds fenced; material to be used as follows. Woven wire four feet high, 7ft posts. It was moved and adopted that tenders be called for the construction of the fence, the price to be per rod, to be constructed according to specifications as laid down by the Board, and tenders to be in by Friday, the 26th inst.

Grizzly Bear, the De partment and that certain changes be made in wording of agreement. With the result that the Secretary was instructed by motion to change the wording so as to read for the treatment of and all persons resident in the M. D. Grizzly Bear.

It was reported that the two manholes on the sewer line were in a bad state of repair and that Mr. Morrison and Mr. Hope were appointed a committee to see that same were repaired. Applications were received from Miss McNeil for an increase of salary, she having completed a year's term on the staff, and on the statements of cancellations from the different units of hospital taxes, only two of the units had sent in a statement, with the result that no action could be taken on the matter and it was laid over until the next meeting.

New Brake Testing and Setting Machine in Vermilion Motors

The first machine for the testing and setting of brakes properly has recently been installed at the Vermilion Motors, Chevrolet and Oakland dealers. This Lindendahl brake tester registers the exact poundage pressure exerted by your foot pedal on each of the four wheels, thus enabling them to be tightened or slackened as needed. No need for defective brakes now, when they can be put into first class condition in a very short time by means of this latest equipment.

SYNOPSIS

Marcus, the famous Broadway producer, books a party of four that visits Blackie Joe's night club in downtown New York. Al Sloan, Blackie's chief comedian and singing waiter, takes the order for beer. Grace, the cigarette girl, is in love with Al, but he doesn't know it. As he returns with the beer he encounters Molly, the ballad singer, whom he loves ardently. He begs her to sing a song he has just written. Molly is shocked to learn that Blackie Joe tells Molly that the great Marcus is outside and she makes him promise to introduce her. When Al rushes back to her dressing room she refuses even to read his song. He sees it on the floor under him and:

CHAPTER IV.

Al could scarcely believe his eyes —his song, the heart-throb ballad he had poured forth from the depths of his soul, lying on the floor unnoticed, under Molly's sharp and careless heel!

He raised his gaze as he felt Molly slowly sweep by him, scarcely knowing what he was doing, he seized the angry girl in his arms, pushing her close to him, staring beseechingly into her eyes. She tried to pull away, but his grip of steel held her.

"Molly!" he pleaded. "Didn't you even read it?"

Again Molly tried to escape, succeeding this time. If she had been angry before she was blazing now.

"How dare you try to deceive me? I told you I had important business out in front tonight! You bothersome thing—you've almost ruined my make-up!"

She returned to her dressing table and began dusting her arms and shoulders with powder, pulling lapels and sleeves of Al's coat were the heavy white marks of the powder. But all the while Molly knew she did not hear her words. Slowly he stooped over, like a man in a dream, picking up his song. He saw the sharp print of Molly's steel-rimmed heel across the music. It had almost cut through the paper, and as he stared at it for a long moment, it was as if that little heel had cut into his heart.

Again she heeded for the door, reaching the corridor. Then she realized that Al was following her and she turned about, determined to settle him once and for all. Her blue eyes were glittering and her voice had a rasping, harsh quality.

"Al Stone, get this through your head. I won't have anything to do with you. I'm not going to marry you or any other waiter!

With Victoria sarcasm she emphasized the word "waiter." Then with a flirt of her skirts she disappeared into the corridor. A moment later she was in the main room and had forgotten Al entirely, for she saw the figure of Marcus, one of the Broadway revues, with his party at the ringside table across the dance floor.

At once her manner and expression changed. The calculating gleam in her eyes was masked by a soft, bright, friendly one. Her smile, which had been rigid with anger a moment before, relaxed so that she seemed toward the table with a sway, sensuous walk. She was a very pretty girl at that moment. No one would have believed her features had been distorted by rage just a moment before; no one would have thought that she could treat a man as cruelly as she had just treated Al. But Molly was burning with ambition, and the call of the footlights lorn man who would be a hindrance to her in her climb toward fame. So she treated him ruthlessly, not because she disliked him, but because he got in her way. Her feeling toward him was neither love nor hate, it was just indifference. If he had been rich, powerful or socially distinguished, Molly would have played up to him like a soft and affectionate kitten. But—he wasn't.

Meanwhile, there sat Marcus, fifty feet away, chatting amiably with his companions and occasionally sending a keen glance toward the cabaret floor that was in progress on the rectangular floor a few feet from his table. Marcus studied the face and began to plan her course of action.

"What shall I do to make him like me?" she whispered softly to herself, "baby stuff or a more sophisticated line? He looks so sophisticated himself, so suave in the lapels and sleeves of Al's coat were the heavy white marks of the powder. But all the while Molly knew she did not hear her words. Slowly he stooped over, like a man in a dream, picking up his song. He saw the sharp print of Molly's steel-rimmed heel across the music. It had almost cut through the paper, and as he stared at it for a long moment, it was as if that little heel had cut into his heart.

Again she headed

Fiery Cross Burns On North Hill

Supposed to be K.K.K. Signal

Vermilion citizens were surprised, alarmed or impressed, but all were extremely interested in a large fiery cross which burned brilliantly on the north hill from about 12:30 midnight to 2 a.m. last Friday morning, and on Friday night another smaller cross was burned right in the town park at midnight. Reports of others from various points in the district have not as yet been substantiated. The large cross was made up of 125 bird pails filled with oil and waste, and was so placed that it could be seen for a long distance to the south, and quite plainly from the passenger trains passing through the town.

Ku Klux Klan organizers, who are said to have been busy in the town for the past few months, are believed to have been behind the building of the crosses. At the base of the largest cross, that of the one on the north hill, a miniature maple leaf in a small circle was found and the following words at the bottom: "Wee Hill and Al Terris, K.K.K. of Canada." There was a crown on the top of the circle and several small stickers with "Aka other 100s" inscribed on each sticker. On the side of the circle appears what would seem to be the name of the organization's lodge "Battle River No. 125."

Many theories are advanced for the burning of the crosses, but on account of the secret nature of the Klan, these theories are but the workings of active imaginations. A peculiar one is that the Klan merely wanted to let the people know that the organization is here, and chose the night before the Orange celebration as the best time to acquaint the largest number of people possible with the fact. Another man tells us that every time another 1000 members is added to the Klan a fiery cross is burned to celebrate the growing numbers of their lodge.

The same thing happened outside the town of Ponoka some three years ago, causing numerous comments at that time. The real reasons behind the burning of the crosses will probably never be known to the people for long, but serves to show that the Klan is really established here

VERMILION HAS HUSKY FIFTEEN-YEAR-OLDS

According to the Kentucky scribe in the Vegreville Observer, Vermilion has the largest variety of 15-year-old boys known to be in existence, evidently intended to be gentle carcass because our lads trimmed the Kan party 18-7 yesterday in the final of the Manaville junior ball tournament. Here is what was said of it by the Kentucky correspondent in the Vegreville Observer:

"We hear that our junior baseball team beat in the game with Vermilion on Dominion day to the largest variety of 15-year-old boys known to be in existence." The scribe might also add that they are the best team of junior ball players in existence on this portion of the C.N.R. and so far have not failed to rap first prize at any tournament participated in.

DEWBERRY BUDGET

(Too late for last week)

The district has been fortunate in having plentiful showers during the past two weeks, with the result that crops are in very good shape. Wheat is heading out, and growth since the rains is remarkable. No need for worry yet. Don't shake hands with his outside majesty before you meet him.

The British American Oil company have had their gang here for a week erecting the large oil tanks, which are now painted a silvey grey. The new depot will be started soon, the material being on the ground.

The local weed inspector is on the job, scanning the fence corners and bush lands for those enemies of the farmer. Many very interesting meetings have been held in this regard, and it is a pity that more farmers do not attend these gatherings.

Edith Thatcher and Herbert Webedale are the fortunate girl and boy who won the highest marks at the Dewberry School Fair in 1928, with the result that they will have a week at the Agricultural College, Vermilion in August.

MILITIA NOTES

The 5th Mounted Brigade has just completed twelve days annual training in Sarcee Camp near Calgary

Northern Alberta was represented by the 19th Alberta Dragoons under the command of Lieut. Colonel S. Cooper of Vermilion and two Squadrons of the 1st A.M.R., "C" Squadron of Vermilion being under the command of Major V. B. Emery, and "B" Squadron of Vegreville under Major Hughes.

The 1st A.M.R. are competing in the ormanization at present and for this year were attached to the 19th Alberta Dragoons for the annual training period, but plans are now ready for the completion of the re-organization and next year the 1st A.M.R., with the third squadron localized at Wainwright, will go into training and function as a complete regiment.

This was the largest Cavalry camp held in Canada since the Great War, but when it is realized that only a bare twenty per cent of the war establishment of units are authorized to train it is very evident that Canada cannot be accused of any excessive militaristic tendencies and is barely maintaining a skeleton organization on which to expand in case of extreme emergency.

In spite of poor weather conditions the boys enjoyed camp life and what to many of them was a new experience, the intensive training and strict discipline was carried out in a manner which was a credit to the young manhood of Alberta.

The Vermilion Squadron was complimented on their work in camp by General Ormond who,Commands Military District No. 13.

During the twelve days the men were given a half holiday so that they might have an opportunity of visiting the Calgary Stampede.

The boys all state they had a good time and intend to be in camp again next year

Through the courtesy of Mr. Cooper of the Vermilion Standard, notes of interest to the Vermilion Squadron will be published from time to time.

These posters are being sent out from the headquarters of the three regions in Canada, at Moncton, Toronto, and Winnipeg. Atlantic, Central and Western respectively, so that every Canadian National grade crossing in the Dominion will be marked. The instructions are to place these posters on poles close to the railway crossings and on the right hand side of approach.

In the letter of instructions it is stated "The idea is now opportune when aggressive methods must be used to combat the increasing number of highway accidents."

THE FORD CAR STEEL SPOKE WHEELS

Greater Strength and Durability

THE Ford Steel Spoke (Drop Centre) wheel is an advanced step in engineering and the result of exhaustive experimental tests. It is smart in appearance, extra strong, having a lasting finish, easy to clean and provides a simple method for mounting and demounting the tire without tools and in a fraction of the time previously required.

The steel rods or spokes, ¼" in diameter, are electrically welded to rim and hub shell. The finish is enamel baked on steel. Possessing plus strength and being one solid piece, these wheels have a sturdiness not approached by any other type.

The Ford wheel eliminates loose, squeaking spokes and rims, pinched tubes, chipped or peeling finish, necessity of tire flap, misalignment of tires due to excessively mounted rims, and a host of other wheel and tire ills formerly encountered. It permits of easy steering and no drumming sound is created by the wind.

There is an enormous amount of careful work necessary to build strength and service into the Ford Steel Spoke wheel, and the results justify the engineering study and skill devoted to this feature of the Ford car.

Hike For Health!

Automobile lameness is stated to be the cause of one hundred times as many deaths annually as are caused by automobile accidents. The automobile has made it possible for us to get through life with hardly any exercise unless we are fortunate enough to be employed in some variety of of manual labour. This has completely changed our mode of living but not our diet, we still eat the same quantities of rich heavy food customary many years ago.

Easy and quick transportation at any time by automobile should be one of our chief blessings, to many it appears to be far from that. The medical profession has been aware for some time of the great increase of disease among the well-to-do. The situation has become so marked that our great insurance companies are becoming seriously alarmed. Investigation has shown that fully 90 per cent. of the well-to-do members of our fraternal orders are suffering from some kind of disease, and the number of sudden deaths of apparently healthy people is increasing alarmingly.

The blame for all this is placed unhesitatingly upon the thoughtless use of the automobile. To preserve his health man must exercise. The languid game of golf after sitting all day either in his office or automobile has proved but a poor substitute. Even less effective is the modern method of enjoying our sports by sitting on a grand stand and watching others play baseball, football, or horse run a race. Many try to replace exercise by fad foods and patent medicines, and thereby enrich many charlatans but benefit themselves very little. We are clamouring for larger hospitals and more operating rooms, we would be wiser to clamour for more parks and recreational areas where we may obtain naturally healthful natural exercise.

It has become the fashion among the motoring public to drive through our parks and along our highways as fast as the law allows, and to agitate for extended roads through which they may drive further and further from the beaten path. The motoring public of tomorrow will undoubtedly have different ideals, they will appreciate motor roads located through attractive districts with numerous parking places from which they may explore on foot the beauties not to be seen from the road. They will be anxious to learn what is behind the hill. Now, the average motorist has but little to tell of his trip except the number of miles covered. The subject of the motor trips will be treated by his friends with the discretion now used towards a postage stamp collector. When once started on a description of the trip, photos, mineral specimens, and curios of many kinds will be produced, and the story of the trip will be a long one full of plans for the exploration of other districts in the future.

There is no more delightful nor healthful way to spend a week-end than on a new trail. Popular books, plays and amusements are usually "different." National parks provide something different every few minutes; the scenery, both in relation to light and shade and relative position, is always changing; there is always the lure of the unexpected just around the corner. Many and varied are the objects to interest the observant tourist will never be noticed by the long-distance hiker who, like the present day motorist, takes his pleasure from his mileage records. Some of the world's richest mines have been passed unnoticed by hundreds before the man with the seeing eye came along to see investigate, and become the envy of his less observant fellows.

An elderly clergyman was found wandering alone in the mountains. He said that during a serious illness he realized that in his lifelong study of the word to come he had seen very little of the world in which he lived. His enjoyment of his surroundings was almost pathetic; he realized too late how much of the beautiful in this life he had missed.

Various foreign governments are trying to foster physical culture either in the form of citizens' military training camps, great athletic meets, or Olympic games, in which thousands of athletes annually take part.

Walking has become very popular in many European countries. In Germany they were quick to grasp the significance of this, and shelters have been established at suitable points of interest throughout that country which were patronized by over twenty millions hikers last year. Not only are university students to whom a hike was a college week worth weeks of college but hosts of wage earners from the large cities made up their own parties of from half a dozen to a hundred or more and had a most enjoyable holiday at slight expense.

Obviously the scheme is of national benefit. National health is improved and patriotism fostered by broadening the vision and familiarizing the people with their own country.

The most robust employee usually commands the best wages, but during slack times the weak ones are often discharged, to possibly become a charge on the community. National prosperity is based on national health. Strong robust manhood and womanhood is the foundation on which a strong nation must rest. Canada has a most beautiful scenery, and it is not restricted to any one section of the Dominion. Why not familiarize ourselves with our own country by walking through it? Why not set aside, each year, a hiking week preferably in the late summer or early fall months and go on a hike of thanksgiving for our present health and gather a harvest of health for the future."

Tribute To General Booth

Aged Commander Died Penniless Although He Controlled Millions

Appreciation of General Bramwell Booth was high during his lifetime—he was the main builder of a world-wide organization dedicated to the service of humanity; it was perhaps more higher at his death, when came opportunity to review his works; it will be higher than ever as the result of an examination of his "estate."

The fact of the matter is there is no estate. It is revealed that the aged General died absolutely penniless. He owned not one cent, and he left no property other than his uniform and a few books. He controlled millions in money and property but never did own a penny. Thus his master-mind, the builder of a world-wide organization dedicated to the service of humanity; it was perhaps more higher at his death, when came opportunity to review his works; it will be higher than ever as the result of an examination of his "estate."

The fact of the matter is there is no estate. It is revealed that the aged General died absolutely penniless. He owned not one cent, and he left no property other than his uniform and a few books. He controlled millions in money and property but never did own a penny. Thus his master-mind, the builder of a world-wide organization dedicated to the service of humanity, He subsisted on a trust fund of $2,500 a year, did not own the house in which he lived, and looked to relatives to pay his children's fees at educational institutions.

There are various elements which enter into true greatness. One is capacity; others are service to one's fellows, unselfishness, sacrifice. General Booth had all these. To die penniless is sometimes accounted an object for pity or scorn. In the case of Bramwell Booth it is yet another tribute to the man and his works.—Regina Daily Post.

WEAK, WATERY BLOOD

Is the Cause Of Much Distress and General Weakness

Anaemia — which really means weak, watery blood is responsible for the pale face, thin cheeks, dull eyes and drooping figure one sees so frequently. It is the chief cause of headaches, weak backs, dizziness and uncertain health. Every weak, anaemic person should win the right to be well by refreshing thin, watery bodies with the new, rich, red blood so promptly supplied by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. This new blood reaches every organ and nerve in the body and quickly banishes all those troubles that have their origin in watery blood. Among those who have found new health and strength through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is Mrs. Alexander Evans, Amherst, N.S., who says: "When I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I was so weak and run-down that I could scarcely go about the house, and found housework almost impossible. I was taking doctor's medicine, but with no appreciable benefit. I had often read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and decided to try them. Soon I found they were helping me, and under their continued use I regained good health. The pills also completely relieved my son of St. Vitus Dance, so that I have no hesitation in praising them."

You can get the pills from your druggist, or by mail at 50 cents a box, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Recommended That Government Take Over Control Of Radio Broadcasting in Canada

Should the Dominion government take over the control and ownership of radio broadcasting in this country? What part should the provincial governments play in it? To what extent should advertising be allowed in broadcasting programmes? Would the listener-in be willing to pay $3.00 a year license instead of $1.00 ? Should attacks on religious and on religious leaders over the radio be prevented by law? These were some of the questions brought to the fore in the final public hearing of the royal commission on radio broadcasting held in Ottawa. Sir John Aird presided and the other members of the commission, C. A. Bowman and Dr. R Frigon were present

In an opening statement the chairman outlined the investigations the commission had conducted in Great Britain, France and Germany. It had held sessions in 24 cities across Canada and received the co-operation of the governments of the various provinces. Everywhere the commission had been received with greatest cordiality.

Following the meeting, at which representations were submitted by the All-Canadian Congress of Labor and the Canadian Legion of the striish Empire Service League, the commission will once begin the preparation of its report It will probably be available about the end of the month

The All-Canadian Congress of Labor came out flatly for the government taking over the broadcasting stations to eliminate all advertising from the programmes and making the listener-in pay the upkeep by license. The brief presented by P. T Burford, made the following recommendations

That the present commission be continued or a similar organization to be established vested with complete administrative control of broadcasting The radio telegraph branch of the department of marine be expanded into a department of communications, having control of all electrical communication services (land telegraph, telephone, radio-telegraph and radio-telephone), in Canada. All broadcasting stations be owned, controlled and operated by the Dominion government through the department of communications and the radio commission. The department of communications be authorized by legislation to make use of all patented apparatus at an arbitrated valuation for the national purpose of broadcasting

An advisory council, widely representative of purely Canadian interests, be appointed to assist the Dominion in the collection of educational and other broadcast material and to ensure freedom of speech on questions of public interest.

The Canadian Legion wanted a broadcasting organization that would develop imperial patriotism and Canadian culture. J. A. Maclaine said in presenting the brief for that organization Private ownership of Canadian broadcasting stations had demonstrated that they could not compete with the United States stations Canadians were being overwhelmed with foreign programmes charged with propaganda

The solution could be met, the Legion thought, by federal government ownership and operation by a directorate in which the provinces would have representation The Canadian broadcasting service should lead the way in developing Canadian culture in all the arts Every opportunity should be taken to exchange broadcasting programmes with those of the British Isles

Arthur Hardy, Ottawa publisher, said he would have represented on

"It is a good thing we left the tent flap open or he would have ruined the tepee like the bargain," said Reimore Brown, well-known artist who has been painting and sketching in the Rockies for a number of years. It was possibly the same bear that tore the tent to bits a previous year when Brown thought he could safeguard his supplies by closing his tepee.

What Is a Good Government?

Hon. R. B. Bennett, in addressing a meeting at Stratford, Ontario, recently asked a question, and in answering it gave a definition of a good government. He said:

"Is it not time that we had a government that would look after the interests of Canadians and Canadian-only? You say that is a selfish policy. Ah, my friends, all good governments are selfish and the measure of the goodness of a government is the measure of its selfishness.

Mr. Bennett was, of course discussing the relative merits of the tariff policies of the Liberal and Conservative parties and especially so in the light of the impending tariff changes at Washington. These being issues of a partisan character it is not our intention to discuss them, or express any opinion in regard to them. But it is quite in order to analyse and discuss Mr. Bennett's dictum that "all good governments are selfish," and that the measure of the goodness of a government is the measure of its selfishness.

Governments under our democratic system of responsible government are or should be, but a reflection of the people themselves. They are brought into being by the expressed will of the people and are supposed to give expression in legislation and administration to the wishes of the people. Therefore if a good government is a selfish government, it follows that selfishness is the sign manual of a good people, and that the selfishness of any government is the measure of the goodness of the people. Do the Canadian people believe this? Are they prepared to accept it as true?

Acceptance of this doctrine would be to deny all the teachings of Christianity. It would be to reject the Golden Rule. It would be to set up a standard of conduct for nations and peoples that could have but one result, continual warfare.

If the measure of the goodness of a government is the measure of its selfishness, then a good government in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, or any of the other Provinces would be one which pursued a policy designed to advance its own interests regardless of the interests and welfare of any other Province, or of the Dominion as a whole. Such a selfish policy would mean endless friction, constant turmoil, the ultimate smash-up of Confederation.

Suppose, for example that rightly or wrongly, the Western Provinces of Canada insisted that their particular interests demanded the complete removal of all customs tariff, and they refused absolutely to give any consideration to the views of the Province of Ontario, or the Eastern Provinces which believe in customs tariffs. What would be the result?

All government is a matter of compromise. No one group of people, no one community, no one province can selfishly insist upon acceptance of its views and its policies to the detriment of all other groups, communities and provinces. But if selfishness is to be the measure of a good government, then insistence by each group or community, or province, upon its own views and policies means that any and all compromise will be impossible, and government itself must fail.

Acceptance of Mr Bennett's doctrine would condemn the governments of Great Britain for many decades past as the worst governments in the world, because it has been the policy of British Governments to adopt policies of unselfishness, to assume heavy burdens and accept great responsibilities in behalf of backward peoples and smaller and weaker nations. Great Britain unselfishly entered the war against Germany in defence of the rights and integrity of Belgium. Following the war Britain waived all debts owing to her by other allied countries, and except an amount sufficient to cover her own indebtedness to the United States. These are but two comparatively recent examples of British policy, but it is being accomplished at almost every meeting of the League of Nations. That League for example could not exist five minutes if the nations of the world were animated by, and acted upon Mr Bennett's definition of what constitutes a good government.

The most selfish form of government is an absolute autocracy. How would Mr Bennett like Premier Mackenzie King to adopt the selfish attitude of Mussolini in Italy, take all powers of government into his own hands and prohibit any opposition parties from functioning? That's selfishness in government! Is it good? Whatever Mr Bennett may think, the people of Canada want none of it.

No Unemployment Problem in Iceland

Country Offers Great Opportunities Through Undeveloped Land

Iceland has no unemployment problem, nor because folks have to work to keep warm up there, but because Iceland is an undeveloped land of great opportunities.

The unemployed of Reykjavik totalled eight men on May 1. Six of them were more than 60 years old and in ill health. The other two said they had just left their jobs. and could get better ones.

Iceland, peopled with only 100,000 inhabitants, could comfortably find accommodation and employment for one,000.

Iceland wants dirt farmers, not men to keep the bright lights of Reykjavik burning. The native Icelanders are good farmers, but not scientific agriculturists.

Government authorities maintain that Iceland could produce far greater quantities of agricultural products than at present, as the soil and climate are excellent for many crops.

An Important Industry

General Public Does Not Realize Importance of Fishing Industry

The fishing industry is one that rarely receives much attention from the general public, but it is an important and growing industry in this country, as one realizes in scanning the concise items sent out from time to time by the Bureau of Statistics at Ottawa. We catch them all the way from sardines to whales. For example, we paid $2,312,000 last year for herring, nearly all tinned, to Australia in that country's fiscal year, 1927-28. In the first month of May, this year, 70 whales were taken by a company operating from Rose Harbor, B.C.; the whales taken in British Columbia are used in production of oil, meal, fertiliser, and are valuable, too, for their wholebone.

Eliminating Level Crossings

Will Take Time But Fund For This Purpose Is Available

It is to be recognized that $300,000 a year will not make for very rapid progress in eliminating the many hundreds of level crossings in Canada, but this fund, known as the railway grants fund, is in fact an added opportunity for gradually getting rid of some of the worst of these death traps. Sir J. Merrick Jones, chief commissioner of the Dominion Board of Railway Commissioners, has drawn attention to the existence of this fund and suggests that it be availed of in Saskatchewan.

Dr. McLean has pointed out that the sum of $300,000 is voted annually by Parliament for the elimination or improvement of railway crossings, and this sum is at the disposal of the Railway Board to distribute as it sees fit. Alberta has recently been granted a considerable amount, and Manitoba has also taken advantage of the fund. Manitoba, in fact, co-operation with the Railway Board, has done good work in getting rid of some dangerous railway crossings. This has been done by some minor changes in roads and highways, making it unnecessary to cross railway tracks.

Some day the authorities may undertake to eliminate every level crossing in Canada, but, on account of the huge expense that would involve, the time appears a long way off. Meanwhile a good deal can be accomplished by the means outlined, and Dr. MacLean's suggestion ought to be widely considered.- Regina Daily Post

Caution Is Necessary

Motor Drivers Should Use Heads As Well As Horns

But drivers should also be urged to use their heads, or what are supposed to be heads. Horn tooting should not take the place of caution A blast of the horn neither entitles the blaster to the right-of-way nor guarantees him a clear path.

A Little Advice To Those Who Would Secure the Utmost Benefit From a Holiday

Brunettes tan better than blondes.

In fact, some blondes can't acquire a coat of tan at all—at least for many, since a tanned complexion has become so fashionable that drug-stores now sell it in bottles.

According to a special "holiday bulletin" issued by the Canadian Social Hygiene Council, in co-operation with the Department of Public Health of Toronto, there are a number of "don'ts" and "do's" which the holidaying city and town-dweller should observe, if his outdoors is to s'and the strain of the summer's rest-period.

Don't scratch mosquito bites, don't pick poison ivy, watch your milk and water supplies and get plenty of sun, but not too much at once, are some of the admonitions. And here is an emergency outfit that every camper should have, if his outing is to be successful:

3 or 4 bandages, 2 or 3 inches wide.

1 or 2 ounces of tincture of iodine.

1 small roll of adhesive plaster about 1 inch wide.

"The last item is important in the event of a collapse," the bulletin advises. "From one-half to a tenspoonful of aromatic spirits of ammonia in a wine-glass of water acts more promptly than whisky or brandy. It is one of the best stimulants we have." Cuts or bruises should be washed with soap and water and covered with sterile gauze and adhesive. Splinters should be removed with a needle sterilized by being held for a few minutes in boiling water and the injured place treated with iodine Poison ivy irritation should be met with lime juice or the jewel weed, a plant growing two to four feet high, in marshy places, and possessing a juicy, semi-translucent stem, with yellow and red-eared flowers with brown spots. Either strong laundry soap, or fresh lime-water is a good substitute.

Avoid being overly zealous in your efforts to get sunburned. Half-an-hour at a time is quite as long in any part of the body, not accustomed to exposure, should be subjected to the strong rays of the sun, for the first few days, then it will be quite safe to increase the time to an hour, and after a fairly good tan has been developed you are well protected against the dangers of sunburn. If you do not take these precautions your holiday may be spoiled painfully

Furthermore recent revelations as regards the therapeutic value of the chemical rays of the sun have been such as to make one feel that it would be difficult to over-estimate their importance. Therefore, we recommend for small children the sun suit which can be obtained at any of our stores These suits only protect the hips and upper parts of the thighs and leave the greater part of the body exposed to the sun's rays

It is well to bear in mind that in order to get the therapeutic benefits it is not absolutely necessary that you be exposed to the direct rays of the sun there is the sky shine, or reflected rays from the sky and clouds. On a clear day you may lie or sit on the shady side of the house, with the bare dome above you, and get from one-third to one-half of the benefits of the rays of the sun that you would get by exposing yourself directly to them

For mosquitoes three things should be remembered: netting, liquid ammonia, and coal oil.

The netting shuts them out, the liquid ammonia, applied promptly to a bite, frequently neutralizes the poison and prevents subsequent itching, and the coal oil, put in very small quantities on top of the water in rain-barrels, little ponds, etc., prevents the mosquito larvae from developing into mosquitoes. Furthermore, certain aromatic preparations such as spirits of camphor, menthol, and oil of citronella, may be applied to exposed parts of the body to keep them pests away.

Insist that your food be protected from the filthy, disease-spreading house-fly.

And do not be on the go all the time during the holiday. Take some reading matter with you and spend part of the day, particularly in the middle of the day, in the shade of the trees, in your basement, or in an easy chair, or lying on a rug on the ground. Do not dance every night during your holiday and expect to come home rested and refreshed for the balance of the year.

A Real Disease Of Wheat

"Take-All" Does Considerable Damage To Cereal Crops

The disease called "Take-All" does considerable damage to cereal crops, particularly wheat. It also affects barley, and oats, to a slight degree. According to Mr. H. T. Gussow, the Dominion Botanist, in Circular No. 17, of the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, the effects of this disease appears in rather large patches. Young seedlings are frequently severely blighted. The most characteristic symptoms are: some as the plants reach the heading stage. The plants are distinctly shorter than normal plants and have a bleached appearance. The lower leaves are brownish and shriveled discoloured. The heads contain shrunken almost worthless kernels. Only a light crop is generally obtained. It is recommended to follow the next year with oats or some other crop not subject to serious infection, and to summer-fallow the field before again sowing wheat. If this cannot be done, then a rotation of crops is recommended. "No," said the parent of the dead youth: "he has drunk enough, now, and I must regard him as a guest."

The Herbaceous Border

A Charming Feature Of the Well-Kept Home Grounds

The well arranged herbaceous border is a charming feature of the well-kept home grounds. If the plants have been well selected there is assured a continuous flower display from early spring until the autumn frosts arrive. The perennial border may be started either by the purchase of plants in the fall or spring or by sowing the seeds of the plants from seed. The latter way is much more economical, and this is the way most of the flowers are started. The rear of the border should be planted for next year's border. In a new bulletin on "Herbaceous Perennials" by Miss Isabella Preston, of the Horticultural Division of the Dominion Experimental Farms, it is recommended to establish the seed bed in a shady position though not under trees. The soil need not be rich, but if it is very heavy it is recommended to lighten it with sand. For good germination the surface soil must be made very fine Miss Preston recommends a width of four feet for the bed and a length limited only by the available space and by the number of plants desired to be grown. This bulletin, which contains a wealth of horticultural information, the result of many years' experience and observation, is now ready for distribution at the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa. The perennials best suited for Canadian gardens in all parts of Canada are enumerated and described and their culture carefully dealt with.

Mr James Libbs who went from Canada to New Zealand as an early settler and became a very successful farmer is celebrating his seventieth birthday by making his ninth tour of the world He says that the globe-trotting has satisfied him that Canada is still the best country for a man to live in. He thinks that Canadian land New Zealand is growing more and more like it. Mr. Libbs is the owner of a 1,000 acre farm and is the originator of the wheat that unfortunately has been found to be unsuitable for cultivation in other countries in the British Empire.

Describing the Horse

Information As Given Will Be Close To Driver Of Motor Car

The horse is an automotive animal, consisting of a body mounted on four-brake legs. It has three speeds forward; namely: the walk, the trot, and the gallop. The intermediate gear is not so popular owing to the vibration. The horse may also go into reverse or stand still in neutral.

The engine of the horse is in the centre of the body and the driver sits on the hood. In the rear of the driver is room for a rumble seat, though this is not featured in the more recent models The horse has a tail but no tail-light, thus distinguishing it from a motor car, which has a tail light but no tail.

It is always well before starting out on your horse to see that he has been fueled and has sufficient water in his radiator There is no need to worry about oil, as he supplies his own lubrication. Cure trouble, when it occurs, usually results from defects in the inner tubing When the shoes are at fault the cause is due to dropping nails rather than pitching them.

The driver generally sits [illegible] respectively on the right and left-hand running boards and controls the car by steering gear firmly in the hands. Western Air Mail

Innovation In the West Prompted With Great Possibilities

It is announced from Ottawa that with the awarding of a contract for the Western Canada air mail, the [illegible] of preparing for the [illegible] inauguration of an air mail service in this section of the Dominion has been put in hand and that every effort will be made to bring the route into operation at the earliest possible date

This innovation in the West should have great possibilities, and not only just for the West, but for all Canada. It should add to commercial intercourse between East and West and bring them closer together in a number of ways It will mean a great saving of time in business mail, and this is important in the business world of today in which dispatch figures large It also illustrates further the opportunities for developing Canada in this far-flung Dominion Airmail this is now [illegible] been [illegible] [illegible] years ago [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Continuance of the hot dry weather together with scorching winds during the past week have had their effect on further discounting crop prospects which had shown a noticeable revival following several light precipitations on a fortnight ago when all grain made wonderful headway. All wheat in the district is in head, some short and some longer, appearance of fields varying in different localities. Some grain crops will never mature it would be futile to estimate probable yields under existing weather conditions. Hay is a short crop and there will undoubtedly be a shortage in this respect. In areas where crops are holding their own, a week of wet weather would still work miracles and help out materially in a very serious situation.

Sunday Evening Concert

The evening concert held in the Columbia Theatre on Sunday last, under the direction of Mr. W. B. Elford attracted a capacity audience who fully enjoyed the excellent programme which had been arranged.

Mr Ernest West delighted all by his splendid interpretation of three groups of songs, which ranged from works by Handel and Purcell to the songs of the modern composers — Hamish Tipton and Cadman. Mr West possesses a very pleasing voice of unusual flexibility while his organization was perfect. It was indeed a rare treat to hear him, and the audience were not slow in showing their appreciation of his work.

Miss Dorothy West, the solo pianiste, was in splendid form, her artistic rendering of Rubin's "Rustle of Spring" creating demands for an encore, to which she graciously responded. In a later number—an impromptu by Schubert—she revealed a technique and sense of interpretation of a very high order.

Miss Anne Auty, who was making the first appearance at a Sunday evening concert, scored a decided success, her rendition of Wooler's arrangement of "Now the Day is over" being received with marked approval. She was recalled, and gave a second number which suited her voice to perfection.

One of the outstanding numbers of the programme was the soprano solo by Miss Myrtle MacDonald, who sang Hamish's "Spring is Here" in a most artistic manner, and was obliged to respond to an encore.

The vocal duet by Messrs Albert and Ernest West was probably the most popular item on a programme of high merit.

The number was well-chosen, the voices blended well, and it was splendidly well rendered. In a pleasing encore song these two artists brought down the house.

Miss Dorothy West and Mr W. B. Elford acted efficiently as accompanists for the various vocal items, and contributed much to the success of the concert.

SUMMARY OF THE CHIEF POINTS A MOTOR DRIVER MUST KNOW:

You must—

1. Keep to the right when meeting or being overtaken by other vehicles.
2. Not drive a motor vehicle whilst under the influence of liquor, nor in a reckless manner.
3. Never obstruct the highway, nor wilfully hinder free passage of other traffic.
4. Give audible warning of approach whenever necessary.
5. Stop on signal or request of constable in uniform or person in charge of horse.
6. Never run amuck being started, if left unattended.
7. Carry your driving license when driving. Produce it to constable on demand. Never lend it to anyone else.
8. See that your vehicle carries correct registration marks, properly rear lights.
9. Carry proper light during hours of darkness.
10. Know speed limits on the highway and in municipalities.
11. Stop in event of accident, and give name and address of driver and owner on demand and, in case of a serious accident, report the accident to the police.
12. Frequently inspect your motor vehicle. See that your brakes, steering wheel and lights are in faultless condition.
13. Not drive so that you cannot pull up clear of any possible danger, and you must not assume that the road is clear, nor overtake at corners, bends, cross-roads, railway crossings, road junctions, arched bridges or humps in the road, or anywhere without the certain knowledge of a clear road.
14. Do not descend hills too fast. When descending hills, give proper consideration to ascending horse-drawn vehicles; also, when ascending hills, remember that descending traffic has more difficulty in slowing up or stopping.

Business Section Of Wainwright Razed Sunday

The town of Wainwright, aspiring to be and in a fair way of having its desires granted as the principal oil distributing centre in Western Canada, went to bed Saturday night in the belief that its property was safe and well protected from all danger. It was not sleeping peacefully at six o'clock in the morning. Two hours later twenty-five families were homeless with nothing except what garments they could hurriedly get on their backs, every hotel, eatery excepting one, banks and town hall, over seventy buildings including every business place except three, as well as several dwelling places and the big arena club had become a prey to the worst conflagration that has yet visited this province. In about two hours, on property valued at over $1,250,000 nothing remained but the charred ruins, burning cubes of twisted steel rods, telephone wires clutching here and there amid the crumbling walls of two or three buildings. No fire could have rendered its destructive work more complete. The entire business section was wiped out. It covered four and a half blocks. The fire swept every inch of it and in the whole area only one building remains standing. Estimated insurance is placed at $150,000.

The amusement erected two or three years ago on the mud wins paid the supreme sacrifice in the great war a lone stand intact, but the glass covering the face of the clock is broken and the hands are stopped at 7:30. The chimney of the Wainwright hotel defied the elements and still stands 'till around an ruins. This was Wainwright's first baptism of fire. The whip out of the business section appears to be the second. Like most of those western towns it really is the passing of the old and the birth of the new.

The fire broke out in a shed at the rear of a dwelling house owned and occupied by John Nordstrom, at 8 o'clock Sunday morning and the heavy fall of a high gale made it an impossibility for the brigade to check the flames.

CLANDONALD

The dimensions in the new station at this point, work upon which has commenced, is an indication of the importance the C P R attaches to the growing business of the company here. The size on the building is to be 80 feet long with a depth of 30 feet.

BOY SCOUT NOTES

The Troop comprising 19 boys arrived in camp at Whitney Lake (Border) on Monday last. The ride either end was marred and all the boys are loud in their praise of a great time. The wind on Saturday and Sunday evening caused very little discomfort and certainly did not dampen the boys' spirits. As was expected Scoutmaster Taylor's tent blew down but it was running to him since it wanted to sleep in one as it's always nice to be near the food supply. Sunday was visitors day but the wind kept quite a few away. Mr Yeamans and family, Mr W. J. Pike and family drove out and had a fine time among the boys. A short service was held on Sunday afternoon after the Sun had been hoisted.

The camp breaks up on Sunday the 28th at 3 p.m. It is hoped that friends of the Troop having cars will drive out to the Lake and help in bringing some boys back with them. Lunch will be served to visitors at 12 30 that day.

Rev F. Hayward, president of the Hayward Lumber Co., Ltd Edmonton accompanied by D B Jones superintendent of yards were in town today looking into conditions generally at this point and visiting the local yards of the company. Mr Hayward is personally active in all information relative to crop prospects at all points where he has yards established and from here went east. The trip of inspection is being made by car and will take him north to Lac La Biche and to the south back the city.

Importance Of Tourist Trade As an Economic Factor In Canada Continues To Increase

The importance of the tourist trade as an economic factor in Canada continues to increase and is being recognized to a greater extent than ever by all classes of the community. Fresh interest has been stimulated in the subject by the recent publication of estimates by the Dominion Government placing the expenditures of tourists from other countries in the Dominion at $250,501,000. It is predicted freely that when the totals for 1929 come to be written up they will be well in excess of the $300,000,000 mark. The fact remains that the expenditures of tourists from other countries in Canada amounted to $250,501,000 in 1928 while those of Canadian tourists abroad amounted to $142,215,000 thereby leaving a substantial credit balance of trade, is satisfactory, but when this worked down to a per capita basis it will be seen that Canadians spend far more in proportion abroad than do foreigners here.

For instance, the figures for the United States show: These show that while American tourists spend some $240 each, Canadians spend $2.60 per capita here. Canadian receipts total $20,000,000, or $7.50 per capita across the line. It is evident, therefore, that on a per capita basis we are not getting as large a share of the American tourist trade as we should. This will probably be remedied when the attractions of Canada become better known.

Considering from the standpoint the government statistician says that Canada's great natural assets her picturesque scenery the diversity of lake forest, and river, the many large districts still remaining in their natural state the healthful and invigorating climate, the charm of the Canadian winter and its distinctive sports, the old world lure of French Canada, and characteristics of ever-increasing numbers. The presence on our southern border of the United States, with its dense population possessing in a high degree the leisure and means to travel, the ease of communication between the two countries, the large automobile population, the relative cheapness of an automobile holiday in Canada for the average American family, and the close interlocking of business interests between the two countries result in a very large travel over the border Canadians too, are attracted by the larger United States cities with their theatres, museums, etc., and the more "settled" scenery, while large numbers of well-to-do Canadians visit United States' winter playgrounds in the south.

That Canadians realize the economic importance of this traffic is evidenced by the large sums spent on highway construction and advertising, and by the good accommodation provided by hotels, tourist homes and camps. In addition to the direct value of the expenditure of tourists, there follows the wider diffusion of knowledge of Canada's resources and increasing investment in them.

At the same time it is evident that many Canadians do not realize the beauties of their own country How many people in Ontario, for instance, realize the beauties of the lower St Lawrence and the Maritime Provinces, where they can enjoy not only entrancing pageant of scenery but also the salt sea breezes from the Gulf of St Lawrence or the Atlantic At the same time the people who live in those regions know little or nothing of the delights of Muskoka or Timagami, or the Georgian Bay while both are largely ignorant of the pleasure which may be had in the Rockies or at the Pacific coast, or at the pretty resorts in the Prairie Provinces. A greater realization of the pleasures that are to be had at home will not only help to keep Canadian money here but enable Canadians to plan better use of some of other lands the joys of a stay of shorter or greater length in the pleasure grounds of the great Dominion. In other words, many Canadians do not know their own country well enough - Monetary Times.

B.C. Needs Another Experimental Farm

Writer Was Brought Up In Ontario
By J. A. Fraser

The need for another experimental farm in the interior of British Columbia, south of the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific an area which produced for market every year 20,000 head of cattle from herds which numbered more than 100,000 head was stressed by J. A. Fraser, Canadian, in the House of Commons recently. British Columbia already had four experimental farms, said Mr. Motherwell. It was not fair to give one province much more than another to assist an industry. He would, however, have conditions in British Columbia investigated later in the present year. There are twenty-three well-developed experimental farms scattered throughout Canada. They were located as follows: British Columbia, 4; Alberta, 2; Saskatchewan, 3; Manitoba, 2; Ontario, 2; Quebec, 5; Prince Edward Island, 1; Nova Scotia, 2; and New Brunswick, 1.

Grades For Strawberries

Fruit Commissioner Has Worked Out Grades For Boxing

The marketing of all kinds of produce is materially helped when properly graded. The fruit commissioner of the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, has offered recommended grades for strawberries. Plans of all, it is recommended, should be small be divided into No. 1, No. 1 heaping and No. 1 for jam. The specifications for No 1 strawberries calls for fruit with the calyx and a short stem attached, which are well formed, of good colour, firm, but not over-ripe, free from surface moisture, packed in berry packs, sound, and from damage caused by mud. Diseases or other means. The minimum diameter for this grade is three-quarters of an inch, measured from side to side.

No 1 canning strawberries are recommended to consist of fruit such as fruit clean sound, ripe, firm, and of uniform size, of good colour and free from malformed or monkey-faced fruits.

The specifications for No. 1 jam strawberries call for field run fruit, clean, ripe, and of good colour, free from malformed fruits and berry-faced.

In order to allow for variations in client to careful commercial grading and handling, an allowance of five per cent under the prescribed size and five per cent. by volume may fall below the remaining requirements of the grade.

Farm Relief In Canada

Railroads Are Doing Their Share to Practical Way

Canadian railways head grain at rates that would bankrupt American roads. From Devil's Lake, N.D., to Duluth, a distance of 384 miles the rate is 19.5 cents. From Lydiatt Man., to Fort William a distance of 389 miles, the rate is 14 cents. The saving is over 20 per cent

From Estuary, Sask., to Fort William the rate is 21 cents. The distance is 1,036 miles From Bossman, Man., to Duluth, the rate is 43 cents. The distance is 1,052 miles. The Canadian farmer saves 40 per cent. Similar savings are in effect on the western roots.

Canadian railroads are giving their farm customers practical farm relief.

Inter-Imperial Trade Idea Meets With Heartiest Response Throughout British Empire

Potatoes Good Feed For Dairy Cattle

Value Nearly Equals Corn Silage Pound For Pound

According to A. E. Perkins, of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment station, potatoes have a feed value nearly equal pound for pound to corn silage. This is useful information as it gives the farmer a market for his culls and any others not finding a market.

The dry-matter content of potatoes is on the average 21 per cent. as compared to 28 per cent. for silage. But as the dry matter of the potato is more digestible than that of silage the total amount of digestible ingredients is the same. The dry matter of potatoes is mostly starch although it also contains about 1 per cent. digestible protein.

The big cry against potatoes is that they give an off or potato flavor to the milk. But this is not due to the potatoes that the cow has eaten, but to the potato odor around the stable. Therefore if cows are not fed until after milking, and care is taken to see that there is no potato odor lingering around the barn during milking, the cream, milk and butter should not be tainted. No ordinary treatment of the potatoes before feeding will remove potato flavor from the milk once it is absorbed.

The potatoes were fed now at the rate of 20 to 30 pounds daily in place of silage. Potatoes must be cut fine in order to prevent choking. Care must be taken to see that no green potatoes or potato sprouts are fed as they contain a deadly poison called solanin.

Danger From Lightning

Nine-Tenths Of Casualties Said To Occur In Rural Districts

The United States Bureau of Standards, which has been making an investigation of the havoc of lightning, has found that 500 persons are killed annually by lightning in the United States and upwards of 1,500 injured, and that nine-tenths of the casualties occur in rural districts. The board has drawn up the following code of safeguards:

(A)—Do not go out of doors or remain out during thunderstorms unless it is necessary. Stay inside of a building where it is safe, if possible, away from fireplaces, stoves and other metal objects.

(B)—If there is any choice of shelter, choose in the following order: 1, Large metal or metal-frame buildings; 2, buildings or other shelters which are protected against lightning; 3, large unprotected buildings; 4, small unprotected buildings.

(C)—If remaining out of doors is unavoidable, keep away from: 1, tall trees; and seek shelter if in an exposed location; 2, isolated trees; 3, wire fences; 4, hill tops and wide open spaces.

(D)—Seek shelter in dense woods, a grove of trees, a cave, a depression in the ground, a deep valley or canyon.

A Heavy Loss

The star attraction of the touring company rushed into the manager's room.

"My jewels," she sobbed. "They're lost . . . or perhaps stolen . . . I can't find them anywhere."

"Which jewels?" asked the manager, curtly.

"The ones I wear in the second act," the actress explained hysterically. "The diamond tiara, the emerald bracelet, and the diamond anklet."

"Well, that does it," said the manager, severely, "I hold you responsible for these articles. I'm sorry, but I'll have to dock you seven-and-sixpence on Friday."

Faculty For Languages

Leeds Railway Worker Has Mastered Twenty Modern Tongues

Mr. Harry Robinson, a Leeds railway worker, is master of twenty-two languages. He can speak English, French, Italian, Russian, German, Spanish, and Danish. He can read and write Greek, Dutch, Persian, Esperanto, Swedish, Portuguese, Bulgarian, Chinese, Hindustani, Arabic, Turkish, and Norwegian. Hungarian, Serbian, and Japanese. Previous to the war he knew only English and French. He had a French novel in a railway carriage, and mastered it with the aid of a dictionary. His study has been done in his spare time since then.

Short Luck Pursues Her

In Birmingham, England, according to "Time, the News Magazine," Madge Gumee, governess, complained last week that her first fiance, a war-time officer, was killed by a ride grenade; her second, an aviator, fell to death three days before the wedding, her third, an engineer, was struck by a crane and died; her fourth died two days before the marriage.

Heat Hits Tram

The bus was crossing Westminster Bridge.

"Say, conductor," said the American, "what do you call this steam here?"

Hastily the conductor looked over side.

"Darn it!" he said. "The radiator must have sprung a leak again."

The Bore: "Anything I say goes!" The Bored: "Well, say your name once or twice!"

"How are things with you?" "Couldn't be better. My wife has eloped, my mother-in-law is dying, and I have just won the big lottery." —Montpipe, Charleroi.

Proposals Of James A. Robb, Finance Minister, In connection with Inter-Imperial trade and the suggestion of an Imperial conference on Empire trade and tariffs continue to be discussed with the liveliest interest throughout the British Empire.

British newspapers are appealing to the government to respond heartily to the Canadian suggestions, but there has been no move yet.

The Financial Times, in a long editorial, enthusiastically supports Mr. Robb's ideas.

"Meanwhile," continues the Times, "the present provides an excellent opportunity for co-operation in industrial development among the dominions themselves. With her magnificent and seemingly boundless resources and unrivalled facilities for the generation of cheap electric power, Canada offers probably the most attractive field in the world today, for British capital and enterprise."

The Times calls attention to Canada's development as a manufacturing country and appeals for the co-operation of British labor and capital to assist in this development.

Mr. Robb's proposals have called attention publicly to Canada's important part in the trade of the empire. In this connection many Canadians now in London are deploring the lack of publicity which Canada receives. It is admitted that the leading railroads extensively advertise the benefits of travel in Canada and settlement there, but these visiting Canadian would like to see Canadian products advertised in the Dominion government in the same way that Australia, New Zealand and South African products are advertised throughout the country by the respective governments of those countries.

They see no reason why Canadian apples should not have the same publicity as Australian apples, which in the press and on boardings confront the Englishman at every turn.

GERMANY TO ACT AS INTERMEDIARY IN EASTERN CRISIS

Berlin.—The German government has agreed to take over the interests of China in Russia, and Russia in China, for the period in which direct diplomatic relations between these countries remain disrupted, it was emphasized on all sides that this was a certain indication of the administration of the Chinese Eastern Railway.

Requests for its good offices came to the foreign office from Russia through the German ambassador at Moscow, and from China, through the legation of that government here.

The break between Russia and China over the Manchurian situation has become a diplomatic actuality with the German government's agreement take charge of Russian interests in China and Chinese interests in Russia.

Nanking.—Formal notification of Russia's decision to sever relations with China was received at Nanking in a second note from Moscow, which contained a warning of the first Russian note of July 13.

President Chiang Kai-Shek summoned an extraordinary session of Nationalist government leaders to consider the Manchurian question, after receipt of a telegram from Governor Tasang Hsueh-liang of Manchuria declaring the situation "is extremely grave" in view of Russian troop concentration along the frontier.

The Nationalist government had apparently not lost hope of reaching an amicable settlement with Russia. Japan was possibly prepared to intervene between Russia and China in the interests of peace in the Far East, Premier Hamaguchi and Foreign Minister Shide Hara, while not "officially" informed, were understood to be conferred on the situation as conveyed in the foregoing.

Seattle. In Seattle's biggest waterfront fire since 1914, the Union Pacific dock was completely destroyed 16, with damage estimated at $1,000,000. Six injured firemen were recovering from burns and suffocation at the Providence Hospital.

The fire started beneath the flooring on the Bay end of the dock. Apparently a short circuit in electrical stations to fight the blaze, and traffic stalled on business streets while engine and hose companies raced down Seattle's hills to the dock. The city's three fire boats were also called out.

London-Paris Electric Railway Is Planned

Scheme Would Employ Fifty Thousand Men For Two Years

London, Eng.—The Observer says that the committee on English channels and communications, which will report late this year probably will outline plans for an electric railway from London to Paris at an estimated cost of $900,000,000.

The reported plan calls for a road which it would take 50,000 men two years to build.

The plan contemplates twin tunnels under the English channel, the first being 31 feet in diameter and 44 miles long. The line would use a railway track on a narrow-gauge basis.

Tremendously powerful electric locomotives would be used to haul trains from London to Paris in the rapid time of 2 hours and 45 minutes, if the plan outlined by the newspaper is carried out.

Montreal.—The Right Hon. Sir Robert Borden, former prime minister of Canada, was elected president of Barclay's Bank, Canada, at the first meeting of the shareholders here.

Sir Robert will assume his new duties on September 3, when the bank will commence business, and Chur B. Purvis was elected vice-president, and J. R. Booth was appointed.

In addition to Sir Robert and Mr. Purvis, the following were elected to the board of directors: Hon. L. A. Taschereau, premier of Quebec; A. A. Magee, W. O. Strathy, E. P. Ahus, and J. S. Cromley.

Lower Potato Crop

Canadian Acreage Shows Five Per Cent. Decrease From 1928

Ottawa.—Canada's potato acreage indicates a five per cent. decrease from 1928 figures, with 586,000 acres as compared with 589,000 acres last year. Western provinces report practically the same acreage as last year, and that the diplomatic and consular representatives of the Hankiing government would be ordered immediately to leave the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

The Russian action in breaking off diplomatic relations with China came at the expiration of time set in an ultimatum which the Soviet Union dispatched to the Chinese Republican headquarters on July 12. That ultimatum gave the Nationalist government ten days in which to reply to it, which to recall its action in seizing the Chinese Eastern Railway in Manchuria.

It also demanded restoration to office of the Russian officials who had been deposed from their places in control of the railway and the liberation of all Russian nationals who had been imprisoned. By the terms of the ultimatum, the closing of Russian institutions in Manchuria, such as banks, railway unions and business syndicates was also to be reclaimed.

Bad Miraculous Escape

Vancouver Salesman Pinned Under Interurban Car Had Hand Injured

Vancouver. Charles Kinneburgh aged 60, a Vancouver salesman, was pinned for more than a half hour in his demolished touring car under a big steel British Columbia electric interurban car, but escape with a bruised hand. The interurban had to be jacked up before he could be released.

Kinneburgh was driving across the intersection when the interurban crashed into him, overturned his car and ran up on top of it. Although the electric car was crowded, no one on board was injured.

Kinneburgh was imprisoned in the driving seat of his automobile with only his head and shoulders visible. Police squads, railway employees and ambulance men laboured feverishly to extricate him, but without success until a large jack was brought and the interurban car lifted. The prisoned man directed the operation, although suffering agony because of the manner in which his hand was caught. After his release it was found at the General hospital that he had suffered no other injury.

RUSSIA BREAKS OFF RELATIONS WITH CHINA

Moscow.—Russia has broken off diplomatic relations with China. The Soviet government today published its reply to the Chinese note, the statement declaring that the latter having come in response to an ultimatum which the Soviet Union and the Soviet Union said that all means of reaching an amicable settlement had been exhausted.

The note placed the entire responsibility for all consequences upon the Chinese government. It announced also that all Soviet diplomatic and consular representatives would be recalled at once from China.

It further declared that all Soviet citizens would be recalled from the Chinese Eastern Railway; that all railway communications between Soviet territory and China would be suspended, and that the diplomatic and consular representatives of the Nanking government would be ordered immediately to leave the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

The Russian action in breaking off diplomatic relations with China came at the expiration of time set in an ultimatum which the Soviet Union dispatched to the Central Republican headquarters on July 12. That ultimatum gave the Nationalist government ten days in which to reply to it, which to recall its action in seizing the Chinese Eastern Railway in Manchuria.

It also demanded restoration to office of the Russian officials who had been deposed from their places in control of the railway and the liberation of all Russian nationals who had been imprisoned. By the terms of the ultimatum, the closing of Russian institutions in Manchuria, such as banks, railway unions and business syndicates was also to be reclaimed.

Postpones Atlantic Flight

Unlikely That Code Will Make Attempt This Year

Paris It appeared improbable here that Dieudonne Coste would make another attempt to fly across the Atlantic this year. He has not abandoned his plan, but when asked when it might be carried out he replied hesitantly "There is no hurry." The backers of the flight who built the aeroplane and its motor have been silent concerning the new attempt, which gave support in the growing belief that it was not likely to be in 1929.

Tenth Annual Convention

Battle River U.F.A. and U.F.W.A.

The tenth annual convention of the Battle River constituency was held in Wainwright on Monday and Tuesday, July 15th and 16th.

The first morning session held in the Wainwright Theatre was taken up with routine business and the addresses of the secretary and president. The secretary treasurer's report was given, showing the organization on an improved financial basis. The president reviewed the activities of the Federal U.F.A. members at Ottawa, and showed that the U.F.A. was indeed justified in taking political action, and that the first great success was not an emotional outburst, nor did going into politics wreck the U.F.A. as many had predicted.

In the afternoon on the picnic grounds of the Wainwright Park, Mr. Lees, the provincial member for Wainwright, spoke on Co-operative Marketing, dealing especially with the subject of the propaganda that is being carried on by the opponents of the Fairy Pool in circulating of a paper. In a most effective address he showed the cowardly and false stand it was taking and stressed the need of the U.F.A., the parent society of these co-operative movements in Alberta, making an effective effort to counteract the propaganda put out to destroy the efficiency of the pools.

He was followed by Mr. Irvine, M.P. for Wetaskiwin, who in a brilliant, witty and thought-provoking address spoke on Co-operative Government showing the difficulty of parties ever functioning efficiently under the present system and outlined the parliament of the future in which each member would represent his and their economic group and work co-operatively with representatives of all other economic groups.

Hon. R. G. Reid, in an able speech on Co-operative Financing, pointed out that co-operative marketing with no share capital except a nominal fee found it difficult to finance these outer activities and the Provincial Government, which is very sympathetic to co-operative development, during the past session had passed a bill making it possible for the co-operative societies to be financed by an advance from the government to the extent of 85 p.c. of the amount of the season's grain and storms seemed to do its best to mar the afternoon by making it difficult for speakers and for the supper committee, but despite the wind the spirit of the day overcame these drawbacks and a most enjoyable afternoon and evening was spent.

In Mr Spencer's report, he gave a synopsis of the Speech from the Throne, together with the general policies as enunciated by the four leaders representing practically the four points of their respective groups. He then referred to the main clauses in the Budget, and quoted the amendment and sub-amendment as moved in turn by the Conservatives and Independent groups. Reference was made to the resolutions on the order paper, many of which, unfortunately, were never reached. It was worth noting that when private member's day was cancelled there were still 24 resolutions in the considered, which goes well for the initiative of the private member.

A summary of expenditure for the year ending March 31st, 1930 was then given by Mr. Spencer in some detail, which showed that the sum of over $361,000.00 was being expended in 27 different ways. A list of the most important private and public bills was then given and a short synopsis was outlined of each.

An interesting part of his address was a report on the work of the Agricultural Standing House Committees. These included such committees as: Taxation, Election Act, Agriculture and Colonization; Railways and Canals, Standing Orders, Banking and Commerce, Industrial and International Relations and Public Accounts.

Some outstanding subjects of the session might be enumerated as follows: The lease of the Seven Sisters Falls in Manitoba, Federal Control of Water Powers, Debate on federal grant for provincial roads, Criticism of present divorce Legislation, Grain Act Administration, Censure against Postmaster General, The taking over by the Canadian National of numerous small railways, $50,000.00 for Montreal Terminals (C.N.R.)

Two outside commissions are working on government business, one to consider the salaries of technical school servants, and another on radio broadcasting.

During the session no less than 234 bills were passed, made up as follows: 84 Private Bills other than divorce; 41 Public Bills; 238 Divorce Bills.

In concluding his report, Mr. Spencer referred to the votes cast during the session, and the part he had taken. At the conclusion of his address an opportunity was given to the audience to ask questions of the member or to make suggestions.

Other excellent addresses were given by Mrs. Warr, president of the U.F.W.A., who gave much valuable information on the Educational Act, and on public health, and also much deplored the expenditure on preparation for war when disputes should be settled by arbitration.

Mrs. Fickle, the Provincial Director of the U.F.W.A., gave a timely talk to all workers in the organization.

Mr. Shumway, M.L.A. for Alexandra in his forceful address on the Experiment of Democracy, reminded his audience that they for what they paid for in service of their representatives as in other things and also compared the economic status of the farmer with other callings.

Several resolutions were discussed and carried: that the Provincial Government go into power development; that a further investigation into the question of health in its various phases be made, and also one supporting the government in its work of Co-operative Institution.

The officers elected for the coming year were as follows: President, Walter Skinner; Vice-President, Mr. Phibbs; 2nd Messrs. C. Rae, H. Wood, Hertzig and S. C. Lees as directors.

A CAMPING VACATION

The school term ended, the roads in splendid condition, the car running with a contented purr, in a combination that just naturally heads the thoughts to a camping vacation.

The people of Alberta are so fortunate in having many natural beauty spots a short ride from the back door that this form of holiday is becoming more popular every year. It is economical and it is healthy if certain precautions are taken.

Care should be taken to find out if all drinking water is pure. If this cannot be assured then the water should be boiled or chlorinated. The latter is a very simple proceeding, any druggist will supply the lime and give the few necessary instructions.

If there is a baby or a toddler in the party who must have milk, it is a wise proceeding to pasteurize it. No one can be sure if the milk bought has come from an infection-free animal.

Before diving into a likely looking hole for the morning splash be sure there are neither rocks nor roots. Do not bathe when very hot or immediately after a heavy meal. It would add to the safety of the party if at least one member could swim well. Carry simple First Aid Kit.

Literature on First Aid can be obtained free from the Canadian Red Cross Society, 497 Civic Block, Edmonton, Alta.

Has anyone ever suggested a working incubator?

Wheat Pool Planning $1.00 First Payment

CALGARY, July 23. — One decline a bushel will be the interim payment on wheat for grain delivered to 1929-30 crop according to an intimation made Tuesday at the Alberta wheat pool office. Last fall when a bad slump in wheat prices occurred the initial payment was lowered from $1 to 85 cents, but the previous interim payment will be issued this fall.

Rumors of an interim payment to be lumped sum has been circulated throughout the country but the wheat pool officials would make no comment upon the rumor.

ONE OF THE MIDWAY ATTRACTIONS AT VERMILION FAIR, AUG. 1, 2 and 3

One of the most important features of the Midway at Vermilion Fair, on Aug. 1, 2 & 3 this year will be several new riding devices. One of these known as Tilt-a-Whirl, which has been operating in the United States for a short time, is acknowledged by everyone that has seen it, as one of the most thrilling rides in operation today. The all steel cars are mounted on travelling platforms. The platform is built to revolve on a circular track which has hills and dales, causing the platforms to tilt and the cars to oscillate and rotate in a thrilling whirl. This action is accomplished by gravity and centrifugal force. The operation of the Tilt a Whirle is the exact reproduction of the Great Wheel System, the revolving and rocking of the earth and other planets around the sun. This ride will no doubt be the Mecca where everyone will meet. In fact, if you lose your friends in the crowd, you are sure to find them around the Tilt a Whirl.

The Editor, the Standard,
Dear Sir,—

The Claremore U.F.W.A. have instructed me to forward you the following letter from Walter Walker, their delegate to the recent Farm Young People's Week in Edmonton, which they consider is well worth publication in your columns. UNIVERSITY CONFERENCE

Ladies of the Claremore U.F.W.A.,

I am taking this opportunity to thank you for sending me to Edmonton as a delegate to the Farm Young People's Week. From the time I got there on Monday evening, June 10, until I left I enjoyed myself immensely.

On Wednesday morning we were all up early to have three-quarters of an hour of physical drill. After breakfast we had a general session in convocation hall, when Mr. Corbett welcomed us. The girls went with Miss Montgomery and Mr. Backman outlined the rules to the boys. He made this a game by dividing us into groups, each group was to see how many points it could get each day.

We boys then heard Prof. Mitchell lecture on animal husbandry.

After lunch Miss Reid showed the boys how to make their beds. Then Mr. MacGregor, smith of the Dept. of Farm Engineering gave us a lesson in knotting.

We made rope halters, which they allowed us to keep.

After dinner Hon. Perrin Baker, Hon. Geo. Hoadley and Dr. Newton addressed us. The two former gave us good advice on cultivating our characters, and on, etc. Dr. Newton gave an outline of the research work at the University.

Mr. Corbett then told us a habitant story, "The Baseball Game."

After "P. T." and breakfast on Thursday we listened to "Morning Thoughts" by Mr. L. E. Cameron, Librarian of the University. After this we were formed into groups and made a tour of the University, visiting the library, broadcasting studio and photographic studio, greenhouses, kitchen and geological display.

We boys had a session with Iv Asmoni, Mr. Samson and Iv Heck on experiences on grain diseases, grain cleaning, etc.

After lunch the group photograph was taken on the steps of the Arts building. In the evening the public speaking contest was held, only three contestants taking part. Misses Odell community singing led by Mr Brown, completed the day.

On Friday morning we had a general session in convocation hall when Mr. Gordon Lapp, the Boys' Work Secretary, spoke briefly after Mr. Cameron's talk, we boys had boys' culture and veterinary science.

After lunch we had to pay out our and board money. Then we visited the Parliament Building, the Egg & Poultry Pool and the Alberta Creamery. In the evening special streetcars took us to a talkie" at the Capitol Theatre.

After general session on Saturday we went down town on a shopping tour. After lunch the Junior 4-H's business meeting was held, and the prizes won in the grain judging contest, and the collectors' honor and the medals for the public speaking contest were given. In the evening we had a "home talent" concert.

Sunday morning we had early church in convocation hall, the Rev. Dr. Mitchell holding service. Then we were free until lunch. After that some of us went swimming.

Monday morning, Mr. Cameron spoke on "I believe in Laying the Dust." Then Miss Nix spoke to the girls, and Mr. Ostervill to the boys on "Life and Manners."

Dr. J. G. McIlroth lectured the boys on milling and baking qualities of wheat. In the afternoon we went to Government House.

Tuesday, the last day, Mr. Cameron gave his last talk. Following a dairy lecture by Dr. Marker, Mr. Corbett gave his closing address.

In the afternoon we had the sports and that night a banquet was held. The next morning I took the train for my home.

Yours very truly,
WALTER WALKER

The Circus Is Coming!

Cole & Rogers Shows Will Soon Be Here

Community life here shows to be for a genuine upsetting at Vermilion on Wednesday, June 7th as the real and show grounds, when Cole & Rogers Circus comes to town for two performances that day. There is quite a bit of a visit from a circus that so changes and disarranges the social and economic habits of the country side—for there is nothing like a circus to appeal so generally to the hearts of normal humans, big and little. Old age gets the thrill of youth recalled, youth lives its full day of happiness, and talk of politics, crops and work-a-day things are for one day submerged in the appeal of the circus. Make up your mind, then, to soon be joined out of your usual trend of mind and action.

Cole & Rogers Circus comes heralded with just enough heroics to make it hostel a real circus event. There are no extravagant claims to great deeds, no false declarations of moral code, no superlatives to cloy the story in its telling. Cole & Rogers Circus promises good entertainment, pure and novelty in its program of events of an up to date circus.

Growth Of Co-Operation

Catching The Vision Of Things That Might and Can Be Done

"Co-operation is a growth and a way of living. Each day a larger and larger number of men and women awaken to the full significance of the truth that no man can live unto himself. There still live among us in this young country where progress is second nature who have not been awakened. They have not yet caught the vision of things as they might and can be. They simply do not understand, and we must set about the completion even with these backward members of society." A J McPhail President of Saskatchewan Wheat Pool

Japs Favors Canadian Wheat

Wheat From Dominion Has Supplanted U.S. Product In Japanese Market

Quality and price are the factors which have enabled Canadian wheat to completely supplant the United States produce in the Japanese market, declares Tuichiro Shoda, president of the Nisshin Flour Mills Company, Limited, who was in Vancouver in the course of a trip of inspection which will take him to the wheat centres of Canada, United States and Europe.

The company which Mr. Shoda heads imports an average of 250 000 bushels of Canadian wheat annually it is all shipped through Vancouver Mr. Shoda has been in the milling business for thirty years and operates 12 flour mills in all parts of Japan with a combined capacity of 3 000 barrels per day.

Manchurian wheat offers no serious prospect as a possible rival for Canadian wheat in the Japanese market according to Mr. Shoda, on account of the uncertainty of delivery, lack of handling facilities and absence of organized grading.

Explanations and Comments

The First Captives Taken To Babylon, 1.1, 2 —It was in the third year of Jehoiakim's reign, 606 B.C., that Nebuchadnezzar, King of Babylon, first besieged Jerusalem and carried back with him to the land of Shinar (the old name of Babylon.) Gen. 10.10), Jewish captives, together with some of the treasures of the temple which he then had placed in the treasure-house of his god Marduk. Among the captives were Daniel and three other youths of our lesson. Daniel belonged to a family of high rank in Jerusalem, and according to Jerome, was at this time only a boy.

The Training Of Daniel and His Companions In Babylon, verses 3-7, Nebuchadnezzar ordered Ashpenaz, the master of his convicts, to take the Jewish youths of noble birth who were especially fair and bright and wise, and were therefore potential candidates for official positions, and train them in the language and wisdom of the Chaldeans The king also directed that the youths were to be nourished with a portion of meat and wine which were prepared for himself. After three years they were to become his attendants.

Among the youths selected were Daniel and three companions, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah. Daniel's name meant "God is Judge", Hananiah's, "Jehovah is gracious", Mishael's "Who is what God is?", and Azariah's, "Jehovah has helped." Ashpenaz called them instead Belteshazzar, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, giving them names which, it is thought, had reference to Babylonian deities

For First Offenders

Attorney-General Of Ontario Is Favor Of More Frequently Suspending Sentence

The Attorney-General of Ontario, Hon. W. H. Price, would enlist the sympathy of judges and others in favor of more frequency suspending sentence on first offenders. After a long and varied experience he is of opinion that lives are frequently wrecked by court sentences for offences against the laws that are really not very serious in character. It is unboubtedly true that once a boy or man has the stigma of conviction against him he is badly handicapped in the race of life. Many lead and have lived those lives ruined in crime, but for those who have committed their first fault, one cannot but sympathize with the idea

Judgment Is Reserved

Privy Council Withholds Decision On Dominion Fisheries Act

The judicial committee of the Privy Council reserved judgment on the appeal of the Dominion of Canada from a ruling of the Canadian Supreme Court which held that sections 7a and 18 of the Canadian Fisheries Act of 1914, were ultra vires of the Dominion parliament.

The important point at issue is whether under the British North American Act which gives it power to legislate "on seacoast and inland fisheries" the Dominion parliament can set up a system of licensing of fish canners as it sought to do under the sections of the fisheries act.

The provinces of British Columbia, Quebec and Ontario, are respondents in the action as well as the British Columbia fishermen of Japanese origin.

The Singing Fool

SYNOPSIS

Marcus, the famous Broadway producer, hears a pianist of four that visits Blackie Joe's night club in downtown New York. Al Jones, Blackie's chief comedian and singing waiter, finds the ballad singer, who is to render a love song he has just written for her. Molly is disdainful and refuses even to read the song. Al is in love with her but she tells him bluntly that she will never marry a waiter. Then she leaves her dressing room and goes to the Marcus table, trying to ingratiate herself with the famous producer. Al is in despair, Grace, the jugenile girl, who loves Al and wants to see him happy, takes him what is the matter.

CHAPTER V

"Nothing's the matter, kid," said Al, making a show of throwing off his depression. But his was easily belied his words.

Grace gazed hopefully up into his face. Her expression said plainly that if he would only confide in her she sure she could help him.

Slowly he realized her young, sensitive features. She was an awfully sweet kid, undoubtedly, and he liked her.

At that moment someone else arrived to interrupt his thoughts. Blackie, all excitement, entered the corridor, calling out:

"Get ready Al you're on next!"

Al turned back-water eyes toward Blackie. Then, suddenly, a plan that had been forming vaguely in his mind ever since Molly's harsh rejection, took definite shape. He drew himself up and said quietly:

"Blackie, I'm quitting tonight."

Blackie retreated a step as if he had been struck, while a little cry of amazement escaped Grace. Her hand went to her mouth in a quick gesture of apprehension. Blackie was the first to recover himself.

"Don't be a fool, Al," he said earnestly, putting a hand on his singing waiter's shoulder. "You've got a good job here and a following among the customers. You can't quit off-hand like this. Why, it wouldn't be fair to me or to yourself."

Al nodded slowly. Yes, he had thought of that. But he could see other things to be considered.

"You won't miss me," he suggested. "You've got lots of talent. And I simply couldn't sing a comic song tonight—it's impossible the way I feel. And Blackie—I don't want to be a waiter any more. I want to write. The writer rushed will never get me anywhere—I know it!"

Al's vehemence increased as the words poured from his mouth. He saw his way clearly now—he would leave this place and never see Molly again. That was the only way to solve his problem. Suddenly his sense of reserve was lifted from him; he felt impelled to give Blackie his complete reason.

"The only reason I've hung on here," he exclaimed passionately, "was to be near her! She's turned me down and it hurts. She's the only person in the world I want, and without her . . . Well, you can see now why I can't stay."

His voice trailed off at his concluding words and his shoulders sagged hopelessly. Blackie nodded. Again his hand rested comfortingly on Al's shoulder. He could see how vitally this affected his prize singing waiter why, the boy's whole world had turned upside down?

"Molly eh?"

Al's head came up at the mention of her name. He looked straight where his hand had rested for an all too brief moment. The spot was burning. She saw him more lightly across the room and approach the pianist to give him the new music. Blackie's expression changed to astonishment as the idea of Al Stone, the comic, singing a heart song. Then Grace saw the man she loved heading for another room. Would he put it over?

American Chemical Society Told Gasoline Can Be Made From Trees

Gasoline made from trees is announced in a report to the American Chemical Society by Dr Jacque C Morrell and Dr. Gustav Egloff of Chicago.

They have produced an anti-knock motor fuel from the tar in the Deep South While this fuel now is in the laboratory stage, the report says it can be made in commercial quantities from present wood waste

"The development of a practical and economic means of converting wood waste into motor fuels" says the report, has a deeper significance than the immediately important to the conservation of petroleum as a source of motor fuels for the future which is under the direct control of man

"Our great storehouses of potential motor fuel from petroleum coal and oil shales are heritages from past ages, while wood forests and vegetables are productible under controlled conditions."

Approximately 24 per cent of the standing tree is converted into useful products while 76 per cent is wasted

Pittsburg Has First Aluminum Street Car in World

Pittsburgh has the first aluminum street car in the world. This car, as either the Pittsburgh Railway Company, or the Aluminum Company of America will say, has the formal title of the new lightweight aluminum car No 6002

The innovation in car building stands its first trip through the Southside and Southhills districts. The car is built for vision—for the passengers. It has windows without the usual paneled obstructions and these windows can be raised or lowered at leisure with the same ease and the same sort of gadget as an automobile's.

Records Show Seasons Have Practically Followed Same Curve

Looking back over weather records makes one believe, says an English writer, that there really may be something in the sun-spot theory and a ten-to twelve year cycle of weather over Western Europe. There was a spell of hard winter in 1895, another in 1906, a third in 1916, and now here we are having a fourth in 1929. The summers, too, have followed more or less the same curve. But why should sun-spots affect only Western Europe? Must not the influence of the Atlantic Ocean be taken into the account "

Robukes Cameraman

Colonel Lindbergh Did Not Like His Dishonest Method

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh delivered a lecture at San Francisco on honesty and integrity. The colonel whose aversion to sensational reels is well known, was approached by a "talkie" cameraman, who had a microphone concealed under his breastpocket. The flyer detected the ruse and said. "That's not honest; why didn't you approach me with the microphone in open sight" That would be the honest thing to do. He refused to talk for the "talkie" because you have not been fair in this matter "

KEEP CHILDREN WELL DURING HOT WEATHER

Every mother knows how fatal the last summer months are to small children. Bowel disorders infantum, diarrhoea, dysentery, colic and stomach troubles are rife at this time and often a precious little life is lost after only a few hours illness. The mother who keeps Baby's Own Tablets in the house feels safe. The occasional use of the Tablets prevent stomach and bowel troubles or if trouble comes suddenly as it generally does the Tablets will bring the baby safely through. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Little Helps For This Week

"The eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms" Deut Xxxiii 27

What though the way be rough and steep?
What though we stumble as the blind?
There's joy reserved for those who weep,
The everlasting arms are kind.

What matters it if errors are?
What though the night be dark and long?
The darkest cloud but hides the sun;
The everlasting arms are strong

One great purpose in all affliction is to bring us down to the "Everlasting Arms." What new strength and peace it gives us to feel them underneath us! We know that, for we may have sunk we cannot go any lower. The very depth can lift us up. They can carry us along Faith in the promise is simply a resting on the "everlasting arms." Theodore L. Cuyler

Canada's Day-Old Chick Industry

Number Of Chicks Sold Each Year Runs Into Millions

The baby chick industry has grown to such an extent in Canada that the Department of Agriculture has taken action to safeguard the interests of the buyers of day-old birds. From a small beginning a few years ago the industry has already reached enormous proportions, and the number of chicks sold each year runs into the millions. The Department now provides a guarantee that a farmer buying chicks from an approved hatchery may rest assured that the stock from which the hatching eggs came conforms to a high standard of excellence and that the hatchery in which the chicks were incubated was clean, sanitary and well conducted.

Sixteen Years Ago Today

JULY 23RD, 1913.

On the morning of July 21st, Orem Johnson, ferryman at Lea Park, and his son aged six years, were drowned in the Saskatchewan river. Johnson was crossing on the ferry when the little lad fell overboard; the father, though unable to swim, immediately jumped in to try and save the boy, both soon sinking out of sight. Up to press time the bodies had not been located.

A miniature tornado struck the farm of one Dickhout, south of Kitscoty, a few nights ago completely demolishing the house and outbuildings. The two occupants sleeping in the house at the time do not remember what happened and when coming to found themselves under a portion of the roof some distance from where the house had stood.

Stores Robbed Tuesday Morning

Booty Ranges from $1 to $80

A series of burglaries victimizing four business places occurred in town early Tuesday morning, various sums of money and goods being taken.

The front door of M. Wener & Sons general store had been jimmied, but as he has been ascertained only $1.60 in small change had been taken. Nelson-Hill Hardware Co. were the heaviest losers, some $80 00 value in goods and cash being taken; the goods consisted of a .22 rifle, shells, two tennis rackets, some crackers, and cash from the till. The thieves had forced a back-basement window and came up in the rear store room; a small slit was chiselled through the heavy door dividing the store from the store room and a heavy cross bar lifted from its catches by this means. Law's Garage had a broken window at the rear of the building showing where the marauders had gained entrance. $7 60 in cash had been taken from the till and one car had been tampered with. Perfect fingerprints were obtained from the sash. A large rear window was forced at the rear of McKone's showrooms and over $15 in small change had been lifted, as well as other articles.

A suspicious character was seen around the buildings broken into on Monday, and a strict search by Constable Olson was immediately instituted for the suspect. The means of entrance point to the work being done by someone thoroughly familiar with the lay-out. The door at the rear of Stephens Limited general store was tampered with also, but entrance to this store evidently given up. A finger print expert from Edmonton was sent for and is on the case

Vermilion has no night watchman and during the early morning hours the streets are practically deserted and it is believed that the thefts were committed at that time.

Vermilion Fair Open Today

Record Entry in Horse Classes; Ladies' Work Heaviest Yet

The sixth fights of the entry list in the Vermilion Fair which opened Thursday were the entries in the horse classes, which constitute a local record, and the extra hours display of baking work in the building, twelve entries in a class being numerous. In spite of the poor season the grain exhibit is appreciably large and equals in number any year yet and this is also true of the field root exhibit. The cattle have nearly reached the limit of the Agricultural Pavilion, usually a favorite class here but this year records very few entries

With an exceptionally large list of entries, many classes constituting record, the best list of grandstand and midway attractions yet brought here races run off on spotted circuit A style, new dancing pavilion and main building, along with All Weather, the Fair promises to outdo all previous records and the crowd is expected to reach its height in attendance on the second day of the Fair with all three days setting new marks of [illegible]

Tentative Schedule For Western Air Mail

Service To Be Inaugurated In October According To Present Plans

The new air mail service in Western Canada operating between Winnipeg and Regina, between Regina and Edmonton, and between Regina and Banff, will be inaugurated early in October, if ground work can be completed in time it was announced by the post office department. A tentative schedule drawn up will send a plane roaring West from Winnipeg at 9 o'clock central standard time, every night to arrive at Banff at 4.45 a.m. Mountain time. An early enough to have mail transferred to the train which left Winnipeg the previous morning.

Normally, postal matter mailed at Winnipeg during the 12 hours previous to the take-off of the plane would not reach Banff until the day after the machine's arrival. The new service by making use of a night flying route will be able to bring about a saving of 48 hours on matter mailed at Winnipeg and destined for the Pacific slope and 24 hours on matter mailed south from points further east than Winnipeg which will be transferred from the train arriving at Winnipeg and rushed ahead by air to overtake the train which left the day before. The eastbound mail will leave Banff at 11 p.m., Mountain time, and will arrive in Winnipeg at 9.15, central standard time the following morning catching the train which left Banff 24 hours before

The schedule of the branch route between Regina and Edmonton has not yet been drawn up in any definite form.

Pioneer Missionary Honored

Prominent Citizen Pays Tribute To Memory Of Father Lacombe

In honor of the man whom the Indians called "The Noble Soul" and "The Man with the Good Heart," and who has come to be known in history as one of the greatest pioneers in Western Canada, 3,000 men and women gathered at the Elite town of St. Albert, nine miles out of Edmonton, on the Canadian National Railways.

"For sixty-seven years he labored for God, his fellow men and his country," says the inscription on the base of the monument to Father Lacombe, and citizens prominent in the affairs of the northwest and of Canada paid tribute to him as a man, a teacher and a builder.

Born in Quebec in 1827, Father Lacombe came west in 1849 and built his mission at St. Albert nearly 60 years ago. Today, high on the hill, and within a step of the old log church which afterwards became the Cathedral, stands the life size figure in bronze of the great missionary. With outstretched arms in the steps of his heroism among the Indians, Father Lacombe stands and looks down over the valley. The statue was brought from France by means of the efforts of Rev. Fredek Gee, O.M.I., of St. Albert, Alberta, assisted by prominent citizens and old timers of Alberta and by a group of patriots of which one of the most interested was Sir Henry Thornton.

The statue was unveiled by Patrick Burns, of Calgary, old friend of Father Lacombe, and addresses were delivered by Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, Ligonny Lacombe, Ed., nephew of the beloved missionary and representative of Quebec.

The contribution ever made by his department gave him more satisfaction than the memorial park which had been set aside at St. Albert and in which the monument stood, Hon. Charles Stewart said in his address. The Canadian Pacific Railway and the assistance and the Canadian National Railways donated and brought in the gravel for the park, and because of the assistance and the Canadian National Railways donated and brought in the gravel for the park

Now is the time to see (according to the youngsters and many grown ups) the four greatest words in the English language—the Circus is Coming. Assemble as many words as you will and there is no combination that can awaken the same thrill of expectancy as the announcement that the circus, most democratic of all amusements is on its way to spend for a day the social and domestic arrangements of town and country.

When the news spreads, as it will, with lightning rapidity, small boys will suddenly take on the characteristics of saints and the appearance of purity that will surprise the natives. Cole & Rogers Circus has dodged the countryside with its appealing lithographs and direct attention to the East End Show Grounds, Wednesday, Aug. 7th be the day when two performances will be given on the usual show grounds in Vermilion, rain or shine.

Watch now for the outward signs of a model visit to the home. The family school (or is it just a pain in the neck) and back to work begins from the Christmas tree to just something to eat — but the circus is an event a day or days when boyhood and girlhood takes on saintly ways and answer when called but once to do that little chore which, at other times, is a hacked piece of drudgery.

Cole & Rogers promise a show that will gladden the heart of childhood and stir memories of youth for grown folk who go to every circus that comes along "just to take the children." Wild animals that have been pictured are coming with the circus in real life; strange beasts and birds from mountain and jungle. There will be a gala display of athletes, riders, trapeze performers and men and women of extraordinary ability in entertaining.

Curious animals and persons are in the allotment of Cole & Rogers attractions—ranging in size from the ponderous elephant to tiny "Pewee" the perfectly formed horse, smallest in the world with a weight of only 60 pounds and a heidhth of only 36 inches. In these days of the motor, horses of normal structure are becoming rare enough, but "Pewee" is indeed an equine curiosity, no larger than a watch dog, yet perfect in form. "Pewee" is a tiny thing, but is a rare attraction with a circus that has many other appealing items of delight and entertaining qualities.

TEN STORES IN CITY, EIGHT IN TOWNS, IN SAFEWAY CHAIN

Canadian Corporation Prepares to Invade New Territory

OBTAINS STORE SITES

Groceries, Meat, Fruit and Vegetables to Be Handled

Ten one-storey brick store buildings will be erected in Edmonton by the Safeway Stores Limited, a Canadian corporation, and eight other stores will be built in towns in the Edmonton district, according to an announcement Monday by John W. Aldred, district manager for the company.

The Permanent Construction company has been engaged to erect the structures on plans prepared by W.J. Blakey, Edmonton architect. It is expected the city stores will be ready for business some time between October 1 and 15, Mr. Allen states.

Sites for the city stores have been obtained through H. E. Sherrard of Whyte and company, real estate firm. C. L. Freeman, K.C., of the legal firm of Parlee, Freeman & Hewson is handling the legal angle of the deals.

The structures will be from 20 to 50 feet in width and 80 feet in length, constructed of brick and one storey high. In addition to the full line of groceries, there also will be a meat department in each store. Fruits and vegetables will also be handled.

In making the announcement of the construction work Monday, Mr. Allen said he could not at the present time release details as to the contract price of the constructions.

Other announcements will be made in the near future as to the locations of the various stores.

THE MAIL ORDER MENACE

(Wainwright Star)

It is fully admitted by many business men in towns and villages that if mail orders encroach as persistently during the next few years as present activities and their increased advertising coverage in these districts indicate, a new system of merchandising will have been evolved in suburban communities.

Under present conditions the merchandiser in the small town is chiefly faced with the problem of extending credit to his community for various amounts invariably large for an indefinite period, while he cash sales and cash which should be clearing off his book accounts drift cityward via the mail order. For many reasons such a condition cannot long exist. The business man operating on the credit plan will eventually be compelled to abolish credit entirely and with this encumbrance removed enter competition in the "sell-or-cash" market where he has at least an even break with all competitors in getting the cash with the sale.

Total elimination of the credit system in any community would mean hardship for a time, but as normal trust and loyal support are essential to the credit system the speeding of money to any extent one of the community is bound to tend towards its destruction.

The privilege of spending a dollar where its purchasing power is great est, even if such saving is only in the mind of the spender, is a right which cannot be denied anyone.

While a local purveyor of some commodity bemoans the inroads which "big-league" stores has made in his receipts, he will yet place an order with an out-of-town publisher for an article which he could procure right at home. True, he possibly saves 10 cents on his dollar, but so do his customers who buy out of town—and so the cycle of out-of town buying goes on toward completion.

None of us are free from its effects. Twelve solicitors from city printeries canvass the town of Wainwright regularly in addition to circulars and every travellers who carry printing as a side line—and apparently they all get business. And this is true in spite of the fact that a phone call will bring a represe-ntative from the local printer.

Building of Bay Line May Be But Start of Railway Development in Rich Mineral Districts of North

The golden spike that will be driven next month in commemoration of the completion of the Hudson Bay Railway inspires a vision of future prosperity in Sir Henry Thornton of the Canadian National Railways, in an article in the Saturday Evening Post. He paints a picture of centuries. He looks back upon the cathedrals:

"For years the line lay unemployed, eroding. Its crushed rock sat deep in places that the rails jutted forth like steel tentacles. Men have fought blizzards, loneliness, the rigors of sub-Arctic winter to complete it, that there may be a new outlet to Europe, entailing a shorter railhaul, and, strangely enough, a shorter ocean voyage than from any other port on the continent. It is a land of Eskimos and pioneers now."

But what does Sir Henry see planted in the northland when that golden spike is driven?

"I believe there may be a time when great hordes will raze themselves at Fort Churchill, the terminus, to accommodate the tourists who have sailed up the eastern coast along the fringe of Labrador and through Hudson Strait: then on down through a bay that was once the roving ground of that romantic aggregation known as the Gentlemen Adventurer; at last to Shamattawa and proceed home with the every comfort of most civilized travel."

The Hudson Bay line will be piped in a terminus at Churchill, but that will not be the end of the railway. "A railroad," says Sir Henry, "is never finished." It has to grow with the development it starts. Who does predict the scope of the development that will gather wings to put to flight the Mile sweep that already has proved the northland to be a region of riches? What has been revealed before the golden spike has been driven is barely a lifting of the curtain upon the great drama that will be played in the vast hinterland of Manitoba. Other prospects will not be denied their railroad accommodation. The terminus of next month will become the junction of many lines. "A railroad is never finished."

"The Hudson Bay line proves that," says Sir Henry. "For years people discussed whether the road could live, once it were built. There was the problem of whether the grain haulage would be sufficient for revenue. Now the road has been built and it can live if it never hauls a sack of grain. One of the great mineral fields of the world is up there; smelters are rising, western power is being harnessed, millions are pouring into the country."

Driving the golden spike will not finish the Hudson Bay line. It will be the birth of the railroad that so practical a railroader as Sir Henry Thornton says is never finished.

Farmers Help Themselves

Establishing Central Industries On a Sound Economic Basis

"While much is said in regard to the rapid development of Canada's industries, very few people at the present time realize the tremendous strides the farmers of Western Canada are making to establish the industry of grain growing on a sound economic basis and under full control of the growers themselves," says an article in the "Vancouver Sun" of June 15, 1929. "Every move made by the Pool is based on sound business principles, the object being to secure for the grain grower the best possible cost for his grain. The idea behind the Pool is centralized and continuous control of the grain delivered to the organization, which amounts to over half the total delivered to country elevators, and the members are devoted to the Pool, as they look upon it as their only real hope of achieving a place in the scheme of things to which their toil entitles them."

Cost Of Running Draft Horses

Record Kept Of Cost Of Raising Thirteen Purebreed Colts

One of the big problems that the farmers of many provinces will have to face for at least some years to come, is where the necessary draft horses may be purchased. Will they be good horses and the kind desired? How much will they cost?

With the object of throwing light on this question, and similar, there has been made at the Ste. Anne de la Pocatiere Experimental Station since 1912, from which year to 1926, thirteen Percheron colts were raised to the age of two and one-half years. The weights of the colts, feed consumed, and cost for each colt, was tabulated.

The report these colts to working age, an average of 4,921 pounds of hay, 3,664 pounds of oats, 980 pounds of bran, and 7.7 months of pasture was required, at an average cost of $114.37 per colt, weighing 1,517 pounds.

No mention is made of the service fee as this varies with the stallion used and district, nor has any charge been made of the upon having nursed these colts. At this station, as at many farms where colts are raised, the mares, in stall, are, before giving birth to the colts, and after weaning, worked more than necessary to get their upkeep during the year. From the figures given above on the feed consumed by the thirteen colts raised in the fifteen year period, it will be seen that the average cost is 46 per cent. below the cost of the present horse of similar qualifications and weight in the open market. These experiments and many others appear in the annual reports of the experimental farms and stations, which may be had on application to the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa.

Seven Cents Per Cheese

Was Considered Good Price Half a Century Ago

A cheese factory account book of 1879, just half a century ago, is in the possession of Walter Birks, of Cherry Valley, Ont. It shows that the highest price received for cheese that year was seven cents. For the month of July, patrons received 39 cents per one hundred pounds of milk, just enough to buy the present-day farmer a gallon of gas to run his car.

Criticism History Books

Says Canada's Part in the Great War Passed Over Lightly In Text Books

Public school history text books which have been adopted in several provinces of Canada, contain "19 words devoted to the part Canada played in the Great War," stated Dr. J. L. McDougall, formerly of Regina, Sask., now of Vancouver, B.C., national vice-president of the Imperial Order of Canada, in the course of an address before the eighth annual convention of that organization at Winnipeg.

"Such a condition of affairs in the education of our children is a colossal shame and national disgrace," he declared. The text books were published in the United States and sold in the United States by Americans, said Dr. McDougall. Educational authorities, when asked for an explanation, had replied "that at the present time there is no one adequately equipped and willing to take the time to edit such a history," the speaker said.

Saskatoon Cattle Show

Breeders Well Satisfied With Prices Then Prevailed

At the recent Saskatoon Cattle Show and Sale, gold average prices were paid for bulls, thirty-eight head of Shorthorn bulls averaging $170. Fifteen head of Shorthorn females averaged $154, four Aberdeen Angus bulls averaged $175, three Hereford bulls averaged $188, and an aged Holstein bull sold for $110. Quite a number of bulls, including both the champion Aberdeen Angus and the champion Hereford were bought by Saskatchewan Co-operative Stock Breeders, the buying being attended to by the Live Stock Commissioner. Many of the bulls were quite young but the breeders were well satisfied with the prices that prevailed.

National Research Council Will Endeavor To Solve Many Economic Problems

Rust Resisting Wheat

Three Varieties Of Wheat Which Will Withstand All Known Kinds of Rust

Two or three varieties of wheat which will resist rust have been developed by the department of agriculture, it was stated by Dr. J. H. Grisdale, deputy minister of the department. The experiments have been conducted for some years, but the stage has now been reached when it can be stated with considerable assurance that success is near at hand.

"Our experiments this year confirm the earlier prospects," said Dr. Grisdale. "No names have yet been given the new varieties and it will be two or three years before they can be produced in sufficient quantities for seed distribution, but we feel confident that we have the kind now that will resist the known varieties of rust. It is to be remembered, however, that one rust will cross on other and evolve a new kind, but the wheat grades discovered by careful research withstand them all. The annual damage done by rust is enormous, as the evolution of a wheat which will be unaffected by it is of incalculable advantage. In rust research we claim to lead the world."

Has Faith In Alberta's Gas Fields

Engineer From Buffalo Predicts Province On Eve Of Great Development

H. R. Davis, an engineer of Buffalo, N.Y., who has recently been making an inspection of the oil and gas fields in Alberta and Saskatchewan, predicts that the former is on the eve of a great development in natural gas production. He states that he is convinced that the surface has only been scratched, and that in the near future there will be an enormous development in the production of gas.

Origin Of the Word "Bumkum"

Few people who use the word "bumkum" so glibly, realize that it is a corruption of the name of a well-known German port. But years ago, when wars were common on the continent, so many false reports came from Hamburg that people used to say scoptically, "That is Hamburg!" So "Hamburg" became corrupted into "bumkum."

Lavas rarely flow as much as a mile an hour.

Waste Gas

Waste gas from Alberta's oil fields, loss from fermentation and other operations of the Canadian honey industry and "the lodine content, and control of lodined salts in Canada," will be investigated by the National Research Council. Decisions to undertake this new work, in addition to the 100 or more other problems now under investigation, were made at a council meeting here.

All parties actively engaged in seeking a solution of the Alberta gas problem, which includes a wastage of 100,000,000 cubic feet per day, will be represented on the associate committee of the council that will probably hold its first meeting in Edmonton early in October, Dr. Chas. Camsell, deputy minister and other representatives from the Dominion Department of Mines; Dr. C. S. Whitby, professor of chemistry at McGill University; representatives of the University of Alberta, who have given considerable study to the situation and Dr. H. M. Tory, chairman of the council's National Council will be included in the personnel.

Work on honey has already been started in co-operation with the Dominion Department of Agriculture at the request of the industry and will be further advanced by an associate committee appointed at the meeting.

Iodine in salt was brought to the attention of the council by the Canadian Chemical Association, and the Canadian Medical Association, the declaration of the former being that "it is not yet certain that the indiscriminate use of iodized salt is entirely beneficial to public health. Sums aggregating $25,000 were granted at the meeting to aid research projects in Canadian universities. The largest sum went to Professor T. Thorvaldson, of the University of Saskatchewan, who for six years, has conducted an exhaustive study of the effects of alkali waters on cement and concrete. A grant was made to Professor E. F. Burton, of the University of Toronto, for the purpose of developing his new method of determining moisture contents of wheat, wood and other products. A grant of $2,500 was made to Professor E. H. Boomer, of the University of Alberta, that he might continue his work on the economical utilization of natural gas. Color vision, generation of electricity, using "Hamburg" as prime mover, intestinal parasites of sheep, swine and poultry, design of steel columns and strain on buildings and bridges, blood pressure reactions and the spectra of helium were included in the researches aided.

British Columbia Bulbs

Sent To England To Be Planted In Old Country Parks

British Columbia bulbs, believed to be the equal to the best grown in Europe, will be planted in the public parks of England to encourage their importation into the Old Country, said Premier Tolmie, the other day. He added that Sir William Clark, British High Commissioner in Canada, was much impressed with British Columbia flowers when on his recent visit and had suggested to the Lieutenant-Governor, that British Columbia bulbs might be exported to Britain to be planted and labelled, in the public parks.

Growing Use Of Water Power

The steady growth in the use of water power in Canada is shown by the facts that the average annual rate of increase in development since 1925 has been 10.7 per cent. and that the total development now amounts to 5354 installed turbine horse-power per 1,000 of population.

TEST NEW DEVICES TO HARVEST WHEAT.

Because of the unusual proportion of short straw wheat in this year's crop, the department of agriculture is busking into the practicability of mechanical devices to facilitate the harvesting and will begin Tuesday at Lethbridge a series of demonstrations of a combine here to overcome the difficulty.

This is an attachment to the ordinary binder, combined which is a header barge that runs behind the binder and catches the heads, leaving them in little cocks on the ground.

It is claimed for the device that it reduces the labor and cost of harvesting and threshing and also saves the grain and straw. For crops with straw standing at from eight to ten inches standing at from eight to ten inches the machine will still greatly facilitate operations in the field.

The first demonstrations will be on the Government farm at Oliver, and it will be followed by a number of further tests on various parts of the central Alberta district.

Seven machines will be in action with demonstrations at Vegreville, Lethbridge, Bashaw, Camrose, Carmangay, Stettler, and Oliver. Each of these demonstrations will be in charge of a member of the department of agriculture, who will give instructions as to how farmers may fit the appliances to their own binders.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE MRS. FRANK LAWES

The funeral of the late Mrs. Frank Lawes, whose death at the Vermilion municipal hospital on Thursday morning, July 25th, was recorded in last week's paper, was held Sunday afternoon at Chandendal, being largely attended by old friends and former neighbors of the Wellesdale district, and quite a number of people from Vermilion.

In St. Mary's Anglican church in the new village of Chandendal, the funeral service was conducted by the Rev. S. H. Gooding, the sacred edifice being filled. Favorite hymns of the deceased were sung and a touching and comforting sermon delivered by the rector, which emphasized the pure and certain hope of the resurrection and eternal life beyond the grave, when there will be no more sorrow and no more parting—when we shall all see face to face and our joy be made perfect. Though the departed had expressed the desire before her death that there should be no flowers (which she loved dearly), there were many beautiful wreaths and sprays, a testimony of love and respect. Following the service, the funeral cortege proceeded to the Vermilion cemetery, where the remains were laid to rest in the family plot, amidst surroundings which the deceased had loved so well and near where so many happy years of her life had been spent in the pioneering days on the district.

The following acted as pallbearers: J. Dodington, H. Hagen, C. Howard, and W. Herridge.

Besides her husband, deceased is survived by three brothers and a sister in England.

The late Mrs. Lawes was born in Basingstoke, Hampshire, England in 1859, being the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Hatfield of Hackwood Road. On the 29th of December, 1883 she was married to Frank Lawes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lawes of Herriard near Basingstoke, where she resided with her husband until the spring of 1906, when he sold his business and she came with him to Canada, settling at Wellsdale, near Vermilion. This area of country had at that period only commenced to settle up, and Mrs. Lawes was one of the first white women to locate there. She took an active part in early pioneer work in connection with the church and other endeavors, and endeared herself to all by her unselfish labors and Christian virtues. A little church was later erected on the farmstead by Mr. Harry Lawes, a brother of her husband, where some three acres was donated for the church, a house and cemetery. For many years the deceased worshipped there and in the same edifice, which is now a portion of the church in Chandendal, her funeral services were conducted Sunday afternoon. In the year 1912 Mr. and Mrs. Lawes took up their residence in Vermilion, where Mrs. Lawes was an active member of St Saviour's W. A. and devout church attendant, until failing health restricted her activities. She was Worthy Past Matron of the Vermilion L.O.B.A. and during the world war her services in Red Cross work were untiring. Here also she was loved and respected by a very wide circle of friends who keenly feel the loss sustained in her death. A pioneer Christian lady, whose joy was doing her Master's will has entered into her reward and the community mourns the passing of one of God's noble women.

UNVEIL MONUMENT TO FR. LACOMBE AT ST. ALBERT

St. Albert, Alta.—In honor of the man whom the Indians called "The Noble Soul," and "The Man with the Good Heart," and who has come to be known in history as one of the greatest pioneers in Western Canada, three thousand men and women gathered recently at the little town of St. Albert, nine miles out of Edmonton, on the Canadian National Railway. "For 67 years he labored for God, his men and his country," says the inscription on the base of the monument to Father Lacombe which was unveiled, and citizens, prominent in the affair of the Northwest and of Canada itself paid a tribute to him as a man, a teacher and a builder.

Born in Quebec in 1827, Father Lacombe came west in 1849 and built his mission at St. Albert nearly 80 years ago. Today high on the hill and within a step of the old log church which afterwards became the cathedral, stands the life-size figure in bronze of the great missionary. With cross spirited as in the days of his service among the Indians, Father Lacombe stands and looks down the valley. The statue was brought from France through the efforts of Rev Father Jan, O.M.I., parish priest of St. Albert, assisted by prominent citizens and old timers in Alberta and by a group of patrons of which one of the most interested was Sir Henry Thornton, Chairman and President of the Canadian National Railways.

MORE BOARD FENCES NEEDED FOR BILL POSTING

Pure Mr. Vermilion Fair Bill Poster who covered up all old posters and overpicture various shows etc. on the board fence along Bulyea at the rear of the Alberta hotel, with Vermilion Fair and Conklin & Garrett posters and then alone comes Mr Coles and Rogers circus bill posters and covered up all the nice fancy bills and artistic advertising of the one and only Fair. Not to be outdone, all you can see now on the fence is a row of "Ads" 1, Vermilion Fair — and the fence is fortified to stand another season of high winds.

SAMPLE CROPS IN DEWBERRY DISTRICT

Samples of grain exhibits are being brought in for the fair and others are being shown around the town. One outstanding among these are a bunch of Victory oats from the farm of Lee Greene of the Dewberry district, which stands 4 feet 1 inch in height, and of which he has 200 acres, sown on May 15th. This field is expected to run about 40 bushels to the acre. Green has 640 acres in crop.

Other samples were from the farm of Dr. Knapp of Islay in the Dewberry district. The samples were Garnet and Reward, the former standing 7 inches high and the latter 32. Both are a good color and the crop being on breaking is expected to run between 20 and 30 bushels to the acre. Dr. Knapp has 160 acres sown to flax besides 212 acres to forward. All reported seed being sown.

The Right Community Spirit

Every once in a while in the strenuous, and more or less selfish days of the modern, highly organized period of the world's history, some little incident of downright nobleness, of the practical application of the Golden Rule comes to light which does honor to the human race, and revives our belief in the innate goodness of the majority of our fellow men, a belief which is frequently in danger of being wholly destroyed when we read of so much strife, dishonesty, cruelty and crime.

Such an incident, causing a warm glow in our hearts, occurred in the Carievale District, of Saskatchewan, a few weeks ago. When Stanley Dugan and his eldest son, Garfield, died within three months of each other, leaving Mrs. Dugan and eight small children, the neighbors decided to help put in the crop. Therefore, on a given day, eighteen tractors gathered at the Dugan farm and plowed 160 acres in seven hours. The following day other neighbors harrowed and seeded the field. Neighbor women provided the "eats" for the "bee." While the "bee" was organized and managed by the Carievale I.O.F. No. 20, it was carried out as a community enterprise and is typical of the community spirit which prevails in the Carievale district.

It was this same spirit that animated the early pioneers in Eastern Canada who banded forces in conquering the virgin forests, built roads, schools, churches, grist mills, and in one "bee" after another mastered each in turn to build houses and barns. And when this "last great west" was opened to settlement, the same spirit prevailed, neighbor assisting neighbor through their difficulties, and in times of sickness and disaster. Only so was the settlement of Canada made possible, and the foundations laid for the successful of today.

It was the cultivation and practice of this neighborly community spirit of self-sacrifice and co-operation which established for the West its reputation of open-handed friendliness and generosity. But as population increases, cities and towns grow up, modern systems of communication expand, the vacant spaces fill up, and a more highly organized and mechanical development takes place, there is danger of this fine old feeling of neighborliness disappearing. It would be a pity if this should happen, and it is vastly encouraging to learn of such a happening as that at Carievale.

And if we are losing something in actual practice of the community spirit, in our larger centres of population, we are certainly not losing it in the hearts of Western men and women. It is as strong as ever in the more remote and pioneer districts of the West, finding expression in the holding of small community picnics and Red Cross Concerts, and other community clubs and halls, homemakers' clubs, and numerous co-operative efforts for the welfare of all, regardless of race, language, creed, or worldly [illegible].

Helpful as the neighborly assistance extended by the people of Carievale district undoubtedly was to the bereaved Widow Dugan and her children, alleviating her sorrow and removing worry from her mind, we venture to say that those who participated in extending that assistance found a glow of satisfaction, a joy, in rendering this service far greater than any realized by them from any successful venture undertaken in their [illegible].

Furthermore, the neighborly spirit and co-operation thus displayed, and the uniting of forces in the perfect harmony manifest, at such times cannot fail to leave its impress upon the whole community. It must inevitably make easier the settlement of those little disagreements and differences of opinion which arise in every community, in communities regarding school, church, municipal, and other local affairs. It means that not Widow Dugan alone, but the whole community has benefited, become the right kind of a community spirit, borne more brightly than before.

Science has further established that ordinary summer glass does not allow the passage of these vital rays, but the very fine glass we are symbolically symbolizing these vital health-giving rays. Therefore the composition of WINDOLITE has completely satisfied the long-felt want. Exhaustive experiments have successfully proved that it is a most effective substitute for glass, that it freely admits the Ultra-Violet rays, and that its use has a most beneficial effect on the growth and development of plants and chickens and on the well-being of cattle, enabled for the first time to have healthy light instead of darkness in their sheds.

Indeed, the discovery of WINDOLITE has during the last six years completely revolutionized gardening, given a new stimulus to poultry breeding, increasing the egg-laying capacity and fertility of chickens, has greatly improved the health of cattle and is now being used in domestic and household requirements.

Germany's Debt To Allies Reduced To Lowest Possible Amount

When Clemenceau, Wilson and Lloyd George met at Versailles in 1919, they decided that Germany must pay the Allies $125,000,000,000.

This was when Lloyd George was shouting "Hang the Kaiser" and "Make Germany pay for the War."

The Kaiser wasn't hanged.

Germany didn't begin to pay for the war.

Germany didn't even begin to pay the $125,000,000,000. What happened was that financiers and technicians and statesmen kept arguing and wrangling, and the years they spent and wrangled the less likelihood was there for Germany to pay.

By 1923, with war memories fading, Germany's bill was cut down to $33,000,000,000.

This was by the Reparations Commission.

Now the bill has been cut again. This time, Germany is given 300 years to pay $27,000,000,000, or, at the choosing, and can find her way clear, may pay $900,000,000 at once and call the thing square.

In other words Germany's bill is, at the worst, cut by nearly $100,000,000,000 from the original levy. It is a tremendous reduction. England is to get just enough to pay her war debts to the United States; France ready to pay the United States and England.

It was nonsence of course to ask Germany to pay $125,000,000,000, or anything like it. That would simply have made Germany impoverished and nobody would have got anything.

So ends the chapter about making Germany pay. Just certainly is "The Great Illusion."—Ottawa Journal

Mussolini Plans To Close Italian Schools

Benito Mussolini, in an interview published in the August issue of the World's Work, is reported to have said that, principally for economic reasons, he intends to cut down wine consumption by [illegible].

"I have closed 27,000 saloons in five years," Il Duce is quoted as saying, "five more and I will close them all."

Italy, he is quoted as declaring, devotes 4,000,000 acres of land to vineyards, or more than half of the total vineyard acreage of all Europe, consuming her entire production within its borders and importing more, while it is unable to raise enough wheat to meet its own needs.

J. Ramsay MacDonald is the fifth prime minister from Scotland in thirty years. The others were Lord Rosebery, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, Earl Balfour, and Bonar Law.

During the same period, the Welsh have had one premier, David Lloyd George, and the English two, Lord Salisbury and Stanley Baldwin.

"Use" Is Not Title

Prohibition of the use of titles in the post-war republic of Czechoslovakia does not apply to the word "Von," an aristocratic prefix equivalent to the English "Sir." The constitutional supreme court ruled in the case of Ferdinand Adamek Von Lobkowitz, the Czecho-Slovak minister of interior, that the "Von" was part of a name and not a title.

CANADA WOULD HELP U.S. TO STOP RUM RUNNING

Ottawa.—If the United States is prepared to check up on their own boats, Canada will consider any further reasonable measure to halt the liquor traffic across the border. This offer was made by Hon. W. D. Euler, minister of national revenue, in a statement replying to numerous petitions asking the government to remove clearances to liquor-laden boats.

Canada is willing to keep Canadians out of the liquor export business, he said.

At present the United States has no regulation requiring their vessels to obtain clearances. Accordingly, the authorities there have no means of checking up on the activities of their own people, the statement points out. If the Canadian practice were carried out they would have a means of control which would provide in a large measure the remedy for the conditions for which they complain.

The statement reviews the rum-running situation between the two countries and in a general way replies to the barrage of communications which have been coming to the ministers from temperance people in Canada who wished this course to be taken by the government.

The statement sets forth that practically 100 per cent. of the rum runners are in vessels which carry only their trade with United States boats, but if Canadian citizens and Canadian boats engage in the traffic the government would be prepared to enact legislation dealing with the matter.

Only from two per cent. to five per cent. of the liquor consumed in the United States is smuggled from Canada, the statement continues.

Canada spends a million dollars a year preventing liquor importations from friendly countries which do not prohibit clearance.

Mr. Euler unequivocally denies that the government is favoring the liquor interests as a return for campaign funds. He points to the large actions against brewers and distillers as proof of this.

Considerable emphasis is laid on the fact that the boats engaged in liquor-running along the Canadian border are required to get clearances by the Canadian government, but not by the government of the U.S. Mr. Euler thinks if the U.S. authorities would require clearance it would largely remedy the situation.

Should the Dominion Parliament enact legislation prohibiting clearances, the effect would probably be to "drive the rum runners into the saddle as with heavy expenses and no our neighbors no good."

Hoyt Returns To New York

Plane Only Slightly Damaged In Making Record Flight

Winnipeg. — After successfully breaking the record flying time from New York to Nome, Alaska, Captain Ross G. Hoyt, of the United States army, who was forced down by fuel troubles recently, on his return journey, at Valemount, British Columbia, about 40 miles from Jasper National Park, passed through Winnipeg over Canadian National Railways, on his way to New York.

Flying by way of Minneapolis, Edmonton, White Horse, Yukon, Fairbanks, Alaska, and thence on to Nome, Hoyt made the flight, a distance of 4,700 miles, in 26 hours' actual flying time. It was on the return journey, near Valemount, when he first noticed the trouble with the motor, having sufficient altitude to make the closest landing ground at Henry House flats, near Jasper, he was forced to land in a little valley, which damaged his plane. The plane, although only slightly damaged, was beyond Valemount's facilities for repair, and the plane was loaded on a freight car for shipment to New York.

"My disappointment is not being able to go home," Hoyt declared, "was offset by the wonderful kindness and the many courtesies which the Canadian National Railways extended to me."

Ottawa. — A. H. Wilson was approved by the civil aviation branch as instructor of the Vancouver Flying Club. He replaces Percy Hallstrick, who was killed in the crash of the club's plane two days ago. Wilson formerly conducted a flying school for the British Columbia Airways at Victoria, B.C.

Steamers To Route To Hudson's Bay

To Carry Out Government Plans For Northern Development

Ottawa.—Canada's annual advance on the north is now in full swing. Four steamers are hurrying north in connection with the government's plans for the development of that great territory. Three of them are bound for Hudson Straits, and Hudson's Bay, while the fourth, the Montcalm is to be used in the Arctic archipelago, where the various outposts will be visited.

The department of marine has sent the steamer "Arrannore" to Hudson Straits accompanied by the steamship "Stanbrae" to construct a direction-finding station on Easton Island. The steamship "Beothic" is on her usual cruise to Ellis Canadian Arctic archipelago, where the various outposts will be visited.

The department of marine has proposed:

1—to suspend all work on the construction of the Northumberland, now under construction.

2—To cancel the building of the submarine detailed for Esquimalt.

3—To cancel the building of two submarines already contracted for.

4—To cancel the dockyard work at other naval stations.

With regard to the 1929-1930 building program, the premier stated in any case further commitments would have been entered into before the autumn, but that no steps at all would be taken in connection with it until the whole matter had received further consideration.

Mr. MacDonald intimated October looked a likely month for his proposed visit to Washington for conference with President Hoover for the purposes of advancing the objects of disarmament and world peace.

Rust Resisting Wheat

Results From Experiments Are Being Confidently Expected

Ottawa.—The experiments looking towards a variety of wheat which will resist rust, and at the same time have complete rust-resisting qualities are being continued, said Dr. C. H. Grindley, deputy minister of agriculture, here recently, and results are being confidently hoped for. While there are a number of rust-resisting varieties, certain difficulties have stood in the way of their adaptation to general use at present. These varieties are being experimented with in conjunction with the highest yielding kinds, so that results may produce- a top grade of Canadian wheat to which the rust-resisting properties may adhere

The report, covering the years 1921-28 inclusive, further showed that the Dominion's population had increased by more than 1,000,000 persons since the census of 1921, the census recorded 8,788,483 persons.

Save for Prince Edward Island and the Yukon, all provinces enjoyed population increases during the past year.

No Extra Harvesters Needed For West

Sufficient Help In Canada Says Minister Of Immigration

Winnipeg. With a light grain crop in Western Canada this year, the Canadian Government has decided to refrain from making a special call to the unemployed there to come to the Dominion and help in the harvesting, declared Hon. Robert Forke, Canadian minister of immigration, who was in Winnipeg recently. He stressed the fact that there is sufficient help in Canada to successfully harvest this year's crop.

"I have been through the west," he declared, "and I found crops rather light. This means that we will not need as many harvesters this year as last. There are sufficient men in Canada to harvest this year's crop."

CHINESE ANXIOUS TO AVERT WAR WITH RUSSIA

London, Eng. — Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson, foreign secretary, told the House of Commons that he had reason to hope that the danger of war would be averted in the Russo-Chinese situation

He said he had received from the Chinese charge d'affaires assurance that the Chinese Government that it was anxious for a pacific solution that it would take no aggressive action and that it was ready for a round table conference with Soviet representatives.

Mr. Henderson added, said Mr. Henderson, that if Soviet Russia should resort to forcible measures the Chinese government would appeal to the League of Nations under articles of the Covenant.

Suggestions were made in London that the Chinese nationalists government has asked the Japanese government to intervene in its controversy with Soviet Russia to avert active hostilities between them.

The visit of the Chinese minister, M. Wang-li upon Baron Shidehara, Japanese foreign minister at Tokyo, was believed to have offered the opportunity for such a request, but there was some speculation as to whether the Chinese authorities in the report-ed arrest of 300 other Russian employee of the Chinese Eastern had not further complicated the situation which had begun to appear much less tense than formerly.

It was believed in any event that the Japanese action, which Baron Shidehara said it had learned authoritatively had been taken, in closing the Manchurian southern railroad to troop movements, would deter militarists among the Chinese who would thus be prevented from sending Manchuria greatly hampered.

Attention still was centred here upon attempts of the United States to intervene. General belief was that the smoking of the Kellogg anti-war pact would be successful in averting hostilities.

Answering questions in the House of Commons Right Hon. Thomas Chan secretary for war gave this information. The number declared to be considered the present British forces in China are adequate for the large

PONTIFF EMERGES FROM VATICAN AFTER LONG WAIT

Vatican City.—The 50-year existance of "the prisoner of the Vatican" was ended as Pope Pius XI. emerged from the Vatican palaces in a procession such as the Eternal City has not witnessed since the days of lavish mediaeval religious pageantry

Following a long procession which was more brilliant and colorful than any the world has seen for a decade, led the head of the Roman Catholic Church was borne from the Bronze Entrance of St Peter's Square and returned again to the palace beneath the massive dome of the cathedral

He held between his hands the golden monstrance of the Sacred Host and there spread out around him the elaborately costumed officials and functionaries of the papal Vatican

Pope Pius left the entrance of St. Peter's Cathedral at 7.35 p.m. at the end of a long procession which had passed around the square. He was returned to the altar at 8.20 p.m

The ceremony formally marked the emergence of the Pope under the recently signed Lateran Treaties, as sovereign of the state of Vatican City.

Although he did not leave Vatican City, Pope Pius XI broke the 1870 rule since the fall of the church's temporal power in 1870, that a Pope must stay within the Vatican palaces

The crowd was so great that officials found it difficult to estimate it. More than 200,000 persons packed the great square and all available surrounding points.

Preceding the procession, the choirs chanting hymns moved with great solemnity from the wide doors of the cathedral, proceeding around the Bernini fountain to the entrance of the cathedral where the Pope, surrounded by the brilliantly costumed company, raised high the glittering monstrance and blessed the crowd. A splendid climax to the ceremony of the release of the prisoner of the Vatican

Big Fair Favored By Fine Weather

With a spectacular brace of fireworks, the Vermilion Agricultural Fair was brought to a close Saturday evening, after shattering records in many of the exhibition classes, and falling just a little short of last years attendance mark.

Large Livestock Exhibits

Horses were the outstanding class of livestock shown, constituting by far a local record. Cattle were ahead of last year's entries in all but the Aberdeen Angus section, while the sheep, hogs and poultry were about equal with the preceding fair here. Visiting judges declared that the cattle and horse exhibits were the best that they had seen on this circuit. The stock parade, when 111 prize winning animals paraded past the grand stand on the last day of the Fair ,was fully 50 per cent improved over last and former years.

Ham Boiling Exhibits

The Ladies' Work in the new main building showed keen competition, many of the classes running up to 12 entries. The grain exhibit provided the surprise here, equaling the entries of any other year. Most of the prizes went to exhibitors from the north.

Industrial Exhibits

Industrial exhibits were not so numerous this year and were confined to local exhibitors, consisting of showing of autos, trucks and machinery, while both the hardware stores of the town had extra fine displays on hand.

Attractions

The big midway with its riding devices and side shows provided a long round of amusement, the high diving attracting much attention. The grand stand attractions possibly lacked the variety of the preceding year, but were apparently much enjoyed by packed grandstands at each performance.

The race committee had added purses this year and lent spice to the program, as every heat was truly a race and the races were started and run off in first-class fashion. A full list of the winners is published on another page this week.

The new dancing pavilion with the Mead orchestra in attendance was packed every evening This is an exceptionally fine dance hall and will doubtless be used for other dances in the near future

The aeroplane was kept busy all day long until it suffered a mishap late Saturday afternoon and was laid up then for repairs

Mention must be made of the fine fireworks display at the close Saturday evening, which commenced up of twelve rockets, each one seeking to surpass its predecessor in brilliance

The Fair directors are to be congratulated on the improved handling of the Fair this year, the latter lay out of the grounds, the addition of new buildings, all showing initiative and energy on their part The races were also handled better and the auto parking scheme improved

KIDEM — OAKLEY

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Oakley on Tuesday, August 6th, when their second daughter, Lillian, was united in marriage to Ole Kidem, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs John Kidem, Yorkton, Sask.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a green georgette ensemble trimmed with deep silk fringe, and carried a bouquet of sweet peas and gypsophila. She was attended by her sister, Miss Dorothy Oakley, who was dressed in pale yellow taffeta. The groom was supported by Mr. Lawrence Aldridge, cousin of the bride.

Rev. A. R. Aldridge of Calmary, uncle of the bride, performed the ceremony.

Following the ceremony the party motored to the home of Mr. and Mrs Basil Hartley, where the wedding breakfast was served The bride's table looked very pretty centred with the wedding cake which was beautifully decorated by Mr. Jos. Wener, Vermilion. The bride and bridegroom were the recipients of many beautiful gifts.

Mr. and Mrs Kidem left by motor for points east On their return they will reside in Lanoland, Sask.

The out-of-town guests present were Mrs J. Woodston, aunt of the bride, from Windsor, Ont.; Mrs. E. Brawell, Mr Laurie Aldridge, Miss Miss W. Gardner of Edmonton; Rev and Mrs. A. R. Aldridge of Calmary, Mr. J. Hagen and son Hugh of Clandonald, and Mr Clifford Hanley of Vermilion

During the evening a congratulatory telegram was received from the groom's parents and brother, who were unable to attend the ceremony

A Master Scientist

Dean Boyle, Of Alberta University, Accepts Post On Research Council

It may be assumed that when the National Research Council of Canada is able to attract to its staff scientists of the calibre of Dr. R. W. Boyle, M.A., Ph.D, dean of the faculties of physics and applied science at the University of Alberta, who has accepted the post of director of the physics and engineering division of the Council, it will before long be able to give a very good account of itself.

Dean Boyle, although only some 43 years of age, is already one of Canada's foremost scientists, ranking not far behind Professor J. C. McLennan, of the University of Toronto. During the war he showed that he was no mere theorist in his chosen work, for he rendered important service to the British Admiralty in perfecting a device for the detection of submarines. His scientific and creative mind has also been responsible for devices for the detection of torpedoes. He assumes one of Canada's master scientists and it is fortunate that his services are now to be made available for Canada as a whole. The University of Alberta has now given two of its staff to the National Research Council Dr H. M. Tory, chairman of the council, is a former president of that institution.

West Right Air Service

Demand From Hamburg, Germany, To be Included in Present Plans

Hamburg, Germany, is demanding that it be included in the present plans for night flying services that are to cover all Europe The promoters of the service say that the favorable position of the city with its day services does not necessitate it having a place in nocturnal flights Hamburg authorities admit this they contend that the great importance of their city as a commercial center demands that it should be included They point out that Hamburg is the junction for air services from Scandinavian countries, and it should at least have nightservice connection with Berlin and Rhine and Hamburg to enable passengers arriving late in the day to continue their journey

Church Collections Safe

Using Big Nickels Instead Of Quarters Is Offering At Ottawa

Governments have been blamed for troubles a plenty, but Canada's latest woes are cited as the cause of a new ill. Decrease in church collections is the latest trouble laid at the door of the Dominion Government, and an Ottawa churchman has made the charge.

With the advent of the big nickel, church collections have fallen off, a preacher stated today at a regular Sunday service. "The large five-cent piece," he said, "are dropped into the collection plate with a flourish that belongs to nothing less than a quarter. I don't blame the smaller collections on the people, I blame the Government."

Riches Of Northland

Vast Treasure Store of Precious Minerals in Northern Canada

Last week Mr. W. C. Cain, Deputy Minister of Lands and Forests of Ontario, who has been studying northern Ontario all his life and is an enthusiast for that country, stated that in his recent trip to the far north he was given a picture of northern possibilities that was beyond his previous ideas on the subject. Some time ago The Financial Post told of the existence of a vast bed of native tantalum in Lake of the Northern Manitoba. Already as a result of the publication of this article, which incidentally drew comments in British and American as well as Canadian papers,—private parties have set on foot plans for the complete exploration of this deposit. Last week another article in the paper told of various indications of precious stones in the north and even suggested the possibility of diamonds being found.

Gold and silver are now commonplace in our northern picture and aluminum is becoming almost familiar to our mining men. Iron ore in vast quantities exists in Ungava and on the shores of Hudson Bay and aluminum can be extracted from northern clays. Copper deposits are known to exist in Northern Saskatchewan and run into the Arctic Circle and air voyageurs have shimmered down upon the surface of lakes in the far north to find nickel and other base metals.

The north is an amazing country in future wealth. Canada can no longer be regarded as a narrow belt 3,000 miles long. It is a vast country approximately 3,000 miles square, with as much promise in the far north as in the east and the west. — Mous Jaw Times.

Polish Flyers Make Test Of Life-Saving Overalls

Ask Daylight Saving Act For Dominion

Move Being Made By City Council Of Stratford, Canada

In reply to a resolution from the city council of Stratford, Ont., in which the local council was requested to petition the Dominion Government to pass legislation by which summer time will be made effective throughout Canada, special council instructed the city clerk, George Beach, to obtain information as to whether Stratford itself is asking for daylight saving time for the summer months only or all the year round.

In the communication received, it was pointed out by the Stratford council that the Dominion Government had already been approached and petitioned by the former body The Regina aldermen are in favor of Dominion-wide daylight saving time being established for the summer months, but are opposed to it being effective all the year round.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

AUGUST 11

DANIEL AMONG THE LIONS

Golden Text: "The angel of Jehovah encampeth round about them that fear him, and delivereth them." —Psalm 34:7.

Lesson: Daniel 6:1-28.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 91:9-16.

Explanations and Comments

Daniel's Promotion, verses 1-3.—It was pleasing Darius to make Daniel one of the three presidents over the satraps, and because "an excellent spirit was in Daniel," the king had thought to set him over the whole realm.

The ingenious Plot Of Daniel's Enemies, verses 4-18.—The jealousy of the other two presidents and of all the satraps led them to try to compass Daniel's death. His record was unassailable; they saw that only on the ground of his religion could he be attacked. They then concocted a scheme so to play upon the king's vanity as to induce him to pass a law that for thirty days no person should ask a petition of any god or man save the king only—a thought he were a god to whom the whole nation must pay divine honors. Whoever should violate this decree should be cast to the lions. Upon the publication to Daniel, the king was immensely flattered and, all unsuspicious of the plot, signed the decree, quest, fell into their trap. Evidently he took no time for reflection, but immediately signed the law, and the laws of the Medes and Persians altereth not. The unalterableness of decree of a Persian king is frequently referred to in the Book of Esther.

"Darius illustrates the danger of adopting suggestions without consideration. Daniel's conduct, the probable consequences of acts which we contemplate should be carefully and fully considered, especially in their relation to God's law." —Dr. J. R. Padyen.

Daniel continued his habit of prayer just as he did before the decree was issued; and not only did he pray but he gave thanks in the face of the fate he knew was approaching.

"Early in the morning, before you come down into the street of your soul to hear its talk and breathe its impoverished atmosphere, open your windows. Look out upon the sources of strength. Wait upon it until your soul mounts up with wings like an eagle. Wait upon it until your whole nature can run upon errands of usefulness and not grow weary. Let your heart gain a new vision of the moral interest it cherishes toward you—and you will not be afraid of Babylon and all its lions."—Charles F. Brown.

As Daniel was consigned to the den of lions, his king said to him, "Thy God whom thou servest, He will deliver thee."

After sealing the mouth of the den of lions, the king passed the night sleepless and fasting, and in the morning hastened to the den. Daniel, in lamentable voice by quivering with grief, he cried to Daniel, "My God hath sent His angel, and hath shut the lions' mouths," answered Daniel, who was then unharmed.

Prince In Export Typist

The Prince of Wales has been revealed as the world's oldest cub reporter. On a recent trip to the north of England, he carried a typewriter with him, and typed out his own stories. Canada And The British Market

Quantity Shipments of Farm Produce Sent as Necessary as Quality Standard in Order to Hold Trade

In a very instructive article that he has written for the Country Guide Winnipeg, W. J. Black, Canadian Agricultural Products representative on the Empire Marketing Board, points out some of the reasons why Canada is not getting a larger share of the British foodstuffs market. One point that he brings out is of very great interest; it is that quality itself is not sufficient to win the British market; there must be quantity as well.

What Mr. Wilson means is that sales contacts cannot be established and maintained in Great Britain unless there is assurance of an adequate and steady supply of the commodity sold, be it bacon, eggs, meat, salmon, or other foods. This is the lesson that Canada has not learned, Mr. Wilson indicates. We have not raised the quality of our food products that they are thoroughly satisfactory to the British consumer, but we do not provide for Britain a steady supply of our goods. British people do not care about shifting their sources of supply unless they are given every assurance that they will get exactly what they want when they want it.

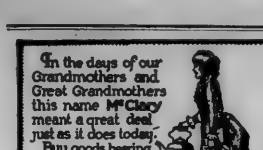
Mr. Wilson believes that Canada is improving in the matter of some food products, has shown ability in both leadership and workers. He considers it quite a reasonable to assume that Canada can work out the problems of quantity production which are necessary to hold the British market.

To judge from the article one would assume that all that is necessary is to organize and the handicap is to lessen the inertia of the Canadian farmer and farm organizations. If the problem could be met in each of the provinces and the various farm organizations have a reasonable opportunity to aid in expanding Canada's export trade.

Made In Canada Tablets

Will Show Public Quality Of Goods Produced In Dominion

Co-operation of various bodies with the Made in Canada Products Association, which will be held in Montreal from November 4 to 9, already promises success, according to reports received by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Quebec division. Montreal is especially receptive," says the Gazette, "show the concensus of opinion strongly suggests that the exhibition will illustrate to the public, through the medium of the exhibition, the quality and diversity of the goods which are produced in Canada by Canadian manufacturers for Canadians."



The Singing Fool

By HUBERT DAU.

Principals: 1928, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

THE STORY

Marcus, the famous Broadway producer, takes a party of four to Blackie Lee's New York night club. Al Stone, Blackie's chief comedian and singing waiter, is desperately in love with Molly, the ballad singer, but she scornfully tells him she will never marry a waiter. After she refuses to read a love ballad he has written for her, she goes to the Marcus table and tries to ingratiate herself with the great producer. Al is in despair, but at Blackie Joe's suggestion he goes on the floor and sings the love song himself — to Molly. He gives a marvelous performance. Grace, the cigarette girl, who is deeply in love with Al, is in tears. Even Molly is touched. Marcus seized enthusiastically, who sings the song, and Molly says, "Yes, The waiter—but I gave him the idea."

CHAPTER VII.

Marcus gazed at Molly with renewed interest.

"You gave him the idea, did you? Well, that number has a certain idea. I have a show where I can place it right now. Can you get the waiter over here? I want to talk to him."

Molly was up in a flash.

"Of course! I'll have him over. I'll get him for you right away."

She tripped away rapidly, hunting for Al, who was still standing in the main room by the dressing-room door. The crowd was clamoring for an encore and Molly walked among the clapping customers, hardly able to credit the turn in events. One thing was certain, Al, the chance waiter, was already on the high road to an immense success. If Marcus took one look at the waiter's chiseled face that Al had written. And this was the man whose love she had scorned but a half dozen times! It was the song she had refused to read and pushed carelessly from her dressing table!

How would Al greet her now? She wondered as she walked toward him. What abuse would he heap upon she had dismissed him; would his pride make him treat her coldly?

Meanwhile Blackie Joe was using his best efforts to induce Al to sing an encore.

"Go out once more, Al," he pleaded. "Give them something else — anything will do. Can't you hear how they're pounding the floor for you?"

But Al shook his head. "No, Blackie, I can't do it. I put everything I had into that song. I just can't repeat."

Blackie saw it was hopeless to argue. Al's face was white as a sheet; it was evident that the boy had drained his emotional energy to the utmost in putting the song over. Blackie turned quickly to a group of dancing girls and ordered them on the floor.

And then Molly swooped into the picture to seize Al's hands.

"Al, you were marvellous. I never heard anything like it. It's a beautiful song and every word thrilled me!"

Not until then did Al react sharply to his triumph. After all, the applause of the crowd was merely incidental, he had really been singing to Molly, and to her alone. And here she stood, looking up into his face with genuine understanding eyes, confidingly near and dear to him. He tightened his grip on her hands and murmured earnestly.

"You see . . . now . . . how I feel?"

There was burning devotion in his glance and Molly answered him with a look fully as ardent. Then she said,

"Yes, Al, I do see now. I was a fool not to see before. Will you forgive me?"

Forgive her! He could hardly keep from taking her in his arms right there in the main room, with Grace and Blackie nearby and the admiring eyes of the crowd on him.

And then Molly's eyes dropped before the burning intensity of his gaze and she knew it was a feminine trick to make him feel she was abashed at letting him read her heart, perhaps she really was a trifle ashamed at playing up to him this way and deceiving him. For she didn't love him.

Grace, standing nearby, had watched this scene in its entirety. She understood it thoroughly. Something had happened besides Molly's reaction to the song to make her approach Al so tenderly and possessively.

But whatever the cause Grace knew that Molly's renewed interest in the singing waiter sounded the death knell to the faint hopes that persisted in her own heart. Al belonged to Molly—he showed it by each word and play of expression. His love made him supremely happy and there was nothing for Grace to do but slip away and try to pretend that she didn't carry an aching heart.

"Al," said Molly excitedly, "you're in luck! You know, that's Marcus of Broadway at the table where I was sitting. He thinks your song's a wonder and he wants to see you. I've been plugging for you and telling him how good you are!"

"Marcus!" ejaculated Al

"Yes," whispered Molly, "and you know what that means. It means success for both of us."

In this way did shrewd Molly link herself with Al, as of master of his success.

"Come over to the table, Al," she urged. "Come. He accepted it blissfully, it seemed ages ago that she had turned an angry eye on him. Now she was the Molly he adored and believed in, the radiant and affectionate Molly. She quickly wheeled him around, slipped her arms confidentially into his, and led him toward the Marcus table. In that moment she realized that there was nothing for Grace to do but sit pensively and cry to pretend that she didn't care!

The Improved Glass Substitute

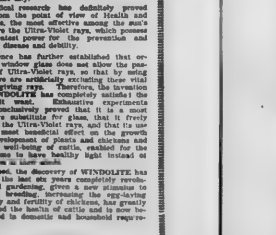
COMES WITH A MESSAGE OF HEALTH

THE SUN is the all-powerful life producer, Nature's greatest disinfectant and germ destroyer, as well as stimulant and tonic. WINDOLITE is the sun's most important ally.

Medical research has definitely proved that Ultra Violet Rays are Health Rays. Hygiene, the most effective among the sun's rays are the Ultra Violet rays, and therefore the greatest power for the prevention and cure of disease and debility.

Science has further established that ordinary window glass does not allow the passage of Ultra Violet Rays, but that WINDOLITE glass we are artificially exciting these vital health-giving rays. Through the invention of WINDOLITE has completely satisfied the long-felt want. Extensive experiments have conclusively proved that it is a most effective substitute for glass, that it freely admits the Ultra Violet rays, and that its use has a most beneficial effect on the growth and development of plants and chickens and on the well-being of cattle, enabled for the first time to have healthy light instead of darkness in their sheds.

Indeed, the discovery of WINDOLITE has during the last six years completely revolutionized gardening, given a new stimulus to poultry breeding, increased the egg-laying capacity and fertility of chickens, has greatly improved the health of cattle and is now being used in domestic and household requirements.



WINDOLITE stands for 100 per cent sunlight. It makes dull light, dull, strong windows! Stables, poultry houses, brooders and all out buildings. It is economical, unbreakable, flexible, and easy to cut and fit. It is now being successfully used for sunrooms, verandahs, schools, hospitals, sanitariums, hot beds, plant coverings and greenhouses. It keeps out cold —will not crack or chip, cuts with an ordinary pair of scissors and is easy to fit. WINDOLITE is supplied in rolls any length but in one width of 36 inches only. A square yard of WINDOLITE weighs about 14 ozs., while a square yard of glass of ordinary thickness weighs about 120 to 150 ozs. The improved WINDOLITE requires no varnish. WINDOLITE is made in England.

Price $1.00 Per Square Yard, f.o.b., Toronto.

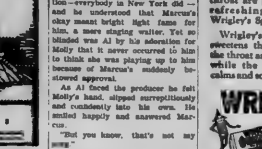
Probing Trade Secret

Experts Trying To Discover Source Of Power Possessed By Electric Eels

Six electric eels have been brought from Trinidad to the zoological garden at Philadelphia, and a dispatch from that city declares that electrical experts will try to discover the sources of the visitors' electrical power. The natural electrical plants average six feet in length and five-sixths of their spare or reserve energy is stored, it is explained, for current-generating apparatus. It is averred that one of these eels, properly hooked up, can light an electric bulb, run a toy train or appreciably egg-beater. In their native habitat, the eels retire in rocks and "rest up" while their batteries are being recharged. How they do it, is one of the trade secrets that electrical scientists will try to persuade the visiting eels to reveal



Her Little Boy Was Very Ill With Summer Complaint

Mrs Ray Fisher, Labret, Sask., writes, "For over a month, last summer, my little boy was suffering from summer complaint. He got so bad there seemed to be times of blood in his stool, and anything he ate would not stay on his stomach very long. He became so weak he could not stand up A neighbor recommended

"D'Fowler's Wild Strawberry. The first bottle helped him, and before the second was half used he was the same happy, healthy boy he was before he took sick

"I'm only sorry I didn't write you sooner."

Outlooks Equipped With Radio

Constitute a Great Protection To Forests Of Canada

Radio has become an ally of Canada's forest protection service.

Wireless equipment has been installed in towers now in the summer range on Algonquin Park, a station at Whitney, on the east end of Cheboygan Lake, and a tower now in process of construction on Little Abitibi Lake north from the right-of-way. The code system will be used

Already a system of radio is employed in the Red Lake district, pioneering region connected by wireless communication with a station at St. Thomas Ont. In 1885 was built there recently. When she arrived at Silk Spit, where Jumbo was buried Alice went to her knees stamped and trumpeted and, picking up the elephant's tusk, began a ranging. They were planted at Whitney where had to cross the railway again she repeated the demonstrations of sorrow. A dog which in Alice's constant companion was used to bring her away

Poultry Raisers Would Develop Breed With Four Drumsticks

Reports from Kansas of the development of a new breed of four-legged chickens have inspired Jersey poultry raisers to attempt a cross-train in which an extra pair of drumsticks will replace the discarded wings

A breed which will be all white and will not need to roost is also being sought by some ingenious raisers, regardless of the dire effect on church parades and get-up dinners for the companies which according to their patrons find wings and necks their favorite parts

Some farmers have expressed the fear that their flocks will be annihilated by automobiles when they have no wings to assist them in dodging cars, so one enterpriser is seeking to originate a breed of chickens which won't cross a road

Little Helps For This Week

"But without faith it is impossible to please Him; for he that cometh to God must believe that He is, and that He is a rewarder of them that diligently seek Him" Hebrews xi. 6

But turn, my soul!

Learn thou the beauty of Omniscient care.

Be strong in faith, bid anxious thoughts lie still:

Seek for the good and cherish it; the ill

Oppose or bear with a submissive will

— William Wordsworth.

To me, I confess, it seems a very considerable thing just to believe in God, difficult indeed to avoid to try, but not easy to accomplish worthily, and impossible to compass to perfection — a thing not lightly to be professed but rather humbly sought, not to be found at the end of any syllogism, but in the inmost recesses of purity and affection, not the sudden gift of intellect but to be earned by a life and brave life. It is indeed the greatest thing allowed to mankind — the germ of every lesser greatness

New Departure In Finance

Large New York Bank Saves Small Borrowers From Loan Sharks

When a bank finances a corporation with millions of dollars, that is not news. But when the same bank throws its resources behind John Smith's unpaid doctor bill that is a new departure in finance. The Continental City Bank is doing just that, taking care of such bills for worried people who are not even depositors shouldering their financial burdens in a way that is saving thousands from the loan sharks.

In a year, 50,000 persons have received loans from the bank, and 97 per cent. of them have made good on their payments. The loans averaged only $120 each and were nearly all made to small wage-earners.

Six letters compiled from the first year's experience indicate that the average borrower is thirty-four years of age, has been in the same position steady for more than five years, earns $2,755 a year, is married and has one child. He has got behind on his rent, his insurance his doctor bill, payments or improvements on his house or some such personal emergency. He needs a little money badly for a short time, and is glad of a chance to borrow at 6 per cent. from a bank, rather than from friends and relatives, and to pay it back by small weekly or monthly payments extended over a year.

One of the first applicants for a loan was a man who had, a year before, been compelled to borrow $1,000 to meet expenses in connection with the long illness and death of a daughter. He secured this loan from a small loan association of business connections at a prohibitive rate of interest - 180 per cent. Able to pay only $30 a week, at the end of a year he had paid a full $1,000 but still owed the principal, and was in despair. Borrowing $1,000 from the bank, he was able in 1928 to get free from this debt.

Loans are not made for luxuries. Thirty per cent. of the loans granted to date have been for medical, dental and hospital service, 15 per cent. to pay debts, and 11 per cent. to meet payments on homes.

One feature of this loan service that is comforting is that each borrower is insured, without cost to himself, for the full amount of the loan, so that in case of his death neither the co-makers of his note nor his family has to finish the payments due

Bad Curious Experience

English Motorists Recently Saw Strange Mirage On London-Southampton Road

One of the strangest phenomena ever seen on English roads was witnessed by thousands of motorists, for mile after mile extraordinary mirages dazzled before the eyes of drivers. "Have you seen the mirages?" was the question wherever motorists met. Driving along the main road from Southampton to London between noon and 1 p.m. writes a correspondent, was a curious experience. In the hot sunshine what appeared to be lakes of water lay every few hundred yards, only to fade away as the car approached. Traffic took all sorts of fantastic shapes. Some cars looked as though they were traveling in the air

"Three months ago I caught a fish that weighed 60 pounds. I don't remember just when it was exactly now."

"July."

"Ah, sir I was telling the exact truth."

"Men who travel a great deal seldom marry" says an explorer. In other words a rolling stone gathers no moss.

Thirty-seven miles of carpet were laid on the floors of a modern hotel recently erected.

"You are quite drunk."

"I know I am, but I will soon pass off But you are a fool, and that will not pass off" Hummel, Hamburg.

Bond Buying

Bond For Three Hospital Beds, Doctors and Nurses In Isolated Areas

No one orthodox plan of rural health nursing can be laid down and universally accepted as the ideal type of health organization for all non-urban Canada because of the wide differences in conditions found in so vast a land. Miss Elizabeth Smellie, chief superintendent, Victorian Order of Nurses for Canada, stated in an address on rural nursing from the viewpoint of the public health nurse, at the International Nurses' Congress in Montreal. The full co-operation and combined wisdom of provincial governments, directors of training schools for nurses and the leaders in public life were needed to secure the best distribution of available physicians and nurses, she stated.

Miss Smellie's paper on rural nursing in Canada brought out the need for more hospital beds and more doctors and nurses for isolated areas. "This means larger government appropriations for health purposes to pay adequate salaries," she said, "to give professional attention for people requiring it but poss bly unable to pay for it, or beyond the reach of it."

Other suggestions for the improvement of conditions in rural communities put forward by the speaker were representations by a public health nursing group on the Dominion Council of Health, the continued use of the health unit plan, more full-time officers of health, and better living arrangements for rural nurses.

Leaves Son One Dollar

Chinese Father Resented Neglect During His Old Age

Chinese sullen on filial obligations to society and a son in his father, according to Oriental ideas - were cited by Chin Mon Duck formerly of Fort Pell Street, New York, when his will was filed for probate in Surrogate's Court. Chin died Jan. 9, 1930, in a New York hospital.

"I leave my honored son, Chin Hing," said the document, "only the nominal sum of $1 - American, because he was unfaithful to me as a son, and neglectful of me during my old age."

Referring to his other son, Chin Jung Dot, of No. 9 Pell Street, in glowing terms the father makes him the residuary legatee of $1,500, which is the sum due of the estate, intrusting to his care his wife, Ng Shee, and three other sons, Chin Jung Co, Chin Jung Ming, and Chin Jung Gwak, all of Lin Far Gun, Kwangsung Province, China.

"I know," says the decedent, "that Chin Jung Dot will provide for them faithfully as he has all the pride of his honorable ancestors."

Totem Pole For Rideau Hall

Presented To Lord Willingdon By Indians At Friendly Cove

Before proceeding to Friendly Cove, Nootka, to remove the totem pole which the Mowitza Indians presented last year to His Excellency the Governor-General, T. R. Campbell, Canadian National Railways engineer known throughout Western Canada, as "Totem Pole" Campbell, because of his work of restoring totem poles for future generations of Canadians and visitors to Canada, spent a week-end at Jasper Park Lodge. The Indians at Friendly Cove, he stated in an interview, through their chief Captain Jack, had presented Lord Willingdon with a magnificent totem for Rideau Hall, and it was now the engineer's task to uproot it and prepare it carefully for its long trip across the Dominion. Friendly Cove was where the famous Captain Cook landed during his voyage along the Pacific Coast.

Canadian Pulley Forces

The police forces in Canadian cities are of high calibre There have been comparatively few cases of unfaithfulness to trust reposed in their morale They are men of integrity They bring to their duties a high sense of responsibility to the public they serve and protect, and it may be added, the character and achievements of any force depend largely on the chief constable. -Calgary Daily Herald.

Aerial Photography In 1930

During the 1930 season, 38,000 aerial photographs of areas in different parts of Canada were taken by the Royal Canadian Air Force for the Topographical Survey, Department of the Interior. Of these, 17,000 were oblique views and the remainder vertical views.

Dr. Mayo Praises Canadian Brain

Pays Tribute To High Mentality Found In Dominion

Canadian affairs may feel the influence of a billion dollars of American capital, but American affairs feel the influence of $10,000,000,000 worth of Canadian brains, Dr. William Mayo, of the Mayo clinic in Rochester, Minn., said in an interview at Montreal.

The doctor, accompanied by Mrs. Mayo, sailed aboard the "Duchess of Atholl" for Southampton, England, to attend a convention of the British Medical Society.

The cost for the place Canadians have in the American medical profession," the doctor continued, "is about 10 per cent. of the American Surgeons Association is Canadian. In all matters except politics particularly in science, the two countries are one.

"The boundary line is real as a political demarcation, and this is as it should be."

Law and Order In N.W.T.

With land sales to the middle of June valued at $475,000, and with the building permits for the same period equal to $4,438,007, officials were convinced that at the end of the half year period, Calgary will have passed the most successful half year, as regards real estate, in its history.

A Neglected Duty

People Should Not Wait Hours Before Firefly Of Wings

The hours is largely being superseded in the street by the motor wagon and the car, but he still gives service to mankind in large numbers, especially in the smaller cities and towns. But there is one duty to him which is badly neglected and which should be attended to wherever practicable.

That is the provision of drinking accommodation in hot weather.

There is a general and deplorable lack of drinking facilities for horses in almost every small city, and this humane provision should be seen to.

Humane societies have many calls on their funds in the direction of prevention of cruelty work. A body of public-spirited citizens ought to be found in every community prepared to act if the local authority does not accept drinking fountains for horses as one of its civic obligations.

Failing that, drivers should occasionally get a pail of water when they stop for deliveries and offer the horses a drink.

That is one of the least, but one of the most necessary, services that each can do for a four-footed servant.

Occupation That is Dangerous

Sailors On Great Lakes Frequently Suffer Heavy Storms

Sitting by the river and lazily watching the Great Lakes freighters sailing placidly by, the average person does not always think of the hardiness and bravery of the men who man the ships. It seems an attractive life to the one who is not a sailor.

But life is not altogether sweet for the sailors of these lakers. There is an existence of danger and trial. Storms at sea are usually associated with the ocean liners. Yet vessels bringing grave danger in their wake frequently ship the waters of the Great Lakes in equally cautious way. When that happens, the crews of the giant freighters have their work cut out for them. Their life instantly becomes a battle for very existence - existence, not only for themselves but for all their comrades on their own ship, and often for those on other craft, who have been endangered by damage to their hull.

Two Principal Methods Of Canning

Sun-Cooked Cold Pack and the Process Used In Intercontinental Method

The sun-cooked cold-pack method is so called because the tomatoes are partly cooked food is packed into a jar and covered with some liquid, usually syrup or water, and both the jar and its contents are heated simultaneously by boiling water or steam. Vegetables may be used for all fruits and vegetables and is very strongly recommended for home use. It is a very simple process and completely sterilizes inasmuch as the product is placed in the sterilized jars which are closed during the cooking process so that the organisms are killed and access by any bacteria from the air and other outside sources is rendered impossible. The appearance of the finished product is superior as each berry or slice remains intact. There is no crushing. The flavor, color and texture are more natural.

Another method, described in Bulletin No. 77 "Preserving Fruits and Vegetables in the Home," obtainable from the Publications branch of the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, is the fractional or intermittent method, which is the process owing to the fact that spores, which may develop after the earlier sterilization, are bound to germinate during the intermediate periods of sterilization, but the intermittent sterilization involves considerably more heating than the continuous system in the one-day method; also more fuel is consumed.

The Chinchilla Rabbit

Standard Of Registration Is Set By Canadian Breeds Association

Of the many breeds of rabbits that are bred for their fur, the chinchilla is perhaps the most valuable. According to Bulletin No. 28, of the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, on "Rabbits," the chinchilla originated in France about fifteen years ago. Since then it has spread to Great Britain, the United States, Canada, and many other countries. The standard of registration set up for the fancy chinchilla by the Canadian Small Breeds Association, gives the colour as resembling the wild chinchilla, and the under-colour of male bins at the base, intermediate portion pearl-grey, merging into dark grey and black, then white, and finally tipped with black. The weight is 6 to 7 pounds for does, and 5½ to 6½ for bucks. Other qualifications are described in the pamphlet, which consists of housing, feeding, breeding and marketing the carcasses and skins.

Serves No Good Purpose

Nothing In Particular To Be Gained By Trans-Atlantic Flights

No one has yet been able to explain what good purpose these trans-Atlantic flights serve. There is nothing new or valuable that has yet been made by a number of planes and lighter-than-air machines. Every successful flight reports a gruelling experience with the chances all against success, all the way No government subsidy would of course stop such flights. If aviators and would-be aviators want to keep on taking chances, there is probably nothing that officialdom can do about it.—Border City Star.

No Argument

The Labor heckler at a Pontiac Liberal meeting was very persistent.

"You say you are a Liberal because your great-grandfather, grandfather and father were Liberals?" he asked the candidate. "Then, if your great-grandfather, your grandfather and your father were fools, what would you be?"

"Labor!" murmured the candidate sweetly.

And silence reigned.

Japan's Big Problem

Japan, with a larger population than the British Isles, has a much smaller area of land which can be cultivated. Consequently, she is having difficulty in feeding her people. She imports ten to twenty million bushels of rice yearly.

Huge Seaplane Is a Marvel

German Company Has Kept Constructed a Class Secret

The largest heavier-than-air machine ever built—a mighty 12 motored seaplane—was put on exhibition at Friedrichshafen, preparatory to test flights which may herald an amazing new step in the progress of aviation. It is built to carry 115 persons.

The seaplane was built secretly at the Dornier works on the shores of Lake Constance, and rumors of the great size and power only recently reached the public.

The craft has three decks and 12 motors. Each engine is capable of 500 horsepower.

The "plane itself is approximately 150 feet long with a wing span still greater—about 160 feet.

The builder of the craft claims it will develop a maximum speed of about 155 miles per hour and a normal cruising speed of 118 miles per hour.

The plane has quarters for 100 officers and a crew of 15 men. In addition there is fuel capacity for a flight of about 625 miles with a 66 pound reserve for emergency, making the maximum cruising range almost 1,000 miles.

The lower deck of the big "plane will space for fuel, baggage and sleeping quarters for the crew. The middle deck is for the well-fitted passenger cabins and a luxurious dining room.

The engine and radio rooms and the pilot's quarters are on the upper or third deck of the seaplane. The motors of the huge craft will be controlled indirectly from the pilot's room.

The plane has been under construction for many months, the Dornier Company having kept its work secret in order to have the craft as nearly perfect as possible.

Indians Are Exempt From Motor Laws

Vancouver Island Boards Of Trade Discover Unusual Situation

There are no responsibilities to stamp the style of the carefree Indian when he is driving an automobile, it was learned through a resolution down for discussion on the agenda of the Vancouver Boards of Trade of Vancouver Island, in convention there.

The Indian is not legally responsible for any danger he might do while driving, as the Malahat Board of Trade suggests the province-general be asked to introduce legislation making it compulsory for Indians to take out third-party insurance policies.

Just Another Cat

She was taking her terrier for a run in the park ,and met her dearest enemy, who was wearing a wonderful new fur coat.

The little dog jumped up to greet the wearer, who cried, "Down! Down!" in an angry voice.

The married men again triumphed over the singles in a ball game, the batteries being Dr Knapp and Potvin for the bachelors, Thompson and Lamb for the single men. Two games of soft ball were also played by the different bachelor teams, the basketball game was called off on account of darkness. The church ladies conducted a refreshment booth on the grounds.

Tribute To Late Mrs. Frank Lawes

The Editor of Standard:

Might I pay tribute to the late Mrs. Lawes. As I look back over the early days in Township 53-5, when we stood for the first time, August 1906, on the hill where now lies so many of our pioneers, I can hear Mr. Lawes pay to his brother as we looked on over one of the most charming landscapes I have seen in the West, "Harry, this reminds me of home." Was it any wonder that with the thought and memory of home in the hearts of these loyal English folk that they determined heart and soul to found a new Canadian home. And amid the disappointments and discouragements, hardships and privations of those pioneer days our settlement was always cheered onward by the queenly, kind, hopeful and unselfish spirit of Mrs. Lawes.

The home on the N.W. of 16 was always open to settlers and weary travellers. She was ever ready to minister to the wants of those in need. Always interested in the welfare of our young folk. Always ready to help in all social gatherings, and ever loyal to her church. Yes, for several months her home was both church and rectory.

As a neighbor we knew her best, and my selected wife often said of her, "You can always count on Mrs. Lawes when help is needed"

Those early days were hard days. Mrs. Lawes was always the help, the true Christian woman, the beautiful neighbor we came to know in August, 1906 at Vermilion.

Such a life is not lost, but has left a noble impress on many a neighbor and friend at Wetaskiw and Vermilion

Sincerely,

C. A. HOGGINS

TWO FISH AT ONCE ACCOUNT FOR BIG CATCH

This Story Is True!

Not heeding the old adage that one at a time is good fishing, M Wenes hooked two Dore jacks on one line at the same time during a fishing trip the first part of this week, when he and J Vanderwood went out for the harvest catch so far this season Jupiter who two fish were caught taking a lot of interest in the catch of the hook and the other one had the line tangled around him and in his silks so you may draw your own conclusions, but the two were landed safely stowed away Mr Wenes says that this is a fish story alright, but it is the exception to the rule, and is true Needless to say, the Editor was the recipient of a choice Cold Lake trout from M Wenes's catch.

After a period on two years, however, Mr. Gould returned to his first love of railroading with the London, Chatham and Dover railway for eight years, emigrating with his wife and their seven children to Canada and settling at Cypress River, Manitoba in the year 1889. For the following seven years this was their home, but in 1906 Le moved to the present home in the Twin Hills near Islay When he came to this district there was no station at Islay and they had to come to Vermilion which however proved no hardship as on arrival they had their first meal with Mr and Mrs. P. Reform Of Electoral Methods

Recent elections in Great Britain in Canada and more recently still in the United States have demonstrated, as seemingly never before in the same direction and with a view to changing the underlying principle of the methods by which the people of nations are governed, ruled by the majority of their representatives. For many generations the underlying principle of the British system of representative government has been that the people should elect a majority of party representatives in the House of Commons, and that the party so elected should be entrusted with the responsibility of forming the government, as the case may be. And such representation was supposed to be secured by providing that the country should be divided into constituencies, each of which should elect by majority vote one representative, and the whole country was divided into only as many constituencies as there were seats in the House. This system worked fairly well, although it was by no means a perfect or even a reasonably satisfactory system of public opinion.

Now, however, it has come to be seen, or is being, reflected by three and sometimes four or more parties, the weaknesses of the old system have become apparent, and the old principle of rule by majority is rapidly becoming impossible of application. On the contrary, at West-minster, as at Ottawa, at Regina each party represented in Parliament is a minority party and in each instance the smallest of these minority groups holds the balance of power. In each of the legislative bodies referred to the group can be no longer representation in the House constitutes the government party but at all moments and on any question that may arise the government has sufficient relief to be called upon to give place to another minority group.

With the exception of the United States where the two-party system continues to favor party politics because it is no interference into the whole fabric of government, political and even county and federal it appears to be going right throughout the world. In Germany, France Belgium and other countries having responsible government governed entirely by coalition or a majority parties and a working understanding between them. Admittedly it does not make for strong government or stability in government. France being a notable example.

The multiplication of political parties is not new. In most European countries brought about a change in electoral methods. In some, single member constituencies have been abolished, the single transferable ballot, or Proportional Representation, as it is called, has been adopted and even in the United States the primary system almost amounts to a second election. In a word, it is recognized that the single member constituency where a mere plurality of votes is sufficient to elect, regardless of the number of candidates in the field no longer meets the needs of the situation.

And it is becoming increasingly evident that it will not for long prove acceptable to the people of Great Britain or Canada, or in the Provinces of Canada. Opponents of Proportional Representation have always argued that it tends to a multiplication of parties or groups, but the fact now has to be faced that this multiplication has taken place under the existing system. The system itself, therefore must be altered to meet the changed conditions.

Most politicians will not welcome any change but they cannot prevent it. The important question is What basis of representation and method of voting shall be adopted to best meet the needs of the new conditions that have arisen? Already the subject is engaging the attention of political students in Great Britain, and it is confidently predicted that the unwritten constitution of the Old Country will perforce undergo some change. Occupying the commanding position in the House of Commons that the vote polled by his candidates in the country partly entitles him to, Lloyd George will not long remain content with things as they are. He can and probably will demand as one price of his continued support of the Ramsay MacDonald Labor Government a reform of electoral methods and machinery which will accord full value to every individual vote cast and not place third or fourth party candidates at a distinct disadvantage.

Whether the solution is to be found in larger multiple-member constituencies replacing the present single-member seats, or the adoption of the single transferable ballot or even Proportional Representation, or in a complete change in the organization of the whole representative system, involving a fixed term for Parliaments and Legislatures, denial to a government of the right of dissolution except upon a straight vote of want of confidence, and the formation of a cabinet consisting of representatives of all groups and parties based upon their respective numerical strength in the House, time alone will disclose.

One thing however may be regarded as certain and that is that the genius of British statesmanship which in the past evolved the best form of democratic government the world has yet known will be capable of meeting the new tasks and solving the problems which it presents.

Plane In Freak Accident

Strikes Steam Roller In Making Landing At Somerdell Field

When an aeroplane and a steam roller collided at Somerdell Field they caused the aviator named to be plane and injured the operator of the roller.

James Keddie piloting a small monoplane in which two friends were riding as passengers, chose for his landing a part of the field which is being levelled off and on which two steam rollers were at work, hidden from the air by the crest of that part.

The descending plane took off the smoke stack and one of the rollers and bowled the operator, A. C. MacLeod, from his seat breaking his shoulder.

The plane crashed tearing off the left wing and otherwise damaging it beyond repair but Keddie and his passenger escaped without injury.

Plant Grown Leaves After Having "Sleep"

Replaces Withered Foliage In Fifteen Or Twenty Minutes

After sleep of from 15 to 20 minutes a plant recently developed in Germany produces new leaves. So sensitive is it that if the leaves are touched, or a match burned near them they immediately wither and fall off in about a quarter of an hour after the withered leaves have dropped off new ones grow out. The plant is a member of the mimosa family. It grows in great quantities in India, where it is gathered and sold for commercial purposes. The bruised leaves are said to have a high medicinal value in healing burns.

U.S. To Reduce Military Expenses

President Hoover Says Military Budget Next Year Greater Than Any Other Country

President Hoover intends to establish a commission of army officers within the general staff to see what can be done toward reducing military expenditures.

The commission, the president said recently would be charged with making an enquiry to determine what has been made obsolete by scientific advancements and could be done away with, and what army programmes can be spread over longer period than originally intended and at the same time maintain complete and adequate preparedness.

The president said the purely military expenses of the United States constitute a military budget greater than that of any other nation and at a time when he considers there is no danger of war than at any period within a generation.

It is now estimated, he said, that the military outlay for 1923 will be $507,000,000 as against the $1,200,000 more than the similar expenditure for the fiscal year just closed, and $300,000,000 more than the average expenditure for military activities of the army and navy of $200,000,000 annually.

Found In the Rich, Red Blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Actually Make

Anaemia comes on gradually, beginning with languor, indisposition to mental or bodily exertion, irritability and a feeling of tiredness. Then comes the palpitation of the heart, breathlessness on exertion, with sometimes fainting between them. Admittedly it does not make for strong government or stability in government. France being a notable example.

Many Claimants For Czar's Fortune

Three Cornered Legal Fight For Millions Left By Assassinated

The personal fortune of the late Czar Nicholas II., of Russia, reported to be approximately $100,000,000 has become the object of a three-cornered legal fight which is expected to be tied up in the courts for years.

The Soviet Government is the last party to lay claim to the fortune, much of which is supposed to be on deposit in the United States. Another claim has been entered by a woman, now in the United States who says she is Princess Anastasia, youngest daughter of the Czar and the only member of the family to escape assassination in the revolution. She is known as Mme Tschaikowsky, a descendant of the late Czar, who claim Mme Tschaikowsky is an impostor, also are fighting for a share of the money.

Keeps a Home Farm

Have you ever heard of a mouse farm? There is one at Rayleigh, in Essex, where mice are reared just as cattle and sheep are on ordinary farms. There are 50,000 mice, and of nearly every color. Yet, although there are so many, Mr. Turk, the farmer, can put his hands on any one of them at a moment's notice. About two hundred young ones are born every day, and it takes five hours to feed them all. They are sold to colleges and hospitals for experiments.

Reduced Crop Likely To Halt Immigration

Some Of Departmental Money May Be Used To Assist Farmers

The crop situation in Western Canada will have a salutary effect on immigration, it is believed in the capital. The foreign minister, the Hon. Robert Forke in limiting continental immigration and shutting it off on May 31, is understood as having prevented a more serious situation in the west and relieved to some extent the inevitable burden of unemployment which follows a poor crop year.

Mr. Forke has been in Western Canada with W. J. Egan, his deputy, and it would not cause surprise at Ottawa to find that still further restrictions will be placed on continental immigration, and that even British immigration may be pared down.

At present any Britisher can come to Canada at the low rate of $50. The nominal rate is $80, the balance being paid by the British and Canadian governments. With poor crops in the west and less employment, the government will guard against an undue influx which may swell the unemployed. Farmers cannot employ all their hands through the winter when the crop has been poor and the cities will have enough unemployed without seasonally farm.

There is even a suggestion that some of the immigration expenditure may be diverted to help the farmers, should conditions develop along the down road as at present. The land settlement board, formed by the soldier settlement board, may be called upon to keep track of the farmers in the various districts affected and render such aid as may be possible.

The Turner Valley oil field in Alberta becomes increasingly significant and its production and revenues are constantly increasing.

Gasoline rise in naphtha production has been recorded month by month since the beginning of the year. In January there was a total of 28,501 barrels turned out with a value of $154,-000, which rose by consistent increments to 49,122 barrels with $308,-480 in June. The total for the six months of the year was 356,272 barrels of refined naphtha worth $1,548,-086. SUGGESTS THAT BRITAIN SINK PART OF FLEET

Washington.—Great Britain was called upon in a statement issued by Chairman Borah, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, to sink some of her ships as a means of reaching a parity with the United States.

Borah said England has 59 modern cruisers while the United States has eighteen built or building.

"If Great Britain will follow our example at the Washington conference," he said, "and sink some of her ships and thus come to parity, it will not only save the taxpayer but reduce the incentive to war — for huge armaments are always an incentive to war, parity or no parity.

"But if we have to build up to parity, it vastly increases the burdens of the taxpayer and augments the incentive to war."

The Idaho senator was a luncheon guest recently of President Hoover, and it is presumed the impending naval limitation conference was between Great Britain and the United States was discussed.

London.—The sacrifices entailed by the British Government's latest disarmament move are stressed by the Daily Telegraph, which, after pointing out the two cruisers, "Surrey" and "Northumberland", the submarine depot ship "Titania" and two submarines belonged to the 1928 program and money had been voted, says:

Advices from Glasgow are that at least 700 men have been thrown out of employment by cessation of work on the submarine being built there. The keel of the submarine Thunderbolt was laid, and the frame of the hull was being advanced.

Cotton Strike Still Far From Settlement

Powerful Weaving Branch Refuses To Consider Wage Reduction

Manchester, Eng. Lancashire's cotton mill stoppage continues with prospects slimmer than ever for an immediate settlement and return to work of its striking operatives.

The employers proposed still to be ready to negotiate for a solution of the dispute and the card room workers and spinners seem prepared to negotiate on that basis, but the powerful weaving branch was determined to remain adamant in opposition to the proposed wage reduction.

Meanwhile a section of the British press commented on the serious loss to British industry growing out of the stoppage as a consequence of the opportunity it gave rivals to seize the national trade.

Germany, France and Japan were reported in these quarters as continually eager for the Lancashire business. The Mail declared northern France would reap a golden harvest, orders which ordinarily go to Lancashire going to Lille, Roubaix and Tourcoing. The paper said the French textile mills were working at top speed.

The Empress printed an article by an unnamed authority attacking the obsolete organization of the cotton industry, which the writer said, is still based by the methods of 60 years ago, almost under present conditions.

Predicts 300,000,000 Bushel Crop

Winnipeg.—Unprecedented development of aviation in Canada and the possibility of the Dominion realizing a transcontinental air mail service, linking Vancouver and Halifax by 1931, were heralded here by Major Gen. J. H. MacBrien, of Ottawa, president of the Aviation League of Canada.

Completing 1,000 miles of a solo flight from Ottawa, the famed Canadian flying "ace" piloted his little Gypsy Moth to a perfect landing at Stevenson Aerodrome, Winnipeg. General MacBrien is en route to the Pacific coast.

"Progress in Canadian aviation has been satisfactory," said Gen. MacBrien, "and a rapid development is taking place. Commercial aviation companies are being established in both the east and west.

"Completion of the service will witness flying boats plying between northern provincial districts such as Hudson Bay, Peace River, Northern Ontario and Quebec," he said, "and eventually the Dominion will boast of one of the most extensive and enterprising services in the world."

Increase Shown In Infantile Paralysis

Warning Sent Out From Ottawa To Guard Against Outbreak

Ottawa.—Telegrams went forward from Dr. J. A. Amyot, deputy minister of health in the Dominion Government, to all the deputy ministers of health in the provinces yesterday, then that returns showed an increase in infantile paralysis and warning cases in the last month to be adopted should the situation become acute.

"The crop bulletin" is also being rushed through the Government printing bureau and will be widely distributed explaining the disease and how to combat it in the light of recent developments. The book has been written by Dr. Helen MacMurchy, chief of the division of child welfare. It will be issued under instruction of Hon. Dr. King, Minister of Public Health and National Health.

Nine three years ago infantile paralysis was prevalent in California and the Pacific Coast states. Now it has reached Manitoba where there were at least 435 cases. The increase noted in Ontario. The department does not wish to frighten the public, but it does wish his advise them of a danger which may develop quickly because of the contagious nature of the disease.

President Hoover Feels Justified In Postponing Work On Cruisers

Washington.—The agreement between the United States and Great Britain looking to complete equality in the strength of their navies is being out by President Hoover as an answer to critics of his decision to postpone work on the three cruisers laid down in navy yards next fall.

Quoting our naval authorities as regarding parity with Great Britain as "a complete defense of the United States contingency," the president has taken occasion to set forth the importance he attaches to the London agreement in a letter replying to criticisms of cruiser postponement action, by Paul V. McNutt, national commander of the American Legion.

WESTERN PORT IS LEADING IN GRAIN SHIPMENTS

Ottawa. — Vancouver leads the list of Canadian ports with a record sum of 54,238,652 bushels passing through the port up to the end of the first six months of the calendar year, commencing June 1, according to figures compiled by the statistical branch of the customs department. Montreal exported 43,949,140; Saint John, 22,-622,984, and Quebec, 2,547,273 bushels of grain. No export of this commodity passed through St John in May or June, the opening of navigation resulting in a transference of that business to Montreal, whose figures for the year begin with the month of May.

The volume for Halifax is not available, but is known to be considerably greater than last year. Grain from the United States furnished more than fifty per cent. of St. John's exports. American exporters shipping 12,281,939 bushels against 10,941,004 bushels Canadian grain. This quantity of the American commodity was greater than the total for 1927 and Montreal's by 16,947,165 bushels

Could Be Better

A small car collided with a motorlorry, and as it was clearly the fault of the car driver, he said: "Well, well, all I can say is that I am sorry."

"Oh," said the lorry driver, "is that all you can say?"

"Yes"

"Well, then, you just listen to me!"

Guards Against Gas Explosion

New Invention Works Danger Signal and Fans Away Fumes

After the numerous gas explosions which have occurred recently in London, it was only to be expected that something would be invented to make this possibility of explosion a thing of the past. And now we hear of a little device which does away with any danger of gas escapes.

This wonderful little invention is not very impressive to look at, being just a little cylinder shaped, instrument only about seven inches high, which can be fitted wherever there is a possibility of leaking. But it only needs the very slightest escape to set this gallant little sentinel in action, when it works a danger signal, gets in touch with the nearest telephone exchange, and inflates them in power of the exact locality of the escape

Not content with this warning, the trustworthy little cylinder sets in motion an electric fan to keep away the fumes.

What more could one ask?

Indians Have Protested Against Bay Railway

York Factory Braves Say It Will Affect Fur Trade

One of the most unique protests ever made to the building of the Hudson Bay Railway has come from the Indians at York Factory. During a recent two days' "talk" of the council, which is held annually after treaty payments, the paying agent was officially requested to stop "these people" building a railway to Churchill, because it will affect the fur trade in the York Factory region.

The request was made with all solemnity, and the paying agent was up against quite a problem, according to the version of the affair which has reached The Pas. However, the agent told his red-skin friends that there was little chance of the track to Churchill being torn up for their sake, at the same time assuring them that the government would not alter them to starve on account of a few Indians.

The Indians accepted the agent's promise that he would do all he could for them, but they are far from being satisfied about the Bay railway.

The York Factory tribe claims that the white people living at Churchill will stop while furs are coming further down the coast and thereby the chief standby of their fur catch would be cut off.

The protest of the Factory Indians has caused discussion in the north and has again raised the problem of further aid to the Indians in times of stress. The fur catch has been light all over Canada in the past few days, and several of the Indian tribes have been in distressing circumstances.

Voyage To the Antarctic

Famous Vessel Of Capt. Scott, "The Discovery," Starts South Again

Equipped with the latest gear, the good ship "Discovery," famous vessel of Captain Scott, left the East India Company docks at London, England, recently, on another voyage to the Antarctic, her first destination is Cape Town, where Sir Douglas Mawson will rejoin the vessel. The expedition will join the vessel.

Sponsored by the British, Australian and New Zealand Antarctic Research, the expedition will continue the scientific investigation of the south polar regions, begun in 1911, Sir Douglas is a noted geologist with much experience in Antarctic exploration, having been with Sir Ernest Shackleton in 1907, and led the Australian expedition of 1911-14.

Predicts Twelve Race

A prediction that men will be without toes in 500 centuries was made at Buffalo, by Dr. Albert Johnston, of Chicago, in a scientific session prior to the opening of the National Convention of Chiropodists. Hard pavements and close fitting shoes are causing the loss of the toes in the foot, and the modern purpose, a solid stump with a single hoof will survive, he said.

The "Horse" Won

An unknown writer sent a play to Dumas asking the dramatist to collaborate with him. Dumas wrote back in a rage, "How dare you propose to yoke together a horse and an ass?" By return post came the author's reply, "How dare you call me a horse?"

Dumas was so much impressed by this reply wit that he asked for the play again.

Saved His Pennies

Man Had Nine Bags With 10,000 Pennies To Purchase Car

John Jacobs, a garage owner, staggered into an automobile agency at Bloomfield, N.J., under a burden of nine heavy bags and demanded delivery of a Ford automobile he had ordered previously.

The dealer looked questioningly at the nine bags which James heaved up on the counter with a sigh of relief.

"There are 10,000 pennies in those bags," Jacobs said in explanation, "and if you dont believe me, count them. I've been saving these pennies for four years and I said if I ever got enough of them together I'd buy a Ford motor car."

There were 10,000 pennies in the bags, so Jacobs drove away in the car.

Recipes For This Week

(By Betty Barclay)

SHEPHERD'S PIE

On a well-buttered pan place mounds of left-over mashed potato which has been moistened with milk to right consistency; cut left-over meat or fish into small pieces, combine with a small amount of gravy, season (2 cups milk, 4 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons flour).

If there is not enough gravy, mix with milk to make right consistency. Add 2 cups left-over meat or fish. Onion, green pepper or pimento may be added for better flavor. Pour around the molds of mashed potato. Bake in a moderate oven until well browned. Garnish with parsley, if desired, the dish may be filled with potato and filled with creamed mixture.

As economy dish is one in which left-overs are used, or that must be prepared with inexpensive ingredients. Try the following. Even though you be wealthy, you will appreciate the flavor: \

POVERTY PUDDING

6 cups whole milk.
½ cup rice.
½ cup sugar.
2 teaspoon salt.
1 teaspoon salt.
½ cup raisins.

Put all together in a buttered pan in a moderate oven. Stir frequently at first, and then occasionally. Bake 2 hours. Should be creamy. Better cold than hot.

Hint—"Just another wee drappie before ye gang awa', Sandy."

"No, no," said Sandy, "I'm no' a toper, I'm in a new house, and I'm no' very used aequaint wi' the stair."

The Improved Glass Substitute

COMES WITH A MESSAGE OF HEALTH

THE sun is the all-powerful life producer. Without it chemical destruction would germ destroyer, as well as stimulant and tonic. WINDOLITE is the sun's most important ally.

Medical research has definitely proved that those who get the most sunlight and Hygiene, the most effective among the sun's rays are the Ultra-Violet rays, which possess the greatest power for the prevention and cure of disease and debility.

Science has further established that ordinary window glass does not allow the passage of Ultra-Violet rays, but that by using glass we are unthinkably excluding these vital health-giving rays. Therefore, the scientific method is the completely unlike the new, high-fat, sweet. Substantive experiments have conclusively proved that it is a most effective substitute for glass, that it freely admits the Ultra-Violet rays, and that its use has a most beneficial effect on the growth and development of plants and chickens and on the well-being of cattle, enabled for the first time to have healthy light and gardens in their sheds.

Indeed, the discovery of WINDOLITE has during the last six years completely revolutionized gardening, given a new stimulus to poultry breeding, increased the egg-laying capacity and fertility of chickens, has greatly improved the health of cattle and is now being used in domestic and household requirements.

THE RETURN FROM CAPTIVITY

Golden Text: "Jehovah hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad."—Psalm 126, 3.

Lesson: Jeremiah 29.10-14; Ezra 1.5-11; Psalm 126.1-6.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 124.

Explanations and Comments

The Proclamation Of Cyrus, Ezra 1.1-4. Jeremiah had predicted that because he was of Persian descent Cyrus, Persia was the most important of his conquests; originally kings only of Elam, he conquered Media, Persia, Lydia and then Babylonia. It was in the first year of his reign in Babylonia that God stirred up his spirit to the gracious thought of allowing the exiled Jews to return to their own land. Cyrus' own ulterior motive was, no doubt, to secure the gratitude of the Jews and to build up in Judea a friendly buffer nation between himself and the Egyptian power.

He herald said by writes official documents Cyrus sent a proclamation throughout all his kingdom—as far as Media, Josephus adds. It was his policy to claim the favor of the gods of every people, and he began his proclamation thus: "All the kingdoms of the earth hath Jehovah, the God of heaven, given me; and He hath charged me to build Him a house in Jerusalem, which is in Judah." (See Ezra 6.3-5). For an outsider he came to a wonderfully pure understanding of the sort of service that would be pleasing to the Lord of the Jews."—P. J. McConnell.

The desire of the Jews to worship in religious rather than patriotic; the consecration of the temple was their main object. Syrus did not order their return, he merely stated that they might return and build the house of Jehovah. And he further decreed that the native Babylonians who were willing to go with them should help the returning Jews with silver and gold, and with goods, and with beasts, as well as with voluntary gifts for the temple.

The Response To the Proclamation.—Ezra 1.5-11.—The majority of the Jews preferred to remain in the land of their exile, but the hereditary rulers of the tribes of Judah and Benjamin (some also from Ephraim and Manasseh, 1 Ch. 9.3), prepared to depart, and their neighbors strengthened their hands with gifts, as Cyrus had bidden.

Co-Operative Wool Growers

Heavy Consignments Expected This Year From All the Provinces

"This is going to be a heavy consignment year for wool from all provinces," said H. J. Tisdale, of the Canadian Co-Operative Wool Growers, upon his return from an extensive tour of the west. After a month in the principal sheep districts Mr. Tisdale estimated that the total of wool shipments to the Wool Growers this year will exceed by around 2,000,000 pounds divided as follows:—British Columbia, 400,000; Alberta, 1,500,000; Saskatchewan, 600,000, and Manitoba 300,000 pounds.

King George Often Visits Building Erected By Ex-Service Men

Those Canadian ex-service men who were stationed in the vicinity of Windsor Castle during the war, and who were responsible for the erection of the Canadian Hut on the edge of the Castle Gardens, will learn with satisfaction of the unalloyed delight which is being derived from the structure at present.

The hut owes its origin to the spirit of boredom which afflicted a number of Canadian convalescents who were recuperating from wounds and illness at Windsor. Tired of doing nothing, all his kingdom—as far as Media, Josephus adds. It was his policy to claim the favor of the gods of every people, and he began his proclamation thus: "All the kingdoms of the earth hath Jehovah, the God of heaven, given me; and He hath charged me to build Him a house in Jerusalem, which is in Judah." (See Ezra 6.3-5). For an outsider he came to a wonderfully pure understanding of the sort of service that would be pleasing to the Lord of the Jews."—P. J. McConnell.

Recipe For a Delicious Uncooked Salad Dressing

To add tastiness to the salads and green vegetables which are both cheap and healthful at present, the following salad dressing recipe is most useful:

2 eggs beaten until light.
1 teaspoonful salt.
1 teaspoonful mustard.
1 cup vinegar.
1 can Eagle Brand Milk.

Mix well together the ingredients except vinegar, for a few minutes. Add vinegar, stir well and set aside for a few minutes to thicken. This dressing will keep for weeks.

Quebec Had Snow In June

Five different places reported snow in the month of June. The Coutts line in the Lake St. Peter region headed the list with a two-inch fall there on the 20th. Stratford Mines ranged to the other extreme, for, in addition to recording traces of snow, it also registered the first day of the month. Elsewhere, the mercury soared to 96 degrees on June 20.

Marcus, the famous Broadway producer, takes a party of four to Blackie's New York night club, Al Stone, Blackie's chief comedian and singing waiter, is desperately in love with Molly, the ballad singer, but she scornfully rejects him. Then she goes to the Marcus table and talks to ingenious herself with such the great producer. In a despairing effort to touch Molly's heart Al sings "Sonny Boy" to her and she is called he has written for her. The song is a sensation and Marcus calls Al and offers to buy it. Meanwhile Molly has made up to Al and the latter refuses to sell the song unless Molly is allowed to sing it as a headliner in a Marcus revue. Marcus consents. Once, the organist, Al is deeply in love with Al, is in the background.

CHAPTER VIII

As Al heard Marcus's words he turned quickly and beamed on Molly. He realized that now Marcus would not only take the song, but he would make Molly a headliner. Years of reticence and grinding had filled Molly's eyes. After all she was not a woman of stone; she did appreciate the gallant and grateful thing waiter had made in her behalf.

Now Al became aware of a clatter behind him, in front, and all around. The crowd was on to Marcus's table and refused to be cheated of its encore. The applause was deafening; the customers were pounding on the tables, and their voices came in monotonous, insistent, rising chants, "We want Al, we want Al, we want Al!"

Al rose and looked around.

"You'll have to get over them another," said Marcus, smiling. "Have you any more songs ready?"

"Yes, I have others," Al replied. Then he saw Blackie approaching.

"Can't you give them something else?"

Al nodded and Blackie advanced to the center of the floor.

"Ladies and gentlemen" his powerful voice filled the room "Mr. Al Stone, the world's premier singing waiter, is going to entertain us with another number of his own com-po-si-tion in response to the insistent demand. I wish to thank you Mr. Marcus for giving the club for the rousing re-ception you have given him"

Again Al answered to the plane, drew from his pocket a number of ballads, and selected "I've Got a Rainbow Round My Shoulder." Could he put this one over too? Yes, he was sure he could — so quickly is self-confidence born — soon as success is once achieved. And, true to his feeling, he swept through the song to another triumph. Amid conclusion, while Molly's eyes remained fixed on him in rapturous adoration.

Now the night was ended at Blackie Joe's Marcus and his party had gone and the last of the other customers had vanished too. Waiters were hurriedly piling chairs on tables, scrub-women appeared with buckets and mops, lights were

In a tiny dressing room at the back of the building, Grace, the cigarette girl, had taken the tray from her shoulder, balanced her accounts for the evening and slipped into simple and inexpensive blue serge dress.

Generally Grace had a good natured color, but this morning the pink sunlight, slanting through her dressing room window, revealed her face pallid. Her eyes, dark and sombre, rouge than usual, to accentuate the brave front she felt she must assume. For as she pulled her light-fitting hat over her dark hair and slipped into her coat, these words were beating in her head:

"He's in love with Molly and he means to marry her!"

Over and over again the words sounded, like a dirge. And they seemed to take on rhythm, the rhythm of "Always." The love ballad Al had sung to Molly.

Grace heard footsteps in the hallway and turned to confront Blackie Joe. There was good old Blackie, gazing at her with kindly eyes. Finally he said:

"Where do you feel, little one?"

"Oh -so-so."

She couldn't say she felt splendid; she didn't have the strength to lie about it, and she knew Blackie wouldn't believe it.

"Listen, Grace," suggested Blackie, "don't take things so hard. I know how you feel toward Al; don't you think I've been watching you and sympathizing with you? But you're beating your head against a stone wall."

"I know it." Grace tried desperately to keep her lips firm. "I've thought things all out—I realized tonight there wasn't a chance for me. But I can't stop loving him just because he loves Molly."

"You can't over, at this moment, Molly," announced Blackie, "but you'll be able to, soon. You're only a kid, and you'll find someone else. Look at me. I've been a bad egg. With me it was on with a new one and off with the old one every day or so."

"That may be true of you," said Grace, wearily, "but I think I know my own heart. I'll never love anyone but Al—I know I won't."

Blackie laughed, came over and patted her on the head.

"You don't you tell all about that!" continued Grace, with passionate emphasis. "I don't want him to know how I feel toward him—it would spoil his happiness. And, above all things, I want Al to be happy! He's been wonderful to me—why, he's the best, kindest, best-looking man in the world. Promise me you'll keep mum about me, Blackie"

"Not a word, kid," said Blackie reassuringly.

"I know how he feels towards me," Grace went on. "I've got him a younger sister to him. I wish him all the happiness in the world I know he'll be leaving us. I'll lost sut forever and -that's that."

"Don't be too sure," Blackie recommended.

"What do you mean?"

"I don't mean nothin' except — well, forever's a long time."

Grace rose and moved listlessly toward the door.

"Thanks for taking an interest, Blackie. See you tonight. So long."

"So long." Blackie looked after the sagging little figure that was usually so lithe and vibrant with vitality. He shook his head sadly.

Grace, passing through the serpentine corridors, heard voices—the voices of Al and Molly. They were talking in Molly's dressing room. She did not mean to listen, yet she stopped as she heard Al say enthusiastically:

"We can't lose, Molly. Marcus will sign us up tomorrow and we'll move over to the bright lights and the big money. Then we'll get married. That will be the happiest day of my life, darling!"

"Yes," came Molly's eager voice, "we'll get married and we'll go to the very top. Al, I've always known you had it in you. When I heard you sing tonight I was sure!"

The faint flicker of an unbelieving smile crossed Grace's face, but she made no sound. Then came Molly's voice again:

"We'll leave this dirty hole cold—and good—tomorrow—"

At this, Al paused. Then he remonstrated.

"No, no, Molly? That wouldn't be fair to Blackie. He's done a lot for you and me. It's true I thought of quitting tonight, but I've got because I believed you didn't love me. And I couldn't stand the thought of staying. Now its different; let's give Blackie two weeks' notice and reconsider that a minor matter.

Harvesters' Excursion To West May Not Be Run This Year

The harvest hands' excursions to the West will be discontinued for this year at least. They may never be renewed. For a series of good crops has brought a rush of laborsaving machinery to the prairies. And the "combines" that thresh as they reap have done away with a tremendous amount of manual labor on the farm.

And if the harvest hands' excursions have passed into history the newer generations of Canadians will have lost a splendid opportunity to see Canada incl.—Toronto Telegram.

Objections To Skyscrapers

Create Traffic Problems By Congestion and Shut Out Air

It is reported that skyscrapers of one hundred and fifty stories are contemplated by American architects, with colored stone which will merge in blues and pinks into the clouds. People looking up at them will scarcely be able to tell where the stone ends and the sky begins.

Chicago is said to be protesting against a building which, with its tower, will attain one hundred stories. The commissioner of buildings only recently revoked a permit to build one of sixty stories.

Skyscrapers are undeniably fine monuments to the skill of architects, but there must be a halt somewhere if city life is not to become intolerable. They have two main objections. One is that these vast structures house day workers to the number of ten thousand or more, and when they spring up in groups, which they have a habit of doing, they bring together in restricted areas that enormous crowds of people, assembled to be the population of quite a large city, and create traffic problems that baffle the wit of man to solve.

The second is that the erection of these tremendous walls of stone, reaching to the clouds, shuts out the air and renders the atmosphere unrelating to all those whose lot it is to spend their working days within those areas.

There is also a fire menace, although modern construction renders that a minor matter.

Still, there was a bad fire two years ago in the top of a skyscraper in New York which was in course of construction at the time, and there is something to be said for the point of view of conservative old London, whose laws decree that no building shall exceed one hundred feet, before the days of steel and cement had to deal with fires at a greater height, and that human lives are endangered by tall buildings in such circumstances

No Business Depression

Business and Industry Expected To Continue At High Level Throughout the Year

"In the early months of 1929 there were a number of factors in the Canadian business situation, such as the low price of wheat and the tightness of money which seemed to portend at least a minor recession in business activity for the balance of the year, but, somewhat contrary to general expectations, business and industry have continued at a high level throughout the spring and early summer," says the monthly business review of the Royal Bank of Canada. "With the severe credit strain somewhat relieved and with the wheat prices at a much more satisfactory level, there is no question but that prospects for the remainder of the year have shown substantial improvement"

The remainder that probable wheat prices will be raised for the coming crop has done much to relieve the gloom caused by the decrease in the size of the crop," says the report

The trouble with most people who know a little is that they invariably tell a little more.

New Zealand, having obtained a foothold for butter in Canada, is proceeding to take further advantage of it. The Auckland Sun states that one of the largest dairy operators, who controls about one-third of the produce shipped from that dominion, is engaged in a scheme to control at least fifty-five per cent. of the output.

It adds that alliances have been formed with Australian houses that advertising has been arranged in Canada and the United Kingdom and that, "a recently-concluded agreement provides that New Zealand butter will be on the Canadian market all the year round.'

PROTEIN TESTS FOR WHEAT IN THE VERMILION DISTRICT

During the summer about one hundred samples of wheat from the Vermilion district were tested for protein at the School of Agriculture. Ninety-five per cent of the samples tested more than 11 per and less than 13 per. These figures show that the wheat of this district was of good average quality with respect to the protein content.

It is the intention of the Department of Agriculture to give the farmers of this district an opportunity of having their wheat tested for protein again this year, free of charge. Arrangements have been made to test over one thousand samples. The wisdom would be very pleased if every farmer having grain to any of the points mentioned below would send in at least one sample. Any farmer desiring more than one variety tested may send in a sample of each, or if any farmer desiring wheat from different fields or different quarters may also send in a sample of each.

Wheat will be collected at the following points: Vermilion, Dorradale, Kitscoty, Dewberry, Clandonald, Rumpley, Derwent, Myrnam, Mannville and Clayamore. All that is necessary is to leave an ordinary sack of your wheat (5-lb) at the elevator with the following information on or in the sack: Name; Post Office; P. O. Location of land where wheat was grown (Sec., Twp., Range); 4, Variety; 5, Grade; 6, Yield; 7, Treatment of land, or crop grown the previous year (summerfallow, wheat, etc.)

The samples will be collected during September, October, and November, and tested during the winter months at the School of Agriculture. Results will be mailed to farmers as soon as available.

Canada has one motor vehicle for every nine persons of population. A recent estimate places the aggregate number of motor vehicles in the Dominion at 1,076,518. Only three countries exceed Canada in number density of motor cars, namely, United States, with one for every 4.11 persons; Hawaiian Islands 7.9 persons, and New Zealand 8.4 persons.

Canadians are the world's greatest newspaper readers. A recent compilation made by the Canadian Government Bureau of Statistics shows that the total consumption of tooth in the Dominion last year was 250,000,000 pounds or a per capita consumption for the year of 23.21 pounds, an increase of nearly half a pound per head of population compared with 1927.

J. M. R. Fairgrieve, chief engineer, Canadian Pacific Railway, and Dr F. A. Cehy, chief engineer, Ontario Hydro Electric Commission, have been selected as Canadian delegates to the Tokio sectional session of the World's Power Conference to be held in Japan in October. They were nominated at a meeting of Canada's executive conference committee.

The steady increase in the use of electric power per capita in Canada is shown by a recent compilation of figures for 1926 and 1927. During this period the amount of power used per 100 of population increased from 45 to 49 horse-power, or the use of power per inhabitant increased by 44 per cent.

Fifty Years of Progress

Locomotive number 5000, greatest on the British Empire, one of a fleet of twenty for use on the heavy grades of the British Columbia mountains, has just been released for service on the Canadian Pacific Railway. Oil-burning and weighing close on three-quarters of a million pounds with engine and tender and having a length of 88 feet over all, it furnishes an interesting contrast with the coal-burning "Countess of Dufferin" which came in Winnipeg from Minneapolis, fifty-two years ago next October.

Practice effort of the Countess was 9,000 lbs., as compared with that of 75,000 lbs. of the 5900. The latter represents the latest developments in locomotive engineering and was built to specifications furnished by the motive power and rolling stock department of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The hotel which was on the European plan the inmates getting their own meals, was fired up in an old house on the waterfront with cookhouse, beds, fire places, stoves, dirty pounds of coffee and everything but a telephone and a bath.

And oh, she dresses just so neat—

"BABY ON ICE"

Mayor Fallow's Son in Peculiar Incident

Being put on ice doesn't come with the every-day scope of human experience, but young Wm. Fallow, Jr., husky four-year-old son of Mayor Fallow, found himself in that particular position last Friday morning when the large door of the family refrigerator shut on him and remain on the outside, leaving young Bill encased in an air-tight refrigerator amidst eggs, milk, butter, salad dressing and all other household articles—usually found in an ice box. The refrigerator is situated in the unused portion of the house and the small boy's screams had subsided to a gurgle before he was extricated from a perilous position. However, the youngster had the satisfaction of wrecking the interior of the refrigerator, even though he was much cramped for room to move in, and a mighty omelette and Billie Fallow greeted the Mayor's view when he finally traced the sound of the cries and opened the door of the boy's prison.

Wheat cutting in fairly under way throughout the district. The short grain is being harvested in various ways in an attempt to salvage as much as possible. Many ingenious methods are being introduced and are proving effective. One farmer, for instance, who is cutting under the above conditions, figures on obtaining around 10 bushels of wheat per acre. While short crops predominate, there are many fields of fine grain which will yield well and an exceedingly large acreage of wheat the binder will handle in the usual way with fairly good returns.

On a recent trip to Myrnam to look after his milling interests there, W. H. Wiebe brought back samples of wheat of that district with indications that Myrnam farmers will garner a bumper crop. The season has been most favorable to that section of country and returns of 40 bushels per acre are expected.

APPLES FROM MANITOBA.

Although there have been demonstrations of the fruit growing possibilities of prairie soil and prairie climate, in the Vermilion area as a rule prize to most people that air thousand boxes of apples will be shipped this year from the experimental farm at Morden, Manitoba. The superintendent points out that the farm is not aiming to produce fruit in commercial quantities, but rather to develop hardy plants from seed grown on the farm, so that in time there may be a race of fruit trees sent out that will thrive in the west and withstand our severest winters.

Mention was made not so long ago of the success attending the production of plums, cherries and crabapples as well as the small fruits, at the C.P.R. experimental farm in southern Alberta.

IT'S BETTER BECAUSE IT'S CANADIAN

Should Prohibit Stunt Flying

Pilots Should Be Prevented From Taking Unnecessary Chances

Aviation officials at Ottawa state that Captain Goble, who, with a passenger, was killed recently in a crash near Montreal, had been stunt flying. It is not stated that this was the cause of the accident, but it has been the cause of many other fatalities. We think that, until planes become safer than they are now, stunt flying should be prohibited by law, at least there should be such prohibition when passengers are carried.

Flying in the best of planes, piloted by the most skillful and careful of aviators, is not without its hazards. Every day one can read in the papers of planes crashing while engaged in straight flying and in charge of experienced pilots. A plane goes into a nose dive and, in spite of every effort of the man in charge of the controls, crashes and bursts into flames and it is all over with the unfortunate occupants. Few flying should be regarded as a serious undertaking. There is always the element of risk. The mastery of planes, fortunately, does not crash but some do even when carefully piloted. Several things may go wrong to send a plane to destruction.

This being so, the plane that is already safe is seriously flown has a better chance of keeping in the air than the one that is put through a series of stunts. A pilot's business should not be to provide thrills, but to make flying as safe as it is possible to make it. This he cannot possibly do if he engages in stunt flying. Aviators should be serious-minded and not try to stage a circus in the air. Apparently, however, some of them are not built that way, and the law should see that they do not endanger their own and others' lives by stunt flying. Stop this foolhardy flying by prohibiting it. Feeding Of Poultry

A Balanced Ration Consists Of Proper Amounts Of Protein, Carbohydrates and Fat

The feeding of poultry is more or less like the feeding of any other livestock, and the ration used must be varied according to the purpose for which it is intended. For successful feeding it is necessary to use grains, both whole and ground, green food, animal food, mineral food and water liberally supplied. Charcoal may also be used to advantage.

These foods must not only be supplied, but they must be supplied in such quantities that they will form a ration suited to the purpose for which it is intended. Such a ration is called a balanced ration. "Poultry Feeding," Bulletin No. 111 of the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, available at the Publications Branch, describes a balanced ration as one that contains protein, carbohydrates, and fat—the elements of nutrition—in the proportion required for the maintenance and activities of the animal to which it is fed. This however is not all. In the light of more recent knowledge, it is known (1) that it is essential that the ration contain protein, not only in amount, but of the right kind; (2) that there be an adequate supply of mineral matter, and (3) that the ration contain sufficient vitamines of the right kinds.

Make Good Hay Crop

Oats Infested With Rust No Good As Grain

Fields of oats which have become badly infested with rust will generally give a better crop of hay than they will of grain. Rust first appears in the summer as dark reddish-brown or rust-colored pustules, usually on the stems and leaf sheaths, sometimes also on the leaves and chaff These rust will be found to contain a reddish powder. Later in the season the plants become covered with black lines. Rust lowers the yield of grain very materially, and where the infestation is severe on oats the crop may be made into hay by cutting before the kernels are in the milk stage

Canning By Cold-Pack Method

Rules To Be Carefully Followed In Order To Insure Success

Select fresh, ripe fruits, allowing the shortest time possible between time of picking and canning. It is best advisable to use overripe or soft fruit. Do not use fruit picked immediately after a rain as it is usually soft, and, in the case of strawberries, often has sand or dirt adhering.

Grade the fruits according to size, shape, degree of ripeness, and colour so that the contents of each jar will be as nearly uniform as possible. Pick over and remove all fruits with bruised or decayed parts.

Wash the small fruits by placing in a colander and sprinkling water very carefully over them.

The large firm fruits should be thoroughly washed, then blanched, and cold-dipped where necessary to remove skins, etc.

Pack the fruit carefully into tested sterilized jars, packing as firmly as possible without crushing the fruits.

Fill the jars to overflowing with boiling hot syrups.

Adjust rubbers, cover and partly seal. Neither Sagers nor utensils should touch the inside of jar or cover. Place jar in sterilizer and fill with warm water at least two inches over top of jar. The water should be about the same temperature as the jar to avoid breaking. Boil the required length of time.

Remove from the sterilizer and seal tightly, invert, and cool as quickly as possible, but avoid draughts as this is liable to crack jars.

Wash, label, and store. This and much other valuable information appears in Bulletin No. 77, of the Department of Agriculture, entitled "Preserving Fruits and Vegetables in the Home." Copies may be obtained from the Publications Branch, Ottawa, issued by the Director of Publicity, etc.

Minerals in Canadian Arctic

No One Knows the Extent Of Mineral Deposits in Northern

Exploration has indicated that the rocks of the Canadian Arctic mainland and archipelago are similar to those that characterize the southern and better known parts of the Dominion. A number of economic minerals are known to exist at different points, although the extent and value of these deposits, which include coal of Carboniferous and Tertiary age, and graphite, mica, and native copper of Precambrian age, have not yet been determined.

Flint Lime

Very Fine Kinds Of Plants What Are Free From Lime Or Nearly So

There are very few kinds of plants which are free from lime by nature, the various species of plant lice, which are also known as "aphis" and "green fly." Plant lice are small insects, usually green in colour, which multiply in numbers very rapidly and are capable of causing serious damage unless checked. Among the worst of the aphids, like the pea aphid, appear suddenly in enormous numbers and completely destroy several crops as well as garden pests. The foliage of ornamental bushes such as the snowball, etc., is often rendered unsightly by the curling and deforming of the leaves caused by plant lice. There are a great many different kinds of plant lice in Canada, some are green, others dark-coloured, and some even red; a common red species is the one which occurs on golden glow. All are sucking insects and live solely on the juice which they extract from their host plants. Some kinds feed on the under side of the foliage, others cluster on the stems of plants, while others again are found attached to the roots. They secrete a sweet liquid known as honeydew which attracts ants and causes the growth of a sooty fungus which greatly disfigures the plants.

One of the best bulletins issued free by the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, is the one entitled "Insects of the Flower Garden and Their Control," and this advises that as the plant lice appear in early spring, garden plants should be examined at frequent intervals for their presence. The undersides of leaves and the growing portions of stems are the chief feeding places, and when the insects are first noticed the plants should be sprayed with a contact insecticide such as kerosene emulsion whale oil soap or tobacco preparation. Whichever insecticide is used, spray to be applied so as to reach the places where the insects are clustered. Only the plant lice which are actually hit by the spray will be killed. For those kinds which are found attacking the roots of plants, fresh, slaked lime, in the strength of one teaspoonful to one gallon of soapy water.

More Sleep Needed To Refresh Brain

Youth Either Only Four Hours Required To Revive Body

More sleep is needed for accuracy in brain work than for restoration of physical capabilities. And the proverbial eight hours is, for mental purposes, the most good business investment. These findings are from sleep tests made at the Colgate University, and there's another thing that would be fine for cleaning lamp chimneys if there were lamp chimneys.

Physical physical functions require no more than four hours for restoration to normal, and some of them appear completely restored with but one hour's sleep. Mental accuracy, however, is quite another story. Although some mental things, like speed, seem restored in four hours Every hour of sleep discloses added improvement in the quality of accuracy.

"What do we want from sleep" Dr. Laird asks. "If merely reaction time or coordination of hearing and speed, possibly four hours would be adequate. But if we want greater learning accuracy or more improvements in the mental functions shown by a dot-counting contest then the indications are that twice four hours is none too many."

"Healthy, active college men were experimented upon," he says, "so our conclusions can be applied with scientific precaution only to young men just entering into manhood. It is possible that old people, and the opposite sex, might yield different results, although there are no especially serious reasons for assuming definitely that they would."

Nerve reaction in response to a sound shows complete return to normal in four hours. So likewise does coordination, obtained by standing rigid, with eyes closed for one minute, attempting not to wobble.

Wild Fruit At Churchill

Blueberries, Strawberries, Cranberries and Other Wild Fruit Grow In Abundance

Churchill is not a total waste. When John Munch discovered it in 1619, the river was heavily timbered and the forest abounded in small fruits. Although the forests have long since been denuded by fire and axe, much remains, it is still a country of small fruit.

Cranberries grow there in abundance everywhere and in all situations. They are not the property of the marshes of the east, but the smaller berry with decidedly more flavor. Packed in casks with sugar they last for years. In this form, in the old days, they were an important article of commerce for the Hudson's Bay Company's ships bound for England.

On the rocky areas near the railroad Fort Prince of Wales, gooseberries thrive and spread about the ground like vines. Due to the intense heat from the stones, and grewed, the fruit is always most plentiful on the south side of the rock. The storehouse of the Hudson's Bay Company reveal that many a pie and tart were made from them before Wolfe ever set foot in Canada.

Heather berries, which grow close to the ground, are prized because of the fine flavor they make excellent wine. They abound in seeds and for this reason jam is seldom made of them, but they jelly garden plants should be examined at frequent intervals for their presence. The undersides of leaves and the growing portions of stems are the chief feeding places, and when the insects are first noticed the plants should be sprayed with a contact insecticide such as kerosene emulsion whale oil soap or tobacco preparation. Whichever insecticide is used, spray to be applied so as to reach the places where the insects are clustered. Only the plant lice which are actually hit by the spray will be killed. For those kinds which are found attacking the roots of plants, fresh, slaked lime, in the strength of one teaspoonful to one gallon of soapy water.

Next to the strawberry is the blueberry, smaller than those of Eastern Canada, but superior to them again due to the long hours of sunlight. Besides being eaten fresh and preserved with sugar, they are dried like currants and used for cakes and to mix with pemmican.

Red and black currants abound, the former, which are more or less in their wild state on the prairies, being particularly plentiful.

In no part of the Hudson Bay region is the eyeberry as plentiful as at Churchill River. They never grow in swampy ground, but in dry woods, but in small hollows among the rocks.

After the strawberry, blueberry and cranberry comes the raspberry in the estimation of the Churchillmen.

Many other species of berries abound there, but the natives, with whom abundance of wild fruit at hand, leave them to the birds

It is well known that where strawberries will grow a species of apple may be developed that will prosper if the trees are guarded from the heavy frosts of mid-May. A century ago all berries grew in Lanark and Huron Counties, Ontario, and it was said that young trees of plums could never be grown on account of the snows and early frosts. The belief lasted for 25 years or so.- Janet Munro in Canadian Forest and Outdoors.

H. V. Fieldhouse of Wainwright Was Enthusiastic over Oil Field

Prominent in Alberta legal circles and one of the outstanding enthusiasts of the Wainwright Oil field, Henry Vernon Fieldhouse, L.L.B., K.C., Wainwright barrister, died at an Edmonton hospital Saturday morning. He was 51 years of age.

Mr. Fieldhouse was born at Newgate, Ontario, and graduated from the Manitoba university, practicing law, following his graduation at Winnipeg, Vermilion and Wainwright. He was a resident at the latter place for 20 years.

Interested in several oil companies and a firm believer in the future of the Wainwright field, Mr Fieldhouse was enthusiastic regarding the field and did much to improve it.

He ran as a Liberal candidate in the last provincial election, the words voiced the confidence which marked the career and the closing days of thousands of the children of God.

Mr. Fieldhouse was married twice, his first wife, the former Nettie Dunrock, dying ten years ago. His second wife, formerly Miss Eva B. Brown, of Philadelphia, and three daughters, survive. The daughters are Mrs. J. Appleton of Turner Valley, Mrs. Geffrey M. Morris, Turner Valley, and Mrs. Frank Stevens of Wainwright. Pumps Suffer From Pebbles

Taking pebbles and small stones from the sucrose and other tissue parts of pumps is the favorite pastime of the town's official pump man these days, and he has five pounds in the pail of them. He claims that the only way these could get into and stop the pump from working would be for someone to put them down the pump spout and that this would probably be a child's means of amusing himself without thought of causing any harm. The town's pump repair bill this year has amounted to some $600.00.

Canadian National Take Over Flin Flon Railway

WINNIPEG, Aug. 5. The Manitoba Northern Railway, popularly known as the Flin Flon Railway is ready to be turned over to the Canadian National Railways for operation.

The transaction of this branch line agreement from the role it was designed to play in the development of the mineral resources of the northern portion of the province, added an interesting chapter to the highlights of the transportation history of Canada. The line, approximately 83 miles long, was begun with the awarding of the contract to the Dominion Construction Company, Toronto, and W. A. Tallinson, Winnipeg, on December 2, 1927, and the last spike in the skeleton track was driven on September 22, 1928 by the Hon. John Bracken, Premier of Manitoba.

To accomplish this record in railway construction through difficult country and in face of severe winter conditions the contractors laid steel on the frozen muskeg for the first fifty miles. This was followed by ballasting in the spring and summer when the track was lifted to sub-grade and the few shallow cuts rendered at the same time. For the following thirty-eight miles the rock formation encountered permitted the usual practice of building the grade first and following the track as the grade was ready to receive it.

As quickly as the track was laid, operating facilities, telegraph lines, buildings, etc. were erected and one year from the date of the signing of the contract the Hudson Bay Mining & Smelting Company was able to commence transporting the heavy machinery for equipping its plant at the end of the line

FUNERAL OF THOMAS HIND

One of the old settlers in the district of Hindville has passed away in the person of Thomas Hind. He was born in Preston, Lancashire, England on the 20th of May, 1853. Immigrating to Canada with his family in the year 1906, he took up a homestead in the district, which later was named after him and became known as the Hindville settlement. Here he resided on the same farm until his death, which came rather suddenly on the evening of Tuesday, August 6th, following a few weeks' illness, at the age of 76 years. His wife's name was Ann Sylance

The funeral service took place on Thursday, August 8th at 2 o'clock in his own house at Hindville, when a very large number of people assembled, indicating their last respect for the deceased. The Rev. William Mitchelson conducted the service, preaching a helpful, comforting and inspiring word from Philippians 3:20, "For our conversation is from Heaven, from whence we look for the Saviour, the Lord Jesus." The prevailing spirit of the funeral address and words voiced the confidence which marked the career and the closing days of thousands of the children of God.

Mr. Fieldhouse was married twice, his first wife, the former Nettie Dunrock, dying ten years ago. His second wife, formerly Miss Eva B. Brown, of Philadelphia, and three daughters, survive. The daughters are Mrs. J. Appleton of Turner Valley, Mrs. Geffrey M. Morris, Turner Valley, and Mrs. Frank Stevens of Wainwright. Dr. Lowell Cecil Fieldhouse, is bursar at the Manitoba College of Agriculture at Winnipeg. Other survivors are Mrs. R. Collett of Winnipeg, and Mrs. A. J. McDonald of Newgate.

The funeral was held Monday at 2 p.m. from the funeral chapel of Howard & McBride, Rev. Dr. E. J. McQueen officiating

Culpable Negligence

It is becoming to an ever increasing extent, one of the responsibilities of governmental authorities to protect people against themselves, not only for their own sake but for the sake of others whom in one way or another the first named endanger. One of the latest developments in this direction is just about to be undertaken in Provincial and municipal affairs, as to lessen the possibility of accidents at level railway crossings. Such crossings are always dangerous but with the advent of the motor car, and the speed mania of reckless drivers the death and accident toll has mounted alarmingly.

In a two thousand accident case reported to the Board of Railway Commissioners during the past year there was danger of loss of life or damage to property because of negligence at highway-railway level crossings. Of these accidents 306 were reported on the lines of the Canadian National system, and railway officials have carefully classified them. It was found that more than forty per cent. of the accidents were caused by some form of downright negligence on the part of the motorist.

Of the huge total of accidents, no less than 322 were cases where vehicles broke or damaged crossing gates which had been lowered, 25 where drivers passed right ahead under gates which were in process of being raised or lowered with cars still waiting on crossings opposite gates, 9 where drivers parked in the railroad lines while they had a beer, 11 where drivers under the influence of liquor crashed into gates, who there accidents were due to pedestrians climbing over or under gates.

In other words all these accidents were the result of a wilful disregard of the means of protection provided by the railways. But in their insane desire for speed motorists were responsible for a large number of accidents which would be classified as inexplicable negligence. Some of the actions of drivers at performances of careless and reckless drivers are listed as follows:

Disregarding the warning signals and the clear lines of moving trains

Trains right across the road at the risk of colliding trains

One driver parked in the railroad line while he had a beer

Driver tried to drive between the gates as train was while switching He was unsuccessful

Twice parked on railroad tracks to search for something he had dropped on the road. When he recovered it was on the wrong left of the car

One driver stopped on the railway tracks to adjust his load

Eleven times in one day they have crashed retiring

The annual record shows that not only are many accidents at crossings due to sheer negligence and in no way excusable but they also serve to indicate the nature of the problems of educating drivers of motor cars given to such blatant recklessness. Warning signs and even physical barriers such as crossing gate are no sure guarantee against accidents due to such carelessness.

There appears to be but two methods of putting an end to such accidents. One is to do away with level highway-crossings altogether by carrying highways either over or under the railway tracks. This is a highly expensive business and is not possible in a country of such immense area as Canada. It can be done at crossings in all urban centres and at points where traffic is exceptionally heavy and to this task the Federal Government through the Board of Railway Commissioners, working in co-operation with Provincial Governments and municipal authorities, has decided to bend its energies, the cost of obliterating these level crossings being distributed among those several governmental bodies.

The second course is to license all drivers of motor cars and to make it an offence for anyone to drive a car unless he or she has such a license, and to immediately cancel the license of any person found guilty of negligence, carelessness, and recklessness in handling a car. Such persons are a danger not only to themselves but to the public at large, and in the public interest should be denied the right to drive such a potential engine of destruction on the public highways as the modern powerful motor car.

New Widget Auto

Will Be Sold Through Mail Order Houses For $200

The New York Times says negotiations are under way for the large scale production of the new "baby" auto which would be sold through the mail order houses for $200.

The car is the invention of James B. Martin of Garden City, N.Y.

The feature of the car is that it has no axles in the usual sense of the word each wheel being independently mounted on the reinforced body. Rubber shock cord is used in the suspension of each wheel instead of springs.

The new car has a wheel base of sixty inches compared with 102½ inch wheel base of the smallest car now being produced in the United States Mr Martin said his invention will do 50 miles on a gallon of gasoline.

He declared he planned to have it shipped in a weather proof packing case with a hinged door which may be used as a garage

Returned Traveller Tells Of Conditions In Famine Ridden District In African Congo

A land of living skeletons where those who did not die of hunger fell victim of disease or were torn to pieces by wild animals was described by Commander Edward P. Thompson, R.N. retired on his arrival in New York after spending six years in the famine ridden Kuanda district in Africa.

Under the Belgian Congo he said, the living were too weak to care for the dead and everywhere corpses were left lying beside the roads. Those survivors who had still enough strength to gather up their belongings have fled to other districts, Commander Thompson declared, as a continued lack of rain and under cultivation of the small farms by the Bakuba tribe for the three-year famine

May Be Good Prophet

President Of Water Corporation Predicts Chain Farms

Milton W. Anderson, the president of a big tractor organization, predicts the coming of chain farms as the logical consequence of chain groceries and other stores. Come to think of it, Mr. Anderson may be a good prophet.

Rightly or wrongly, farmers claim farming does not pay. Some say it does, but more say it doesn't. Perhaps it is a matter of habit with farmers to run down farming. There is always something the matter with crops. If it isn't one thing it is another. And, of course they never admit that they get the prices they ought to.

They try co-operative marketing and pooling and still farming doesn't pay. The price of implements is too high—and so on.

After all, farming is a business, just as running a store or a factory is a business. But farmers are notoriously conservatives. They don't put their affairs in a way that would make a dyed-in-the-wool business executive tear his hair with anxiety.

The time may come soon when farms are linked up as chain stores are linked up to-day. The scientifically devised methods of the proprietors. The owners will buy machinery, implements and seed at quantities. They will sell agricultural produce the same way. The farm manager will be a salaried employee and will be relieved of his individual worries. Perhaps he will get a bonus from gratified directors.

It is a striking picture of the future. And quite a feasible one.—St. Thomas Times-Journal

British Manufacturers Can Sell Goods Only By Advertising

British manufacturers are losing trade in Canada and elsewhere not because their goods are inferior or because their prices are too high, but because they hide their light under a bushel. Canadian manufacturers and there are still too many of them in England who think that when their goods are well made and quoted a fair price for it, they can wait for buyers to come to them and place orders—that is a mistake.

Our potential customers in Canada and other Dominions cannot be expected to understand the British terms that might supply their needs. The mountain will not come to Mahomet, but Mahomet must go to the mountain. In other words, our would be exporters need to make their goods widely known before they can sell them, and any lingering belief that advertisement is a luxury instead of a necessity can be readily cast from the British business mind. —London Daily Telegraph

BRITAIN TAKES A FIRM STAND ON REPARATIONS

The Hague—Deadlock again seems to threaten the vexed question of reparations. Great Britain is firm in her opposition to the Young plan evolved at the conference of experts in Paris, and France, Italy and Belgium seem equally determined to oppose any changes in the scheme.

Right Hon. Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, outlined the British position and said his country had sacrificed its own interests to the utmost limits and would yield no further. Mr. Snowden made his statement before the financial committee of the 1929 conference of The Hague, gathered to consider the Young plan.

While he hoped the other delegations would not regard it as offensive, Mr. Snowden said no reply material had been given to any of his arguments and none of his figures had been challenged.

The British Government, he said, did not accept the view that the plan was indivisible. If that were so there would be no need for a conference. If the plan were indivisible, would not accept the views of the reparations annuities accorded by the conference. The British Government would not consent to the division of annuities into conditional and unconditional parts, and likewise would not approve of continued deliveries in kind.

Mr. Snowden did not consider it a sacrifice on the part of France to give up something she would never have received. Germany could not be talked about, he would have something to say about Great Britain's sacrifice.

But a single country had made anything approaching the sacrifices made by Great Britain, he declared, but the British had never complained. Had Great Britain entered the war not because any of her material interests had been endangered, but to support treaty rights in defence of world security. She willingly did that, willingly sacrificed her blood not in her own interests.

No country had been left with Great Britain's war debt which now amounted to $37,500,000,000 or more than double that of any other nation in the war. Excluding her debt to the United States, Great Britain's war debt was $23,500,000,000. At the end of the war, Mr. Snowden said, Great Britain $10,000,000,000, of which France owed $5,000,000,000 and Great Britain owed the United States $5,000,000 from that country, Italy owed $2,535,000,000 and Great Britain owed $2,500,000,000. Since that time the Young plan reduced this to $2000,000,000.

Under the Young plan Germany would be burdened for the next sixty years with the annual payment of $300,000,000. Of this amount, Mr. Snowden argued, had no right to interfere with the flow of reparations.

Mr. Snowden condemned the payment of reparations in kind by Germany and declared Great Britain's export trade discriminated against.

He emphasized his stand that the British delegation must have a decision on the points raised before the committee could proceed any further or discuss any other matters.

"I have behind me the unanimous support of my government," he added, "and of the House of Commons, irrespective of party, and I believe of all the people of Great Britain. I speak quite frankly when I say we cannot compromise on the fundamentals of the House of Commons or add never ratify the Young report in its present form."

British Airship May Be Zeppelin's Rival

Huge Machines Nearing Completion Will Be Much Faster

London, Eng.—Cabled reports from Lakehurst that the Graf Zeppelin's successful trip to America probably would be followed with establishment of a regular trans-Atlantic air line brought considerable speculation in London morning papers as to the possibility of British competition.

Great progress at least a cut in elapsed time of the trips was held to be a necessity for success of such a line and the hope was expressed that two British giants now nearing completion, the R-100 and R-101 would be much faster.

Sir Dennis Burney, M.P., head of the company which built the R-100, in a talk with the Daily News opined that the Graf's time did not give margin enough over fast steamers, with only 24-inch guns. These ships be able to do a trip in sixty hours outward and 48 returning. This would leave a crudging speed of 90 miles an hour.

Drops Freedom Of Seas Issue

Toronto A special dispatch to the Mail and Empire from Washington says President Hoover has dropped the freedom of the seas issue out of his disarmament programme, not only on the theory that it does not jibe with the Kellogg anti-war treaty, but because he believes naval parity with Great Britain is the only real guarantee of freedom of the seas

British Atlantic Fleet

New Becomes the Greatest Single Fighting Force In the World

London, Eng.—The Atlantic fleet becomes the greatest single fighting force in the world by the decision of the Admiralty to recall five battleships of the Queen Elizabeth class from Mediterranean waters to home ports and the Atlantic fleet.

The transference of the battleships, not only an important change in distribution of the navy, but an entirely new departure in British naval policy, means the balance of power is removed from Malta and shifted right to the Atlantic.

The Atlantic fleet will consist of 14 capital ships, among them the two most powerful vessels in the world, the Rodney and Nelson, and the largest battle cruiser in the world, H.M.S. Hood.

The Queen Elizabeth vessels are approximately 30,000 tons, armed with eight 15-inch guns. These ships will join the two Nelson class vessels, the Hood, the four Iron Duke class battleships and the battle-cruisers, Renown and Repulse, to make the most formidable fleet assembled on peace time duties in the world

PER CAPITA SALE OF LIQUOR IS IN EXCESS OF $10

Ottawa, Ont. — Liquor sales in 1929 through provincial government stores totalled $107,894,384 rather more than $10 per capita over all Canada.

Figures on the liquor traffic in Canada, covering sales in eight of Canada's nine provinces, were released by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Government control is not applied in the province of Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia.

Total government revenue from the liquor traffic during 1929 amounted to $72,560,501.

Of this amount, $49,866,291 rolled into municipal coffers, while the remainder $22,758,201 accrued to the provinces. Actually, the latter figure does not include all profits of liquor control boards.

Less than one-third of Saskatchewan's total liquor revenue, it appears under ordinary revenue while more than $400,000 distributed to municipalities does not show in British Columbia's.

Ontario and Quebec record by far the highest revenues totals among the provinces, their combined total aggregating two-thirds of the Dominion's grand total. Ontario's revenue amounted to $48,150,280, and Quebec's to $7,000,000. Alberta with $5,745,000, and British Columbia with $3,732,239, are next, though the former total actually includes the revenue of the Province.

No single province among the remaining ones showed a revenue for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1929 exceeding $1,000,000, however, had a total of $926,163, and the totals would have been higher, except for the fact that the breweries in that province are permitted to sell beer direct to purchasers. Manitoba's liquor revenue totals are Saskatchewan $890,000; New Brunswick $750,000; Nova Scotia, $744,391

Other provinces are represented in the figures of gross sales reported by provincial liquor control boards as Prince Edward Island not Nova Scotia being omitted Ontario's total is double that of the next province, Quebec, amounting to $24,000,501 of the Dominion aggregate of $107,894,384. Quebec's is $24,229,624 British Columbia's and Saskatchewan are the only other provinces whose sales showed more than $10,000,000, the former reported a northlawd patrol of 1,800 miles

The "Ten Alone" Case

Eminent Counsel For Canada and United States To Act As Arbitrators

Ottawa.—Canada has elected Eugene Lafleur, D.C.L., LL.D., K.C., eminent counsel of Montreal as Canadian arbitrator in the "I'm Alone" case. The government of the United States has appointed Willis Van Devanter, associate judge of the Supreme Court of the United States, as its member.

Announcement of the selections was made simultaneously in Ottawa and Washington

At the same time, the Department of External Affairs at Ottawa, announced that John P. Reed, K.C., of the Nova Scotia bar and legal adviser of the department, had been appointed Canadian agent in the case

Counsel for the Dominion of Canada in the case are W. N. Tilley, K.C., of Toronto, and Aime Geoffrion, K.C., of Montreal.

At the Department of External Affairs it was announced recently that there would probably be a lapse of some time before the arbitrators in this famous case actually open sittings. Counsel for both parties will have to get to work on the case, and there must be an exchange of pleadings, which may occupy considerable time.

Not until the preliminaries have been disposed of will there be a definite decision as to the place or places where sittings will be held in Canada. It has been taken for granted in some of the sittings at least will be held in Washington, but there is a possibility that there will be others, possibly some in Ottawa.

CRAIG'S GARAGE DAMAGED BY FIRE

Shed Lean-to Burned Wednesday

A cow shed lean-to, added to the brick garage of John Craig, was completely demolished by fire last Wednesday afternoon, and the roof of the garage itself damaged. The brick wall of the garage undoubtedly saved the fire from being of much larger dimensions, but owing to eight children and a barber brigade was chiefly responsible for the squelching of the conflagration. Although the fire boys had the hose line strung and connected with the reservoir at the school in quick time, the pump failed to function properly and the supply of water from that source was not forthcoming during the duration of the fire.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE HOLDING SEWING SHORT COURSE

5 Days — Sept. 3 to 7 Inclusive

The regular September meeting of the Vermilion Women's Institute will be held at the home of Mrs. Waldenberger at 3 o'clock on Friday, Aug. 30th. The change in the date of this meeting was necessary owing to the Short Course in Sewing which will be held in Vermilion on Sept. 3-4-5-7 under the auspices of the Women's Institute. This very instructive course in sewing is open to everyone and is free of charge.

Those interested are asked to attend the meeting on August 30th or communicate with Mrs. Fish, phone 15, or Mrs. Fraser, phone 250.

WHITE SUPPLEMENTALS AT VERMILION

Through the efforts of the local school board, Vermilion has been made a centre for the September examinations This will be found a great convenience to students from Islaview east to Lloydminster. The board is placing the high school at the disposal of the department for this purpose. The examinations begin the middle of next week. Applications and time tables are available at the office of the secretary of the school board for students who may not yet have procured the same from the department.

ISLAY ITEMS

The funeral of the late Mrs. Mary Ellinston McKinley was held from the Islay United church on Saturday afternoon last, when a large number of friends and sympathizers gathered to pay their last respects to one who had been very much esteemed in the community. The news of Mrs. McKinley's death came as a shock to the whole community for she had always seemed a fine healthy woman and was only 35 years of age. She was mother to eight children and leaves a mother and three brothers besides a husband to mourn her loss. The service was conducted by the Revs. Thompson and Drew and was a very fitting tribute to the departed sister. The casket was set in a beautiful display of flowers, arrangements being carried out by J. Waring of Vermilion, interment being made in Islay cemetery.

The death of Orville S. Keast of Dewberry occurred in Islay hospital on Saturday last. The funeral on Tuesday was largely attended by the friends of the deceased. Mr. Keast was one of the old-timers of the district and was widely known and greatly respected. Interment took place in the Dewberry cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs MacFadden left Islay on Friday for Edmonton. They will later go to Chipman where Mr. MacFadden will take charge of an elevator.

Messrs. J. Forsyth and Wm Sherwood have both purchased combines through the local IHC dealers, the Islay Hardware Co.

Ed. Preston brought a combine out from Vermilion last week.

Mr and Mrs Keau and son Bobby returned Saturday evening from a holiday spent in various points in western Canada, chiefly Winnipeg and Surrey.

Jeff Simpson, recently engaged teacher of the senior room was in town last week arranging for a house Mr. Simpson and family have resided in Vermilion for the past four years

Harvesting with many and varied assortment of apparatus for the cutting of short grain is in full swing around the district.

Elevator Fire Notes

The news of the fire was greatly exaggerated in Vermilion resulting in most of the population of that town buying up the road to Islay.

Bill Barnes and party were at the Columbia Theatre and received word that all of Islay was on fire. Bill says that he was touching alive all the way down and cars "honked" behind him to get by.

The Standard reporter driving a big sedan was the first Vermilion car to arrived to arrive on the scene, but he disclaims what credit there was attached to that position by saying that he didn't even know there was a fire till within a few miles of Islay.

The village is greatly indebted to the Vermilion fire brigade for their prompt response and only a short time elapsed between the blowing of the fire siren there and the appearance of the fire boys with hose loaded on a flat car, at the Islay yards.

Too Much Low Flying

Habit Is Menace To Public and Should Be Forbidden

Aeroplane pilots crashing as a result of collisions with telephone or telegraph wires or falling on account of losing their flying speed a few hundred feet above the earth brings up the danger of persons on the ground when accidents of this kind occur. The newspapers recently carried a despatch from Kentucky about a student pilot crashing in the centre of the business district of a Kentucky town, killing the aviator and two business men.

Those who are interested in flying and genuinely anxious to promote the development of aviation have been doing everything in their power to bring into effect regulations that will make for the safety of those who fly and those on the ground. Despite their efforts it is possible that too much flying at a low altitude is being done over Western Canadian cities and towns. An aeroplane a few hundred feet above a city street is a menace to citizens. The accident that cost three lives in the Kentucky town might be repeated here.

The authorities, we think, would have the hearty co-operation of aviation officials in framing regulations that would prevent flying over cities and towns except at a height that would give the pilot a chance to glide to an open space place in case of accidents. Furthermore, no pilot should be allowed to fly above or around a city of town who is not familiar with the location of all power, telephone, and telegraph wires.

Aviation is so important that everything possible must be done to reduce risks of every kind Regina Daily Post.

Three Young Women Plan Trip To Respite Fares

Arrayed in trim khaki colored breeches and shirts, leather puttees and each with badges he them, but also wearing lip rouge so they won't be mistaken for motor cycle cops, three young women have set out from New York in a light motor truck to "go places and see things" in remote corners of the earth.

They are heading for Alaska; the party consists of Baroness Christel Von Frandenstein a movie actress, Miss Nada De Naumr, and a girl reporter, Miss Margaret D'Angelo, Ottawa, Ont.

They're going to all the remote places they can find—partly, Miss De Naumr confessed, in answer to a masculine challenge that women can't do that sort of thing" and partly on the theory, that, being more patient and painstaking than men, they'll find out a lot of "tips" that the male explorers passed up.

"We're going as far north in Alaska as we can in the car. Then we hope to get an aeroplane ride and after that dog teams until we get away up where no white woman has been before.

"And after that we're going to the Gobi desert, the wilds of Australia, Ireland and, oh, a lot of places. We expect to circle the globe and get back in about three years."

The quantity of creamery butter produced in Saskatchewan during the five months under review was 2,064,258 pounds, as compared with 2,062,620 pounds during a similar period last year an increase of 1,748,816 pounds, or 84 per cent. Manitoba creamery butter production was 3,507,849 pounds, compared with 2,808,328 pounds, an increase of 699,921 pounds or 24.5 per cent.

Explanations and Comments

The Erection Of the Altar Of Burnt Offerings, Ezra 3.1-6.—The journey from Babylon must have required many months. The first work undertaken in the reconstituted was the building of houses and the tilling of ground. But as early as the seventh month after their return the altar of burnt offerings was rebuilt and these the offerings were sacrificed according to the law of Moses. In the second month of the second year after the return a start was made with the rebuilding of the temple. Money was contributed to pay the masons and carpenters, and foreign food and drink and oil to the men of Sidon and Tyre, who brought cedars from Lebanon to Joppa on the coast, whence they were transported to Jerusalem.

The Foundation Of the Temple Laid, Ezra 3.10,.11.—The temple was to the Jews "what the Pyramids were to the Egyptians, the Parthenon to the Greeks, the Coliseum to the Romans, St. Peter's to the Papists —but it was more. It meant to the Jews what the flag means to us. And what the Cross means to the Christian." (Whedon). When the first temple was the work of King Solomon, and the people had been obliged to supply him with the necessary money and labor. The temple when it was built was the work of themselves.

While the workmen laid the foundation, the priests in their official robes blew their trumpets, and the Levites sounded the cymbals in praise of the Lord as had been done in the time of David, saying, "For He is good: for His loving-kindness endureth for ever toward Israel." This realization of the goodness and mercy of God runs through Psalms 106, 107, 118 and 136. There were probably two voices singing alternately, for the 118th Psalm was originally appointed to that occasion. It is well to see with what force the two choirs or companies must have sung the antiphs and antistrophe: "Open to me the gates of righteousness." "This is the gate through which the righteous shall enter" or more beautiful were the foundation stone which, after all difficulty and opposition, had at last been raised on the angle of the temple platform; or have uttered the formula which afterwards (Matthew 21.9), became proverbial for all such popular celebrations: "Hosanna! Save us! "Blessed be whosoever cometh in the name of the Eternal." — Dean Stanley.

Marcus, the famous Broadway producer, discovers Joe's New York night club, where he hears Al Jones, Blackie's singing waiter, render a love ballad of his own composition. Marcus offers to buy the song and Al consents on condition that the producer will hire Molly, his sweetheart, to sing the song in one of the Marcus revues. Marcus agrees. Molly is cast as Cleopatra in the revue, her first Longs was the work of King Solomon, and the people had been obliged to supply him with the necessary money and labor. Canada To Establish Prison For Juveniles

Money Voted For Institution Steps Governed Hughes

Establishment of a penal institution for young people not hardened in the ways of crime will be brought about within two years, in the opinion of Hon. Dr. Hugh Hughes, inspector of Canadian penal institutions.

Although the matter has been dormant since it was first brought up in 1903, the Dominion Government has now appropriated money for the establishment of the juvenile, reformatory or penitentiary, and the institution will be established somewhere near Kingston, Gen. Hughes believes. Young people who must be confined will be sent to this new institution, be segregated from older and more hardened criminals, instead of being taken amongst them as is done under present conditions.

Seeking Northern Paradise

Adventurers From Washington State To Investigate Eskimo's Story

The existence of a far north paradise is hinted by Eskimos who told William Brooks, of Eastlake, a warmer continent with big rivers and fertile valleys beyond Bering Straits, according to officers of the steamship "Derbiay," arriving at Tacoma, Wash., from the Alaskan coast on her first round trip this season.

As a result of Indian and Eskimo stories Brooks and Lyman Lyman and several adventurers plan to leave by airplane to investigate rumors.

Brooks, who is a trapper, has watched wild geese fly far north beyond the Alaskan shores. They disappeared in a certain direction and Eskimos told him of a land where warm springs or open water of some kind exists toward the North Pole

Making Gasoline From Trees

Two Chicago Doctors Claim Production Of Anti-Knock Motor Fuel

The making of gasoline from trees is announced in a report to the American Chemical Society by Dr. Jacque C. Morrel and Dr. Gustav Egloff of Chicago.

They have produced an anti-knock motor fuel from the tar in the Douglas fir While this fuel now is in the laboratory stage, the report says it can be made in commercial quantities from present wood waste.

The development of a practical and economic means of converting wood waste into motor fuels," says the report, "has a deeper significance than the immediately important factor of conservation—it provides a source of motor fuels for the future which is under the direct control of Canada so that for a time Blackburn couldn't shove it open to let himself out.

"How did you feel?" he was asked.

Blaze Destroys Islay Elevator

Vermilion Fire Equipment Taken to Islay on Special Train

Twenty-five minutes after the big hose wagon of the Vermilion fire department was loaded on a flat car at the C.N.R. station here Friday night, it was pouring water on the blaze which completely destroyed the elevator plant of the Liberty Grain company at Islay, sixteen miles east of Vermilion.

The special was made up in response to a call for help from that village and by the time it was ready the Vermilion fire brigade under Deputy Chief Melvin Hill, had its equipment on board. The special was in charge of Conductor Connolly, with Engineer Speers at the throttle. It was a record run.

The fire, which swept away the elevator plant, was first noticed by Miss Jean Fyfe, as she was motoring into town, shortly after 5 o'clock. Smoke was issuing from the building and a few minutes after the alarm was given the entire population of the town turned out, but there was nothing that it could do to check the flames, which, in the meantime, had made a big headway inside the structure.

The town has no effective fire fighting apparatus. Half an hour or so later it prevented a spectacular blaze which could be seen for miles around about and scores of cars drove from all over the district to see it.

The elevator being constructed of heavy timber, it was a long time before the building collapsed. In addition to the elevator proper, which was a building of thirty thousand bushels' capacity, the engine house and warehouse is reported to have also been destroyed. The C. N. R. stockyards were immediately adjoining and the pumphouse in connection with them was rushed down and the fence caught at several places. The fire there was extinguished by the Vermilion firemen.

It is estimated that the plant was worth about twelve thousand dollars and fully covered by insurance. It was empty at the time, having been closed for the season some months ago. The cause of the fire is unknown.

MIX — CHILLMAN

First Baptist church was the scene of a pretty wedding on Thursday evening, August 8th, when, in the presence of many friends, Irene Ethel Chillman, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Chillman, became the bride of Louis Charles Mix. The church was decorated with palms, delphiniums and golden glow. Rev. J. B. Turnbull performed the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was very charming in a gown of white flat crepe, trimmed with touches of lace, and bridal veil, and carried a beautiful bouquet of Opelika roses. Miss Edith Williams was bridesmaid, and chose a gown of peach georgette, with picture hat to match, and carried a bouquet of pink sweet peas.

Mr. Harry E. Chillman, brother of the bride, attended the groom.

The wedding music was played by Miss Muriel Shaw, and during the signing of the register the hymn "O Perfect Love," was sung by the congregation.

The bridegroom's gift to the bride was a string of pearls, to the bridesmaid and organist perfume atomizers, and to the best man a presentation cuff-links.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on the South Side.

Beautifying the Grounds Surrounding Rural Schools By Planting Trees and Hedges

At the beginning of this century when in the form of open prairie and no little opposition the Department of the Interior through its Forest Service, began the distribution of free trees to farmers in Western Canada, the chief objects were to make the prairie farmsteads more homelike and comfortable and the farms themselves more productive. He need only thirty years that have elapsed since then, because of a realization of the widespread benefits of prairie tree planting, apathy and opposition have given place to enthusiasm and support of this policy. The annual distribution has grown from a meagre 50,000 trees in the first years to approximately 6,000,000 seedlings and cuttings at the present time. Reports show that a large percentage of the new shelterbelts set out are successful and travellers are constantly noting the changes in the appearance of large sections of the prairies through the planting of these trees.

The Department distributes forest trees exclusively and, as has been frequently said in recent years, its effect has been to encourage the development of orcharding and the growing of small fruits and garden vegetables which formerly, it was thought, would not grow in the Middle West. Another very striking change which has followed the general adoption of the plan of tree planting on farms has been the improvement in the grounds and surroundings of rural schools on the prairies. Naturally the improvement of school grounds is a much more difficult matter than that of planting trees around the farmstead. The chief difficulty, of course, is the constant changing of teachers and of rural trustees. Added to this is the fact that school vacation occurs at the very time when in the first three years after planting the trees require attention in order to ensure their subsequent growth.

In spite of these handicaps a great deal has been accomplished. In the province of Saskatchewan there are approximately 1,800 rural schools and of these 1,000 have applied for and received trees from the Puget Nursery Stations at Indian Head and Sutherland. While the proportion of plantations which have become permanently established on school grounds is not so high as in the case of those on farms, the results on the whole are decidedly encouraging.

The average prairie school with its bare surroundings is anything but inspiring and it is not difficult to realize the effect such conditions must have on the impressionable minds of the young children who necessarily spend so much of their time there. If every rural school could be surrounded by an attractive setting of trees, shrubs and flowers the ultimate value to the community and the country as a whole would be immeasurable.

That the handicaps under which the average school labours in respect to the improvement of the surroundings can be overcome is evident from the record of those that have been successful. In some cases the success has been outstanding and in such it is generally evident that the community as a whole has taken special pride and interest in the school, that there is close co-operation between the trustees, the teacher, and the neighboring farmers, and that all are interested in seeing that the trees receive the necessary attention. In such localities the school grounds become a community centre and are used for picnics and other gatherings thus proving a valuable asset in the general development of the district.

Experiments in Government

Speaker Draws Attention To Advanced Legislation in New Zealand

"Australia and New Zealand, particularly the latter, have gone further with experiments in government than other peoples for the United States," said Col. Wilmer H. Tucker, former president of the Dunsford Insurance Company, of New York, and now a resident of New Zealand. He was addressing a luncheon gathering of the Canadian Club at Vancouver. "It may well be," he added, "that these experiments of the Antipodes will be written into the statutes of Canada and other nations of the world before long."

In experiments with government and private industrial enterprises, no nation had gone farther than New Zealand, Col. Tucker declared.

He did not mean to give the impression that he was offering criticism of any nation's laws or regulations. Both railways and telegraphic services in New Zealand were government controlled and their savings were most satisfactory, he pointed out. But life insurance, fire insurance, trust company work, old age pensions, disability and maternity insurance were other departures in state enterprises. He mentioned that Canada, too, had advanced far along such lines of social service legislation.

Tuberculosis Free Area

Some Delay In Creating Disease Free Area In Manitoba

There has been a delay in starting up the new tuberculosis free area in Manitoba as a result of a technical difficulty which has arisen. The province now centres around Carman and it is now proposed to extend it north to Lake Manitoba, taking in a strip of territory about 50 miles in width and embracing the Portage Plains farming district.

The farmers in the area to be included in the disease free territory have sent the necessary petition to the Provincial Government asking that this be done, but the federal regulations apparently require that a formal request for the creation of a disease free area be sent to Ottawa by the Provincial Minister of Agriculture. This has not been done up to the present time. The Federal Department of Agriculture has received an informal request by letter from J. H. Evans, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, but the formal application from Hon. Albert Prefontaine has not yet come to hand.

Until it does the Federal Department cannot begin the work of slaughtering cattle. It is understood, however, that in the meantime, the inspectors have been sent to central Saskatchewan, where the disease free area is being created in the Last Mountain district.

Wheat Prices

Figures Indicate That Wheat Pool Has Raised Average Price of Canadian Wheat

According to figures compiled by the United States Department of Agriculture, for eight years prior to the introduction of pooling, he average price of wheat at Minneapolis was 7½ cents higher than in Canada. These figures exclude the war period when wheat was under control. However, when the Canadian Wheat Pool was inaugurated in 1924, the position was immediately reversed, and in a few months Canada's wheat commanded as good a price as that of the United States. During the second year of the Pool's operations, the price of Canadian wheat averaged 16 cents per bushel above American prices. Since 1928, Canadian wheat has consistently secured a price above that of the United States, and on July 18, 1929, there was a difference of 27½ cents between Winnipeg and Minneapolis quotations.

Heavier Production Of Flour

Grain Absorbed To End Of April Shows Big Increase

The improvement in the production of flour and other cereals by the milling industry of the Dominion this year reflects itself in heavier purchase on the part of the industry of wheat and coarse grains. To the end of April, being the first nine months of the grain year, the producers had absorbed a total of 72,531,270 bushels of wheat, or nearly 6,000,000 bushels more than a year ago. Grinding of oats involved 5,836,173 bushels, or about the same volume as last year.

Indian Lands Sold

Prices averaging $20 per acre were paid for the lands comprising the Indian Reserves adjoining the towns of Berwyn and Fairview, in Alberta, disposed of recently by the Department of Indian Affairs. The highest price recorded was $40 per acre paid by a Saskatchewan buyer for three quarter sections in the Beaver Reserve near Fairview.

Early Vegetables Shipped

Ten car lots of early vegetables [illegible] out of Vernon, B.C., on July 3rd, chiefly potatoes, beets, carrots and cabbages. Royal Anne cherries are going on in large quantities to [illegible] Pacific coast canneries south of the line. The quality of the fruit this year is excellent.

Luxury In Travel Attains The Apex Of Achievement In These Modern Days

This is an age of move luxury in everything. Nearly every manufacturer plans to beat his competitors by producing an article that is better than that of his rivals, better to look at, easier to handle, more convenient and comfortable, something that panders to the sense of luxury.

In no way has this been more manifest in recent years than in the realm of transport. Automobiles, trains, ships, even airplanes are all designed nowadays to cater to the desire for luxurious travel.

One hundred years ago railway passengers rode in open wagons, sitting on bare planks. Twenty years ago those who could afford automobiles at all had to be content with open bodies. A closed body was only for the millionaire buyer.

There are no open wagons for railway passengers today; not even for cattle.

We are somewhat proud of our rolling stock on this continent. The latest Pullman cars are wonderfully fine and comfortable, yet over in the Old Land they believe, and with some truth, that they are years ahead of us in the matter of comfort, while travel on the trains

A Britisher gives a great laugh out of our sleeping cars. He gapes in surprise when he takes his first night ride over here and finds that he has to tumble in, or climb in, to a sort of bunk, inserting himself onto a ledge or a shelf, as it were, and undresses and dress by a fest of contortionism on the bed. "Fifty years behind the times," he mutters to himself as he adjusts himself to the accommodation.

"Over home," he walks to the sleeping car, opens the door of his cabin, has plenty of room to move around and take off his clothes, hangs them up in a cupboard; he can wash in a basin with running water, turn into a real bed, and in the morning he may ring the bell for the attendant to bring him a cup of tea, or even breakfast in bed.

The latest dining cars on British trains remove all suggestion of being on a train at all. They are made to resemble a dining room in a hotel as near as possible. One company has organized a contest for the best designs and decorations of cars that will eliminate the train environment.

Between Paris and London there is the most luxurious train in the world. It is called the "Golden Arrow," and although the English Channel intervenes, the train is practically the same. If anything, the train on the French side of the water is the more comfortable because the coaches are wider.

The interiors are just as luxurious as the rooms in a swagger hotel. No need to go to any dining car either. The waiters bring your dinner to your seat and set it on a folding table. Linking the two trains is a correspondingly luxurious "Golden Arrow" steamer and you know how luxurious steamers can be.

Our own C.P.R., in keeping with the best trans-Atlantic of the Cunard and White Star liners, have ships between Montreal and Liverpool and other ports on the other side, which have swimming pools, gymnasiums, nurseries, and ball rooms. The staterooms are similar to the prettiest rooms in a stately home, with curtained windows instead of portholes. The dining rooms might be the main dining room of the Royal York Hotel.

Royal York Hotel "Hello" Girls

Passenger airplanes have Chesterfield chairs, a bar and dining-car service. Only twenty years ago the aerial passengers sat in an open cockpit and hung on for dear life to the stays. Another transition from the open plane to the Pullman type.

And now, the old stage coach has given way to the super bus. Huge buses now career along the highways of the United States and England with upper and lower decks, big, roomy chairs, berths for sleeping in, a smoking room, dining room and ice water always on tap.

With all these things, travel has surely reached the apex of its achievement. The only demands these things and is willing to pay the shot. When we cast our minds back and think of our forefathers who slept on the decks of an old wind-jammer with a tarpaulin over them in the course of three months crossing the Atlantic, of how they hewed the first roads out of the virgin forests and took weeks to transport their families and their belongings a matter of two hundred miles to establish their homes, we ought to have increased respect for their memories and cultivate a more contented spirit among ourselves.

Holds Coveted Position

Mr. Zeyra Is Last In New York

Mr Zeyra is a man who interests us. Mr Zeyra is not a character in an expressionist play or an obscure Victorian novel by an imitator of Dickens but Mr Zeyra is simply the man who is last in the New York phone book. After Zyzas there is only Zinn. Being a newcomer to the directory this year, Mr. Zayra has drawn some attention to himself, for he has all at once supplanted Mr. Zyzs and Mr. Zzyx. He went the latter one better —one "z" better—and the former was nowhere to lastsee beside him.

Just what awards and decorations attach to being last in a phone book has never been made clear But there must be some advantage. One man changed his name from Zzyk to Zzyx in an effort to climb the place. How vain, indeed, are human wishes. For along came Mr Zzymn to ruin Mr Zzyk's (or Zzyx's) ambition.

BABY CLINIC HELD HERE THURSDAY LAST WEEK

Twenty-three children of pre-school age attended the baby clinic held in Vermilion on Thursday, August 15th. Owing to many being away on holidays, and being the busy season for those living in the country, this was considered a fair attendance.

Nurse Lumsdale of the public health department examined the children, of whom many were declared in perfect condition. Several babies were under six months old.

The Women's Institute were responsible for the arrangements, and wish to thank all mothers who availed themselves of the opportunity to give their children this health examination.

THE CLASS "C" FAIR.

Readers of agricultural journals published in Alberta and Saskatchewan could not fail to note the revived interest which is being taken in the smaller fairs. In our neighboring province this has been the outstanding feature that it has drawn forth many editorial comments and favorable reference to the community exhibit as against the circuit show herds and other attractions, though their educational value is not denied. It was considered a few years ago that the day of the local or community fair was rapidly approaching its end, and it is all the more pleasing to note that such is not the case. In our own neighborhood is a point bearing this out, we refer to the recent Manville district agricultural fair. This fair was very successful, there being a larger exhibit than in former years and quality was not lacking. The new exhibits building was officially opened by the Hon. R. G. Reid, who was a previous member of the board of directors and he expressed the pleasure it gave him to see the society prospering and growing. The prize list of this society is valued $400, third prizes having been added in all sections, which entailed a substantial increase in the first and second awards.

COMMUNICATION

St. Mary's Rectory,
Jasper, Alberta,
August 13th, 1929.

To the Editor,
The Vermilion Standard.

Dear Sir,—Your columns have recorded the passing of two of the district's most widely respected residents in the persons of Mrs. Frank Lawes and Mr. Wellesley Gould. They were amongst the earliest pioneers to come into the Vermilion district, and played no important a part in its settlement and development, that I feel I need not apologize for trespassing a little on your space for the purpose of paying tribute to their memory.

As one of the pioneer missionaries of the Anglican Church to the Vermilion district I came into close personal contact with both Mrs. Lawes and Mr. Gould, for both were devoted and loyal members of the congregations at Wellesdale and Pleasant Valley respectively.

In the early days—when ones wife quite frequently the means of transportation—both these places were a day's journey from Vermilion; and indeed the undertaking of the trip to Wellesdale, in the winter especially, partook of the nature of an adventure. Roads there were none, except those gradually worn down in the prairie turf by early pioneer families as those of Mr Lawes and Mr. Gould. I think that the rising generation of young people who are now beginning to inherit this wonderful western land, can hardly realize what tremendous courage and indomitable spirit were required to adventure into and subdue it, as it was in these days; and make it as we see it today.

During this period, such homes as those of Mr. Lawes and Mr. Gould were of priceless value to the community as a whole. They were centres of hospitable and cheering friendship. Lonely herbelors, at whom there were many in the land in those days, will look back with thankful hearts, and eyes not undimmed with moisture perhaps, to many an occasion when the warm-hearted kindly atmosphere of such homes as these, steadied their wearied and established them to preserve their self respect.

Always open for no one knows what cost of hospitable toil and labour these homes were always available in those upon the road; and in days when one not infrequently could be weather bound, and when travel was so slow that one was almost frozen stiff while driving, the knowledge of the comfortable welcome that a valid awaiting both for man and beast (both Mr. Gould and Mr. Lawes saw to it that no horse should fail to receive ample hospitality and care) made these homes appear as veritable heavens where one would be.

Not only pioneers in settlement, these families were leaders in their respective districts in everything that made for the common good. To their efforts were give the establishing of the schools, the building of the first churches, the making of the first roads, etc.; and before there could be provided, their own hospitable doors gave cover for these and many other social activities. Their homes were churches, council chambers, first aid depots and travellers' hostels, all in one. There is nothing quite like it today, nor do I think that any words can adequately express the debt of gratitude which we now owe to, especially the bachelors as I was then new to these genial and kindly people, and others like them, now scattered up and down the country, who managed with such selfless toil to rear up for others whilst maintaining their own domestic affairs with such skill and zest.

For over. It is fitting that within it should rest the remains of her who perhaps more than anyone else, helped to make Wellesdale what it is

So, they pass on, these two pioneers of the Vermilion district, to join all those pioneers of many lands whose lot were big and true, who endured hardship, and toiled much for the interests of others Now — they rest from their labours and their works do follow them in the place of esteem which they hold in the hearts of those for whom they helped to lighten the burden and smooth the roughness of life in a strange country in the early days.

I remain, sir
Yours faithfully
H. A. EDWARDS, Chaplain,
Jasper National Park

IT'S BETTER BECAUSE IT'S CANADIAN

This was said to a quarter of a century ago, and the country has made gigantic strides since then. Ocean have disappeared, automobiles have superseded horses, and roadside displace the old leader in many cases. a network of railways, with their chains of new towns and villages, embrace the waste spaces wherein it used to lose our way; radio and telephone now link up home with home district with district, and the whole with the vast outer world of people and affairs. We do well, I think, to pause a moment and take off our hats to the memory of those whose vision and courage and hearty, unremitting toil has rotten the wealth out of the land which has made all these modern improvements possible. Sons to the pioneers who settled this country, of whom Mr and Mrs Lawes, and Mr. and Mrs. Gould are typical exam ples. They came here under no established schemes, but at their own bes ry cost. They brought with their all that was best from their homes across the seas, not only in material things, but in tradition and spiritual values, and these they have discovered and shared with all who came after. Now, they are laid to rest, full of years and honour, and followed by the love and respect of all their neighbours. In the little church yards which they were instrumental in having set apart as final resting places for their respective communities. Mr. Gould lies in the churchyard at Pleasant Valley, as called because it looked very pleasant to the first settlers wending their way gons (before the steel had come through) amongst his comfortable hills; while Mrs. Lawes lies in the cemetery at Wellesdale, the name given to the district by her husband and his brother, because it reminded them so much of the home from which they had come — the name by which the district has been known and loved for twenty years after the first settlers claimed it for their home

One of these names still stands and is a tribute to the memory of those who bestowed it, the other has been changed for political reasons, and in the change a deep wrong and injustice has been done to the memory of those who settled that country and created those land values which have made other and later settlement orderless possible But the little cemetery night to which Mrs Lawes made her first home amongst us still remains in Mains It has been set apart forever under legal action as St Mary's Wellesdale, and Wellesdale it remains

RUMORS CURRENT IN EDMONTON OF FATAL AIR CRASH HERE

Repairs to Plane Give Rise

Rumors were rife in Edmonton last week end of a fatal air crash here, which were given rise to by repairs being sent down for the repairing of the Vedor plane which crashed into a fence on the last day of the Fair The Journal states that J. Beaumont of the Alberta liquor squad and pilot of the plane at the time of the accident, holds both an air engineer's and private pilot's license.

Mechanics had the plane moved to the Vermilion Motors and the repair work on it was done there, two men from the city being in charge Chester Lipsey repaired the damage to the plane's wings.

When Co-operation Should Prevail

The 1929 crop season in Western Canada would seem to present a rare opportunity for a further development of that spirit of co-operation which has been such a notable and satisfactory feature of Western economic history during the last twenty-five years. Not only is there now opportunity for no such further development, but the existing situation undoubtedly calls for the practice to the fullest extent of the principle of co-operation to which tens of thousands of our Western people have devoted their allegiance.

While it many yet be early to predict just what the outcome of this year's harvest operations in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will disclose it to now well known that in quantity of grain production there will be an enormous decline as compared with 1928. The quality may be higher and prices substantially better and in the final result the amount of money paid to Western grain growers may not fall so greatly below last year's figures, as many have feared and as seemed altogether probable.

But the fact remains that the distribution of crop money will not be heavy in general as in the last few years. Some sections of the West, and the farmers resident therein, will receive much money for their labor than they did a year ago But, on the other hand, other sections will receive very considerably less, and quite a number of farmers who were forced to plough down their drought stricken fields will receive nothing at all.

Another serious feature of this year's operations is that, whereas in other years of shortage in grain crops, the man engaged in mixed farming had his cattle and dairy products to fall back upon, this year he finds himself in an even more serious position than the all-grain farmer because in the sections most seriously affected, the drought has been so prolonged, and the weather so hot that the supply of feed is dangerously short.

As a result of the heavy decrease in volume of grain production it has been decided not to run the usual harvesters' excursions from Eastern Canada, but to mention from Eastern Canada, but to mention from the West itself can supply all the harvest hands required The introduction of the Combine has operated to reduce the number of harvesters required, while the growing unemployment of the Old Country provides a large number of men who can be drafted to the harvest fields in the fall months. Again, this year, from those sections of partial crop failure, farmers and their sons can be drafted in those sections where help is required, because of the drop in volume of grain to be moved, the railways will not require as many men as in former years

Here is where the opportunity for real co-operation presents itself. Farmers requiring harvest help should give first preference to other farmers and their sons who have suffered crop loss. Farmers requiring help, and farmers anxious to secure work, should both lose no time in making their wants known to the nearest Government Employment Office, which will be the agency to bring the two together and thus render valuable service to both.

In like manner farmers having a surplus of feed, and those others who are in dire need of feed, should both make their situation known to their Provincial Departments of Agriculture. It will be to their mutual advantage

In the third place, many farmers will not even get their seed back this year, and will require to purchase next spring's requirements; on the other hand, many farmers will have an excellent sample of wheat for sale. Here, too, both should make report to their Department of Agriculture. Seed grain can by such an arrangement, be moved from one district to another in a minimum of expense

In every community the spirit of true co-operation should prevail. The men who in fortunate this year should be ready and willing to extend a helping hand to his less fortunate fellow-farmer. No one can tell, but the situation may be exactly reversed in another year. This kind of co-operation may not be quite so spectacular as the big Wheat Pools, but it is equally important, and in the long run will make the Pools strong and permanent and a greater success than has yet been attained. It is the spirit of the West Cultivate it, encourage it, develop it all along the line.

Paris May Try Systems Used With Success In Germany

Wireless waves sent from the Eiffel Tower may eventually heat the entire city of Paris, according to French electrical engineers who are studying the system being used in Germany According to M. Jacques Rieder who has just returned from Germany, heating experiments there are being carried on by wireless waves, and although the wireless heating of houses is still in the experimental stage the practicability of it has been definitely established. In the tests two posts were set up in the laboratory about 30 feet apart The sending post sent out from 600 to 700-volt current waves of a length of from two to three metres Heat is produced by merely imposing on the receiving post, even a filament in a vacuum bulb which is raised to an incandescent state Rieder says the receiving posts can easily be installed in homes to become electrical radiators

Exhibition For South America

Canada To Participate In British Empire Trade Exhibition At Buenos Aires In 1931

Canada's official participation in the six weeks British Empire trade exhibition, to be held at Buenos Aires, Argentina, in the spring of 1931 was announced by the department of trade and commerce recently.

Canada has been allotted a separate pavilion with a floor space of nearly 40,000 square feet. The pavilion is to be remodelled by the Canadian exhibition commission and a new facade will be erected, the sculpture thereon to be suitably emblematic of Canada. This pavilion is in one of the choicest parts of the park and will be a striking monument of Canada's trade aggressiveness in South America. Copies of the prospectus of the exhibition have already been distributed by the Department of Trade and Commerce to the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce in Canada.

Shortfall So Low

If seed production is to remain a major branch of agriculture in Canada, it must be stimulated and the seed industry must be properly developed. Art is Universal

Sir Harry Lauder Favorite With People Of All Nations

Sir Harry Lauder associated with what is declared to be the greatest company of international artists ever offered in conjunction with the famous singing comedian, comes to the Grand Theatre, Regina, Sept. 6 and 6, with matinee on Sept. 6th.

Sir Harry's art is so universal that in the Far East as well as in other sections of the world comprehended in his travels, he attracts thousands of auditors who do not understand the English language, to say nothing of the broad Scottish dialect, and yet seem to enjoy the diversified Lauder programme to the limit. In Western United States and Canada, Indians often form a considerable element in his audiences.

As Lauder is unlike any other entertainer, it is impossible to company him with any of the other famous entertainers. His songs are his own, and his method of presenting them is peculiarly Lauderesque. This season Lauder comes with a repertoire of new songs, which he will offer in addition to the best and most popular of his old favorites, and with special scenic settings to fit each characterization. Some of the newer songs will be given with popular hits. They include "I'm Lookin' For a Lass Tae Love Me," "The Boss Of The Ranch," "Auntie Maclean," and others equally characteristic.

A Valuable Gift

University Of California To Receive Copy Of Ancient Manuscript

About 1,000 years before printing was invented a Bible was handwritten in letters of gold and silver on purple parchment by unknown artists in the Po Valley of northern Italy. It was placed in an elaborately wrought silver cover, and has been preserved at the University of Upsala, Sweden.

This is the world-famous Codex Argenteus or Bishop Wulfila, and a copy of the very limited facsimile edition of 1,000 printed and bound is to be given to the University of California by the University of Upsala.

The book was translated by Bishop Wulfila, or Ulfilas, as the Greeks called him, in the fourth century. The manuscript was lost track of for 1,000 years or more, and then came to light in a German monastery.

Aviation No Longer Thrilling Adventure

Sedate Monsieurs Have Made It Reliable Says Veteran Pilot

If you want to make your calmly and dependable modern commercial aviation really is study first the figures which show how astonishingly few accidents—infinitely fewer than on the roads—have occurred in the great air service between London, Paris and Berlin, and other European capitals. Study the unfailing punctuality with which aircraft ply between England, Asia Minor, Egypt and India. Contemplate the fact that the England-Australia flight was already established, the Atlantic already flown; remember that these feats will shortly develop into regular passenger services. And then read the complaint of E. Hamilton, dean of the States air mail pilots. He says that a plane on the Chicago-Omaha division, but he says that flying is not what it was because "they've made it too safe." In an interview with newspapermen in his country he said, "We air veterans have had our day. The happy go-lucky brats my millionth mile, but I feel the safety measures have taken most of the adventure out of the air mail business."

Of course, one must sympathize with this adventurous soul; but his complaint is perfect evidence that air transportation has become qualified for the complete trust of the travelling public.—Calgary Alberta.

Pacific Ports Load In Grain Exports

Taking Trade From U.S. Atlantic Ports, Not Montreal

Vancouver, B.C.—Vancouver and allied Pacific coast ports lead Canada in export of Canadian wheat, according to totals furnished by the Vancouver Merchants' Exchange and computed from official figures compiled by the board of grain commissioners.

Vancouver, New Westminster, Prince Rupert and Victoria shipped a total of 87,000,000 bushels in the 1928-29 season or 36 per cent. of the total exports, while Montreal, Quebec, Halifax and other Atlantic ports combined exports accounted for 92,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat.

From these figures it is deduced that Vancouver is not cutting in on the trade of Montreal, but is shipping at the expense of United States Atlantic ports, which shipped 67 per cent. of the total in 1921-22 and have since declined to 46 per cent.

The Merchants' Exchange figures do not take into consideration the other than wheat and shipments of United States wheat through Canadian ports are omitted.

THOMAS SEEKS OPENINGS HERE FOR UNEMPLOYED

London, Eng. Right Hon. Hr. Hon. J. H. Thomas, Lord Privy Seal and official Minister of Employment, reaches Ottawa, he will emphasize the importance of Government measures openings for British labor could be created in the Dominion if British capital and emigrants were encouraged more fully to develop Canadian industries, according to the Manchester Guardian.

The newspaper declares that Mr. Thomas wants to carry out the Report of Trade organizations that British industry might set up manufacturing concerns in Canada, a suggestion that is somewhere referred to as "putting the other leg in the Dominion."

The Guardian also says that Mr. Thomas may stipulate that if a considerable amount of British capital is to be invested in Canadian public works, such as the construction of roads, British labor must be employed. And if the Canadian reply to this is a question as to the rate of the British workers whom the roads are constructed, Mr. Thomas will answer that in view of the rapid expansion of Canadian industries there would be a reasonable prospect of absorbing such immigrants permanently.

The Guardian, however, thinks there will be no surprise if Mr. Thomas accomplishes less than he hopes.

BRITISH EMPIRE MOURNS DEATH OF GEN. LORD HORNE

Edinburgh, Scotland.—Great Britain and the Empire is mourning the loss of Gen. Lord Horne, commander of the first army from 1916, and famous for his artillery methods in the battles of the Somme. Lord Horne died suddenly while shooting on the moors of his estate at Biltakha.

The despatches did not give the cause of his death. He was 69 years old and had held many high commands in the British Army where he was celebrated especially as an artillery commander.

The Canadian corps, as part of the first army, came under Lord Horne in the closing drive of 1918. Gen. Sir Arthur Currie commanded the Canadian corps, was his superior at the armistice message from the army commander after the great victories of the summer of 1918. Lord Horne then expressed his high appreciation of the determined fighting of the Canadians. At the time of the closing of the war, Lord Horne was appointed to command the 13th corps in Egypt in January, 1919, and in April of that year his corps was ordered to Mesopotamia.

In November, of 1918 General Horne attended the funeral Lord Kitchener on a cruiser from the Orkneys and was afterwards sent out to Egypt to report on the defences of the Suez Canal. He was appointed to command the 13th corps in Egypt in January, 1919, and in April of that year his corps was ordered to Mesopotamia.

A son of Sir Edward Horne, he was educated at Harrow and Sandhurst and entered the British Government service at the outbreak of the Boer war.

IF AT ALL POSSIBLE

DELIVER ALL POOL WHEAT TO POOL ELEVATORS

Pool elevators can handle Ninety Per Cent. of All Pool Wheat.

With a short crop this year it is imperative that Pool elevators should handle as much grain as possible.

Pool members' safety and the protection of the Six Million Dollars invested in Pool facilities demands that every possible bushel of Pool wheat that can be delivered to a Pool elevator should go there.

[Two cents a bushel farm storage will be paid on all Pool wheat held on farms until December 2nd, 1929.]

Evening Concerts Still Popular

The popularity of the evening concerts arranged by Mr. W. B. Elford was again demonstrated on Sunday last, when the Columbia theatre was filled with an appreciative audience. The programme throughout was of a high standard, and every item was well received. Unusual interest attached to the visit of Miss Rita Rosiere and Mr. Ronnie Burwick, of Lloydminster, who rendered violin duets and solos in a manner which evoked enthusiastic applause. Miss Rosiere has a good command of the technique of her instrument and displays much interpretative skill, while Mr. Burwick fully maintained his reputation as a violinist of outstanding ability. Mrs. Hirshfield sang a soprano solo in a most pleasing manner, and Mrs. Newlove delighted the audience with a sympathetic rendering of Sanderson's "My Dear Soul." Mrs. Heck her's voice showed to advantage in a well-chosen solo, her effective interpretation being highly appreciated. Two vocal numbers by Mr J. W. E. Markle received well merited approval, this popular artist being in fine form. His rendering of "The Admiral's Broom" by Swan, was an outstanding item of the evening's programme.

Piano solos by Miss Madelon McLean and Master Gilbert Brimacombe were played with commendable ability, both these young artists displaying musical talent of a high order. Mr W. B. Elford was the efficient accompanist for the entire programme.

Church At Jasper Is Soldier's Monument

Gift Of English Lady In Memory Of Her Son

Unique among the churches of Canada is the little church of St. Mary and St. George, of Jasper, which was consecrated recently by the Bishop of Edmonton. The building, a beautiful structure of stone and stucco, with a tiled roof, was built at a cost of $17 000 from a design by H. Claiborne of Edmonton, and a gift to the parish from a lady in England, who wishes her name to remain anonymous.

It was presented in memory of her son who was killed in war, and beneath the corner stone, which was laid last year by His Excellency The Governor-General lies the testament which was found on the young man's body when he was carried out of "No Man's Land." The furnishings and fittings of the church were also the gift of the unknown donor, while the bell was presented by Viscount Willingdon.

May Kill His Art

Russian Who Makes Pictures In Human Hair Deplores Robbed Fashion

O. Borschoff, the Russian artist who received a certain distinction for his pictures in human hair, fears that the bobbed hair fashion may kill his art. He makes his backgrounds for his work and the supply of them is becoming shorter and shorter. At first glance Borschoff's pictures are said to be indistinguishable from oil paintings. He blends the various shades of hair on his palette as an oil painter mixes his colors. His canvas is a piece of silk or linen cloth, and his brush a fine knitting needle. His method of weaving the hair into the cloth, he says, is similar to that used in making the famous Gobelin tapestries. Borschoff started producing his pictures at 10 years of age when apprenticed to a hairdresser, and while a war prisoner in Germany he spent his leisure in practice.

Big Jamboree Over

Many Friendships Made At Gödöllö, Big Of Boy Scouts

Tens of thousands of boys trekked out of Arrowe Park, England, when camp was broken and the first world jamboree of Boy Scouts came to an end. Fifty thousand boys left for their homes in nearly fifty different countries.

The previous night was passed largely in last-minute packing, arrangements of boys toured the camp and bade their comrades farewell. At dawn they began passing through the park on their homeward journey to far countries of the earth. They took with them the farewell message from the chief scout issued before he left the camp the keynote of which was "From now on the sworn symbol of peace is a golden arrow."

The total number of visitors was 514,422. The next jamboree will be held in 1933. The place will be determined at a conference to be held at Salsburg, Austria.

Development Of Peace River

Country Has Gone Ahead Rapidly In Last Few Years

The first shipment of grain out of the Peace River District, was made up of three cars of wheat hauled by team 85 miles from Vanrena to Soda. Population has increased from 3,000 to 30 000 there are schools, churches, flourishing stores, elevators, electric light plants, highways and telephones.

AN OUTSTANDING EXHIBIT

In his address before the Rotary Club, during the Calgary Exhibition and stampede, Hon. J. D. McGregor, Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba, for many years Canada's most outstanding live-stock man, referred especially to the demonstration put on by the C.P.R. Supply Farm, of Strathmore, which emphasized productive possibilities of good dairy cows. Mr McGregor said that he considered it to be the best, from an educational point of view, he had ever seen at any live-stock show.

As shown in the accompanying photograph, five cows of various ages were used to emphasize that high production increases profits. The mature cows and one four-year-old heifer, one three-year-old heifer, and one two-year-old heifer were included in the group. Each of these had finished an official record within five months, and their total production for 365 days was 127,863 lbs. of milk. The first cow to the left, "Strathmore Sylvia-Stelle" by producing 29 271 lbs. of milk was recognized to be the highest milk producer in Canada to finish a record of production during the past year and a half. The second cow, "Belvedere de Kol Hubsy 82,632," finished on June 14th, with 27,892 lbs.' of milk, and immediately was shipped to Brandon, where she won second prize in very strong competition. Her yearling heifer was first at Brandon, Calgary, Edmonton, Saskatoon and Regina exhibitions, and was Junior Champion at Calgary and Regina.

The next is "Valley Farm Pansy Segis-154139." She produced 23,923 lbs. of milk, and 889 lbs. of butter, which is 2,337 lbs. of milk and 22.5 lbs. of butter more than the best two-year-old record reported in Canada in 1928.

The four-year-old next in line "Strathmore Tensline Sylvia-111904," produced 23,830 lbs. of milk and 1,052 lbs. of butter; while the one on the right "Strathmore Lassie Sylvia-130001," as a three-year-old produced 23,566 lbs. of milk and 866 lbs. of butter.

According to the Dairy Commissioner of the Province of Alberta, the average dairy cow in that province produces 3,950 lbs. of 4 per cent. milk. These five cows produced as much as 32 average Alberta dairy cows. They milk, sold to the Strathmore Milk Co., Calgary, at regular Dairymen's prices, brought $3,214.10, or an average of $642.82 per cow. This revenue returned more than $470.00 per cow above feed costs.

The milk cans in the picture were used to illustrate the amount of milk produced in one year by Strathmore Sylvia. About one-sixth of the cans are visible in this picture. Altogether there were 478 cans—representing a production of 2,837 gallons of milk.

This exhibit attracted a constant stream of visitors who spent a good deal of time studying the material attractively displayed on show cards.

There are approximately 600 purebred Holsteins in the famous herd at Strathmore, Alberta. The show herd of 35 head won 100 first prizes at eight major exhibitions in 1928. Under the advanced registry system of the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada, there are 40 Gold Medal and 78 Excellent cows in this herd. This is the largest number of Gold Medals in any herd in the world.

Some very distinguished visitors have happened to come along just as this exhibit was about to be taken. The two ladies are Dowager Lady Pentland and her daughter, Hon. Lady Hinchin. The gentlemen are Lord Pentland and, on the left, George H. Jones, manager of the Strathmore Farm.

Recipes For This Week

(By Betty Barclay)

CHIFFON PIE

1½ cups sugar.
½ cup butter.
½ teaspoon salt.
½ cups boiling water.
Juice of 1 lemon.
2 yolks and grated rind of 1 orange.
3 eggs.

Mix sugar, flour and salt; add boiling water, stirring constantly. Cook 15 minutes. Add well-beaten egg-yolks, the juice of fruit and cook until thick. Cool. Make meringue of the whites of the eggs, ½ cup powdered sugar and 1 teaspoon lemon juice. Whip one-fourth of meringue into custard mixture and turn into baked shell. Cover with remaining meringue and brown in moderate oven.

GREEN TOMATO PRESERVE

3 pounds sugar.
4 pounds green tomatoes.
3 lemons.
1½ tablespoon preserved ginger.

The above table merely gives the correct proportions. Most women will desire to prepare several times this amount at a time. Wash the tomatoes, remove any dark spots about the stem, and blanch a layer of tomatoes, one of sliced lemon, then the sugar with the ginger sprinkled over it. Let the mixture stand overnight. Drain and boil the syrup for ten minutes. Skim, add the tomatoes and cook rapidly until they are clear. Pour into clean, hot jars and seal.

Woman In London Speaks To Hospital In Sydney, Australia

A conversation between a Hampshire widow and the matron of a Sydney, Australia, hospital, marked the first time that a private telephone has bridged the 13,000 miles between London and Sydney.

Jack Sigrist, 18-year-old cadet on the "Valencia" now in Australian waters, was calling for his mother in Romsey and, although radio telephone connections between London and Australia are still in the experimental stage, the post office department man's arrangements so that Mrs. C. J. Sigrist was able to speak to the hospital matron 13 minutes and learn that her son was improving.

The museum of the American Indian, in New York, grew out of the purchase by George G. Heye of a Navajo Indian shirt.

EZRA'S RETURN TO JERUSALEM

Golden Text: "The hand of our God is upon all them that seek Him, for good."—Ezra 8.22.

Lesson: Ezra 7.1 to 8.36.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 68.1-6.

Explanations and Comments

With the Permission Of Artaxerxes, Ezra Goes To Jerusalem, 7.6-10. —Ezra was a descendant of Seraiah, the chief priest during the reign of the last King of Judah, and traced his ancestry back to Aaron. He was "a ready scribe of the law which the Lord God of Israel had given." He had studied the law, and had copied it but interpreted it. He requested permission from King Artaxerxes to go to Jerusalem, and this the king readily granted. With a company of Jews who wished to settle in Judea, and with priests, scribes and singers for the temple service, purport to keep the temple gates (1 Ch. 9.17), and temple vessels, for the use of the temple (1 Ch. 9.31, he left Babylon the first month (Nisan, March-April), of the seventh year of King Artaxerxes, and arrived in the fifth month (Ab, July-August), after a journey of exactly four months. His purpose in going to Jerusalem was to teach the statutes and ordinances of the law to Israel, primarily. As for himself, he had "set his heart to seek the law of Jehovah," and what was more, "to do it."

Between the beginning what should be done and the doing of it there is, often, much delay. By in that year, shows "instant drive" as a short space.

The name seems to commemorate Nicolas Gauthier, or Gauthem of The Rivers who engaged in the fur trade from Lake Superior as early as 1682. Gauthem, and his sons after him traded with the Assiniboins of the Saskatchewan River. Why this name was applied to the river which now bears it became known only in the days of the fur traders. Who they were or what they did is not known.

Ezra's Arrival At Jerusalem, 8.1-14. —The journey was a long one, and the caravan required protection. Ezra was ashamed to ask for a military escort from the king, because he had told him that the hand of God was upon all them that seek Him, for good. Ezra's faith was put to the test, and it was fully tested and not found wanting. The journey was safely accomplished, and the gifts were delivered to the priests and Levites.

Ezra's Reforms, 8.15-36. —Ezra's first act was to assemble the people and priests at the river Ahava, and to encamp there three days. He found that no Levites had come with the company. He sent for them, and they came. Ezra then proceeded to count the gifts, and to weigh them, and to put them in charge of the priests and Levites. Then the company proceeded on its journey to Jerusalem, and arrived safely.

Lessons For Today

Ezra's Return To Jerusalem Is Typical Of Many Returns To God.

Ezra Was A Man Of Prayer.

Ezra Was A Man Of Faith.

Ezra Was A Man Of Courage.

Ezra Was A Man Of Wisdom.

Ezra Was A Man Of Action.

Snow Houses a Myth

Few Eskimos Have Ever Seen Or Heard Of One

Eskimos are frequently seen wearing under a powerful sun. The general idea of Eskimos and all inhabitants of the Arctic Circle is that they live in conditions of eternal winter. Quite wrong Mr. Stefansson, the Arctic explorer, has been telling a Cambridge audience. The wild flowers of the Arctic are exquisite, he says, and very few Eskimos have ever seen a snow house—or heard of one except at school!

Radio Information

Science has perfected a tiny camera that can be lowered into the human stomach to take pictures of the interior department from all angles. This is getting an inside view of the situation. Afterward the pictures may be enlarged.

Test For Your Eyes

Normal Vision Sees Objects Clearly Fifty Yards Away

Are you good at judging distances? It is said if you have normal eyesight you should be able to see a man's eyes at fifty yards; or a hatband yards you may see the buttons on his coat; and at three hundred yards you may but see his enclosed face, while the wild flowers of the Arctic are exquisite, he says, and very few Eskimos have ever seen a snow house—or heard of one except at school!

Larger Production Needed

"Larger production of high quality agricultural goods is what is necessary to Canada in the country to continue as an exporter of agricultural products," declared Hon. Motherwell, Federal Minister of Agriculture, informally opening Vancouver's 30th annual exhibition.

The Improved Glass Substitute

COMES WITH A MESSAGE OF HEALTH

TIME sun is the all-powerful life producer, Nature's universal disinfectant and germ destroyer, as well as stimulant and tonic. WINDOLITE is the sun's most important ally.

Medical research has definitely proved that from the point of view of Health and Hygiene, the most effective among the sun's rays, are the Ultra-Violet rays, which possess the greatest power for the prevention and cure of disease and debility.

Science has further established that ordinary window glass does not allow the passage of Ultra-Violet rays, so that by using glass we are artificially excluding these vital health-giving rays. Therefore, the invention of WINDOLITE has completely satisfied the long-felt want. Exhaustive experiments have conclusively proved that it is a most effective substitute for glass, that it freely admits the Ultra-Violet rays, and that its use has a most beneficial effect on the growth and development of plants and chickens and on the well-being of cattle, enabled for the first time to have healthy light instead of darkness in their sheds.

Indeed, the discovery of WINDOLITE has meant the last, and most important, revolution and gardening, given a new stimulus to poultry breeding, increased the egg-laying capacity and fertility of chickens, has greatly improved the health of cattle and is now being used in domestic and household requirements.

GATINEAU RIVER NAMED AFTER EARLY TRADER

First Record of Name Made in 1783 According to Geographic Board of Canada

When Champlain in his ascent of the Ottawa river in 1613 reached what is now the site of the capital of the Dominion on June 4 he noticed a tributary coming from the north. The river was the Gatineau. Champlain gives no name to it at all and as far as the Geographic Board of Canada is aware the first record of any name for the river does not occur till 1783 in that year Lieut. David Jones made a report on Governor Haldimand on the feasibility of a land canal on the Ottawa for United Empire Loyalist settlement in this district. Jones refers to "the River Lettine (Gatineau) and from thence about a league to Shaudiere (Chaudiere) Falls." As "River Lettine" the land appeared to be good near the bank of the Grand (Ottawa) River but back full of marshes."

The river is not shown by name on any maps in the Geographic Board's collection till 1821. A plan of the Ottawa river made by in that year shows "Gatineau River" as a short space.

The name seems to commemorate Nicolas Gauthier, or Gauthem of The Rivers who engaged in the fur trade from Lake Superior as early as 1682. Gauthem, and his sons after him traded with the Assiniboins of the Saskatchewan River. Why this name was applied to the river which now bears it became known only in the days of the fur traders. Who they were or what they did is not known.

THE STANDARD

VERMILION - - ALBERTA
ESTABLISHED 1909.
Published every Thursday Afternoon at the Office, Main St.
S. H. P. CROPPER, Editor

Vermilion, Alta., Aug. 29, 1929.

It was reported to publish the high school exam results this issue as announced last week, but unfortunately it has been impossible to do so. We regret the disappointment this will cause to those who were looking for word to it.

WHY NOT A FEW SIGNS IN TOWN.

Having had prompt attention paid to the matter on results last week, the Standard has now mustered up courage enough to try again along the same line, namely, road signs this time. Tourists arriving from the east almost invariably drive along Main street and on to the hospital road to the fairgrounds, then have to turn around and find their way out of town all over again. There is no visible sign to direct them differently and the hospital road looks very inviting. A sign placed at the arena rink corner or at the Memorial hall corner would serve the purpose admirably. It is a recognized fact that if a person misses the highway while touring it is the small town that he does it. Come to think of it, the only sign erected this year was by Wolf Creek, who put up one at the arena rink corner reading "Auto Camp, one mile south." They're hoping his example is followed by either the Board of Trade or town council.

A bunch of wan's may brown hair,
A sparkling smile, a baby stare,
A mould not an inch more much I care
Vi Fel

She's just as young as she should be
Her age—she's not telling me—
I know I always will admire
With Vi

But she just treats me like a pal,
Just wants to dance when I call,
When on my heart I want her all
My Vi

I'd be a happy bride, I bet,
If I could only get up pep
To pop the question, when I'm hot

But, Oh! She keeps me in suspense
I hope she doesn't think I'm dense,
I'd take her home and hand expense

Oh Lordy! It she turns me down
I will feel a silly clown
Straight to the river and I'll drown

MACHINERY BEING INSTALLED IN MILK STATION

The station of the Vermilion dairy is being prepared for the installation of the pasteurizing machinery, which is at present being operated in the Pat Burns' creamery. The milk station has been skilfully enlarged, smoothed and drained, stark erected, and water and sewage connections made. It is thought that the plant will be in operation next week.

The Standard, says a subscriber from Clandonald, is as good a "local rag" as that worthy has ever, getting all the local news, according to the gentleman in question, Mr. Fred Fowler. The Standard has recently added another correspondent for Clandonald and hopes to be able to furnish all the news of that district. Mr. E. A. THE END OF THE JOURNEY

ALMOST A TRAGEDY

What nearly resulted in a serious accident occurred last Wednesday morning when an aged lady pulled out a car stood woman and small boy, an aeroplane swung across the roads Pilot's cockpit was open and he was in front of twelve boys and girls. Fortunately the plane immediately began to climb and passed over the heads of the group of several men who were standing by. Had it been a little lower, happened to be nearby or a motor would doubtless have been seriously injured. Leading a dog pulling a toy wagon in which her grandchild was sitting, the woman did not see the approaching plane until she was almost on top of it. Then she turned and ran back to the group of children she was leading.

MAKE EPIC TREK

Arthur W. North, of the Explorers' Club, New York, and his fourteen-year-old son, Robert, photographed outside the Canadian National Railways' station at Winnipeg on their return to civilization after a marvellous journey of eight hundred miles from Hudson, Ontario, through the winter wilderness of Northern Ontario and Manitoba. Studying the primitive Ilinois tribes on a reservation that has seldom been visited by white man, the explorers spent more than two months in the open and accomplished a feat that has never been equalled. From the Canadian National line at Hudson they struck out by way of Lac Seul, Wenagan Lake and half a dozen other lakes and the Nelson River to York Factory on Hudson Bay. Turning homeward, they reached the end of the Hudson Bay Railway at Amery and went into The Pas by a dog team. Young Robert, who is the author of two books on exploring, will publish the results of this trip within a few months. He is now wearing a fringed caribou coat made by the Eskimos at York Factory

Locomotive Number 5509, one of a fleet of twenty monster oil-burning engines for use by the Canadian Pacific Railway on passenger trains on fast through service in the mountains of British Columbia, has been released from the Montreal Locomotive Works and was on display in the Windsor Street Station, Montreal, recently. It was viewed by a constant stream of spectators all day, who admired the 70 foot of weight, its huge proportions and its generally handsome appearance. This locomotive is the greatest in the British Empire

The display gave birth to the project of having the most beautiful rose garden in the world laid out on the Canadian American border and a committee was appointed to consider the plan and to settle final details at a meeting at the Royal York hotel in mid-

Anti-pressure has been made that Americans and Canadians will join in travelling to the World's Poultry Congress to be held in Kingland in 1930. Delegates will meet in Montreal and will travel via St Lawrence route overseas. It is expected that nearly 1,000 delegates will make the trip

Canada's wool crop, like the grain harvest, seems to rose the country in a great wave not being a small bumper crop in all provinces, but one of the greatest in the sheltered valleys it begins in the mountains of British Columbia and moves steadily across the Prairies. The shearing is at its height early in July and is about completed by the end of that month The crop ranges from 18 to 24 million lbs yearly and is marketed largely through the Canadian co-operative wool growers

Canadian Pacific farm sheep swept the board at the Edmonton show recently with three championships including the any age Suffolk ram and ewe. Other wins including unbeaten first were credited to the Experimental Farm at Strathcona, operated by the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Fine Sport on French River

Expert anglers from Chicago, New York and other United States cities, as well as Canada, are just now in the throes of the big fish contest at the French River Bungalow Camp which has been one of the major prizes of anglers on this continent for the past few years. To date the lead has been taken by a 30-lb. muskie, but there is still time to beat even this monster. A point of great interest to anglers is the fact that the Camp is on the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway and is accordingly easily accessible to sportsmen from the large cities. In addition to fishing facilities of the highest kind there are also ample opportunities for canoeing for hundreds of miles over some of the finest streams and lakes in the north country almost entirely unbrowsed by white men.

HIGHWAY MARKING

It was not surprising that delegates to the motorists' convention at Lethbridge passed a resolution urging the need of better marking of highways. Only those who have driven in the United States can realize how deficient we are in this respect. It is quite clear that Alberta should lose no time in putting into effect a strong sign programme of this kind. It was expected that Alberta would have various roads adequately marked this season but hopes in that respect seem doomed to disappointment, as the motorist season is half over for tourists. Now, any relief will depend on the extent of work to be carried on by the Alberta Motor Association.

Alberta delegates at the convention were astonished at the extent of the thoroughfares and scope of road making in the States. As stated by Controversion Scout Leavitt, proper marking is given first attention in some States, as it is little use having motorists completely bewildered by the absence of highway signs. All the joy of a trip can be completely wiped out by finding that you are twenty miles off the right road, and possibly in a province or state that has just increased its gasoline tax.

After what was learned at the Lethbridge convention Alberta can ill afford to neglect any longer the adoption of a proper and modern road marking system.—Good Roads Magazine

CROP MANAGEMENT FOR WEED CONTROL

(By G. E. DeLong, Assistant Superintendent, Lacombe Experimental Station.)

A thorough summer-fallow will usually be the most effective method of bringing the most persistent growing perennial weeds under control. When it is necessary to resort to the summer fallow as a weed control measure, it is advisable to adopt some systematic rotation of crops, with regular seeding down to grass and legumes at short intervals.

Many farmers feel that they can ill afford to free their lands of weeds by the method which will not give a crop at some kind. While the eradication of perennial weeds such as sow thistle, quack grass, etc., necessitates the use of the fallow, the farmer should does not free the land from many annual weeds such as wild oats, mustard, or stinking chamomile, but also from an economic standpoint to adopt farming methods that control rather than eradicate such weeds.

Land that is badly polluted with perennial weeds will produce an excellent crop of winter wheat or rye. Both of these crops act as smother crops for all types of weeds if they get a good start in the fall and do not winter kill.

Barley and oat grown feed if handled properly will effectively compete against most of our annual weeds and many perennials. Land to be used for these crops should be partially followed before seeding. It is usually wise to disc the stubble a week or so before plowing and thus promote the germination of weed seeds which are thrived with the preceding crop and fail on the ground. A succession of such crops and treatments tends to reduce the weed seed content of the soil

Seeding down to grass and legumes and cutting the hay crop early will prevent most kinds of weeds from ripening, thus decreasing the number of weed seeds which will be scattered over the soil from year to year. Alfalfa and sweet clover are the best crops to use for this purpose.

Live stock and particularly sheep are valuable aids in weed control. Live stock are most essential to profitable agriculture on a weedy farm as many of the crops which control weeds are not such crops and can be marketed to best advantage by the live stock route. In addition to this, sheep pasture weeds with a close-to-root system such as quack grass can be much more easily eradicated if the land is seeded down and left in pasture for a few years until it becomes free enough

By HUBERT DAR.
Copyright, 1928, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

SYNOPSIS

Al Rinna, the singing waiter at Shanks Joe's New York night club, has written a love song to Molly Wilson, but she treats him disdainfully because he is only a waiter. Finally he goes to the floor and renders the ballad himself, hoping to touch her heart. Marcus, the famous Broadway producer, is in the audience and offers to buy the song. Molly makes up to Al, on the false pretense that Marcus likes Molly to sing the number in one of his revues. Marcus agrees. Grace, the little cigarette girl, is heart-broken when she finds Al is leaving, for she is deeply in love with him. Al and Molly marry and both soon succeed on Broadway. Once Al visits his old friends at Shanks and Grace is delighted to see him. Then he returns to Molly's dressing room in a Broadway theatre. She is with his friend, John Perry, Al does not see John surreptitiously press Mollye hand as all three leave together.

CHAPTER X.

They descended the elevator from the Manhattan Opera House to the street, where Al looked around for a taxi. John Perry, following after, took Mollys arm, guiding her through the dense after - theatre crowds toward the curb.

Broadway at its best — two wide currents of human beings moved compactly up and down beneath the brilliant canopy of lights from electric signs. There was romance in the crowds, and power, and feeling of dreams carried from the theatres that dotted the Street of Lights. There were shrill cries for taxis, the giggle of girls dancing on the arms of their escorts, the piercing whistle of the traffic cops stopping and starting the ever-ending line of motor cars as the lights went from green to red, and back again. It was a scene of spirit and distinguished the crowd. But Molly turned bored eyes on this fantastic display of modern Babylon as she waited impatiently for the taxi.

"Steady, sister. He's doing the best he can," answered Perry.

But now a taxi driver saw Al's beckoning hand and swung up to the curb. They piled inside and the driver sped away toward the palatial skyscraper apartment in the fifties where Al and Molly lived. Molly snuggled down between Al and Perry.

"Al," she remarked after a moment, "why do you always have to travel in taxis? Why can't we have a limousine and a chauffeur of our own. Everybody else does."

Al did not notice the complaining note in her voice. "I've been thinking that same thing we can swing it easily now. Tomorrow you can pick one out. What kind?"

"I was thinking of a Rolls-Royce," said Molly eagerly.

Al hesitated and Perry gave a little laugh.

"Nothing cheap about Molly," said the racketeer.

"No, that's all right," interjected Al. "Whatever Molly wants she shall have. I feel I just can't do enough for her. Rolls-Royce it is."

They rode in silence until the taxi drew up before the apartment building that meant home to Al and Molly. As they stepped out Perry took a step as though to say good night. But Molly turned to him.

"No, John, I want you to come in." "Of course," agreed Al. "What do you mean by backing out?"

So Perry laughingly acquiesced. Once more the jungle-like splendor of the ballad himself, hoping to touch her heart. Marcus, the famous Broadway producer, is in the audience and offers to buy the song. Molly makes up to Al, on the false pretense that Marcus likes Molly to sing the number in one of his revues. Marcus agrees. Grace, the little cigarette girl, is heart-broken when she finds Al is leaving, for she is deeply in love with him. Al and Molly marry and both soon succeed on Broadway. Once Al visits his old friends at Shanks and Grace is delighted to see him. Then he returns to Molly's dressing room in a Broadway theatre. She is with his friend, John Perry. Al does not see John surreptitiously press Mollye hand as all three leave together.

CHAPTER X.

They descended the elevator from the Manhattan Opera House to the street, where Al looked around for a taxi. John Perry, following after, took Mollys arm, guiding her through the dense after - theatre crowds toward the curb.

Broadway at its best — two wide currents of human beings moved compactly up and down beneath the brilliant canopy of lights from electric signs. There was romance in the crowds, and power, and feeling of dreams carried from the theatres that dotted the Street of Lights. There were shrill cries for taxis, the giggle of girls dancing on the arms of their escorts, the piercing whistle of the traffic cops stopping and starting the ever-ending line of motor cars as the lights went from green to red, and back again. It was a scene of spirit and distinguished the crowd. But Molly turned bored eyes on this fantastic display of modern Babylon as she waited impatiently for the taxi.

"Steady, sister. He's doing the best he can," answered Perry.

But now a taxi driver saw Al's beckoning hand and swung up to the curb. They piled inside and the driver sped away toward the palatial skyscraper apartment in the fifties where Al and Molly lived. Molly snuggled down between Al and Perry.

"Al," she remarked after a moment, "why do you always have to travel in taxis? Why can't we have a limousine and a chauffeur of our own. Everybody else does."

Al did not notice the complaining note in her voice. "I've been thinking that same thing we can swing it easily now. Tomorrow you can pick one out. What kind?"

"I was thinking of a Rolls-Royce," said Molly eagerly.

Al hesitated and Perry gave a little laugh.

"Nothing cheap about Molly," said the racketeer.

They rode in silence until the taxi drew up before the apartment building that meant home to Al and Molly. As they stepped out Perry took a step as though to say good night. But Molly turned to him.

"No, John, I want you to come in." "Of course," agreed Al. "What do you mean by backing out?"

So Perry laughingly acquiesced. Once more the jungle-like splendor of the apartment — magnificently upholstered one this time — which carried them with amazing swiftness to the thirty-fifth floor. Al unlocked the apartment door and switched on the lights. A moment later Molly stood by the window, looking over the blazing lights of the city, glancing down at the specks on the sidewalks that were people. Her cheeks were hot for the moment and she threw open the window so that the crisp autumn night air fanned her face. Al had left the room. John Perry came and stood beside her, saying nothing, but regarding her with burning intensity.

Molly turned and answered his look with a wan smile. "No, John," she said quickly, "no, you don't understand."

"Understand what?"

"What I'm up against. It doesn't concern you. But . . . sometimes I feel I'd like to shout myself."

Perry reached out her hand, gave his arm a convulsive squeeze, then dropped it quickly as she heard Al returning.

Al was the perfect host. He drew out a pack of cards, swung open a little drinking cabinet and poured Perry a drink. But when Molly saw the cards she expostulated

"Al, don't go. I don't feel like cards tonight. I'm awfully tired. Let's just talk. Or, rather, you two men talk and I'll listen."

So Molly listened, but Perry soon saw that she was out of sorts and suggested that he go off to sleep He courteously rose to go.

"Well, Al, I'll probably see you tomorrow some time. Good night."

He bowed himself out and Al faced Molly.

"Darling, are you ill? You're quite pale now; I have a strange feeling that something is wrong. You haven't been yourself lately."

Molly looked at him steadily. Was a dark gleam in her blue eyes. Should she tell him?

"Yes, Al, something is the matter. I'm going to have a child."

Al said it deliberately and her lip curled, plainly showing her irritation. But Al, unconscious of her reaction, came swiftly to her, his face radiant!

"Molly, that's that's marvellous. A child—your child, my child!"

"Your child," Molly corrected him curtly.

"Why do you say that?" It's as much yours as mine.

"I say it because I don't want it; Molly's attractive lips were set in a grim line.

"But why, Molly? You're only talking that way because you're tired. You've had to work too hard. Listen, little sweetheart, when it arrives you'll love it; we'll both love it. It's bound to mean "the greatest happiness in the world to both of us. Don't you see that?"

"No, I don't. I see that it will ruin my career. I'll have to leave the show in a little while and while I'm gone Marcus will get a new ballad singer. People will forget me by the time I'm ready to come back. And now do I know Marcus will give me my job? I have the best spot in the show now. Your point of view is just plain selfish, because the whole thing doesn't affect you. But I see the other side."

Al stood at her bewilderedly for a moment. Then he said quietly:

"Molly, your nerves are on edge you wouldn't talk that way. You don't have to be afraid—Marcus will always put you in as his headliner. He knows it wouldn't write another song for him if he didn't. But he wouldn't think of giving you the go-by, anyway. He knows what an attraction your are."

Al paused to regard Molly with a reassuring smile, but she did not see it. Her eyes were fixed somberly upon the floor.

A helpless look passed across Al's face.

"As for my being selfish," he said slowly, "well, perhaps I am. But I don't mean to be. I simply adore you, Molly, and it would give me the greatest happiness I can think of for us to have a child. It would make all we have achieved seem worth while."

Molly arose wearily, "I'm going to bed."

Without kissing Al good night or even looking at him, she walked slowly toward her bedroom, her head dejectedly forward. He heard her bedroom door close sharply.

Instead of going to his own room and undressing Al lit a cigarette and paced the floor. At last he was agitated and worried about Molly. But gradually he argued himself out of the disturbed state of mind. After all, it was natural that she should be upset. Perhaps the strain of her nightly performances was too much for her. In the morning this cloud would pass from her.

He finished his cigarette, put out the lights and went to the drawing room window, whence he could look out on the yellow glow from the city lights.

As he stood by the window, dreaming, musing, already planning the future of the child that was to belong to him, he heard the tinkle of the phone in Molly's room. Her door must have opened for he heard Molly's calm voice:

"No, no. You mustn't call me."

Before Molly hung up Al thought he caught the word "John." But no, he must have been mistaken. John Perry wouldn't be calling up at this hour.

Broadcast Sensations Of Parachute Jump

Man Started To Talk At Height Of 10,000 Feet

The sensations experienced by a parachute jumper were broadcast from Roosevelt Field, New York, by Henry G. Dushmeyer, while he was plunging to earth from a height of 10,000 feet. It was believed to be the first experiment of its kind

Dushmeyer carried a 74-pound short wave transmitting radio set strapped to him, and held the microphone in his hand When he stepped off his airplane 10,000 feet up he started to talk into the mike and the words were picked up on the field by a short wave set, transmitted to the New York studio of the National Broadcasting Station, and there sent out over a network of stations

Judged By Newspaper

No one can deny it A city is misjudged by its newspaper If its newspaper has a standard in its treatment and display of news, in its features and in its editorial column, those facts soon make their impression. If the newspaper is unclean, the city will suffer. No institution has a more serious relation to a city's reputation than a city newspaper.

After Two Years

Reduce the Acid

Sick stomachs, sour stomachs and indigestion usually mean excess acid. The stomach nerves are over-stimulated. Too much acid makes the stomach and intestines sour.

Alkali kills acid instantly. The best form is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, because one harmless, tasteless dose neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Since its invention, 80 years ago, it has remained the standard with physicians everywhere.

Take a spoonful in water and your unhappy condition will promptly end in five minutes. Then you will almost know what to do. Other and harmful methods will never appeal to you. Go prove this for your own sake. It may save a great many disagreeable hours. Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any druggist.

Plan Nation Wide Broadcasts

Canadian National Railways Show Ambitious Program Mapped Out

"That the next twelve months will see the greatest advance in broadcasting in Canada that has ever taken place since the commencement of the art a few years ago" is the prediction of W. D. Robb, vice-president, Canadian National Railways, in whose department radio is included. "Two major factors will bring this about" continued Mr. Robb. "The extension of regular weekly schedule of network broadcasting on a national scale, and a marked improvement in programmes generally, and especially by providing more opportunity for Canadians to hear outstanding talent from their own country.

"I can only speak for the Canadian National Railways, but as the nation's greatest broadcaster, now operating thirteen stations and owning the only system of wires adapted for broadcasting under one direction stretching from Coast to Coast, we are planning to institute marked improvements ourselves and to co-operate in every way possible to assist other broadcasters in doing similar-ly. Commencing in October, we are planning to extend our National networks three times weekly from the Maritimes to the Rocky Mountains and once or twice from Atlantic to Pacific.

"These regular weekly national broadcasts should do much to create a better mutual understanding among the Provinces, unite more closely the elements and interests within our country and remove the feeling of isolation felt in not a few communities."

Thy kingdom come with power and grace
To every heart of man:
Thy pence. Thy joy. Thy righteousness
In all our bosoms reign.
—Charles Wesley.

Thy kingdom of heaven is not come when God's will is our law: it is come when God's will is our will. While God's will is our law we are but a kind of noble slaves; when His will is our will we are free children. Philosophy had gone forth to save the world and he had seen it. and he had learned that God's kingdom was not a kingdom of fanatics with a fag for a doctrine, but of willing living, obedient hearts

Priceless Relics Preserved

Sweden Has Richest In World Protected By Laws

Ravishes prehistoric relics are the richest in the world and this is because the same race has inhabited the country for about 15000 years, says Professor Curman State Antiquarian. The scientific museums in Sweden contain more than half a million treasures of antiquity. The present rate of the landscape with patches of fertile soil lying among barren areas, the forests or craggy hills, has also helped to preserve these materials of ancient days These natural obstacles have kept farmers from encroaching upon the sites where prehistoric tombs, fortifications and Viking rune stones have been hidden Moreover, the Swedish government realized 300 years ago the importance of preserving relics of antiquity and enacted laws to that end

A Valuable Seed Pod

Price Of Rare Orchid Is Estimated At $150,000

Probably the most valuable flower seed pod in the world was recently on display at the Chelsea Flower Show, in London, England. A single flower spenga from one of the seeds sold for more than $1,500, and others sold for $1,000. It is estimated that the entire pod with seed is worth $150,000. The pod is the fertilization of a rare orchid, the Miltonia Armstrongi

ARE UNLICENSED

EDMONTON—Motorists who have neglected thus far to secure drivers' licenses are likely to be checked up almost any day now and asked to explain why. Police throughout the province are proceeding to make a survey of the situation, government authorities being of the opinion that sufficient time has now been given for the accomodating public, and particularly town and city people to get their licenses. Some restrictions to the law in force are not improbable. To date 110,194 drivers licenses have been issued.

Landsville School Fair On September 5

Now that the Canadian Chautauqua is a matter of history and the boys and girls of the Landsville and district school fair association have returned to their duties with renewed energy and enthusiasm, we take this opportunity to remind them that the date of our School Fair this year is set for Thursday Sept. 5th.

This appears to be a memorable date for this community and this year we hope to make it more famous than ever.

This is the year that we are going to step out and show Dad a few things with regard to our capacity for doing big things. You will see us there early with a fine string of colts, calves, lambs, pigs, etc... We will also have a varied and beautiful display of flowers, vegetables, sewing and fancy work. (Of course our school work, viz: drawing, writing, maps, etc. may not interest you much, but we believe you will appreciate the display also.

And lastly, what do you think appeals to all, young and old alike? Why, the eats of course—cake, bread, fruit, pies, fancy candied delicacies of all kinds.

Now, most of our dads and mothers were with us last year, but this year we would like to issue a general invitation, one that will include Uncle Walt and Aunt Emmy and everybody. Just tell 'em it will be held at Somple's Hall on Thursday, Sept. 5th from 9 to 5, and they will know the rest. Tell 'em we'll have hot coffee for everybody and just bring their lunches, and try to follow in our foot steps for one day only. We'll show them a real good time and send them home tired but much wiser.

At last but not least, there is no entrance fee, no expense, in connection with the Fair. Everything is free. In fact it is we boys and girls under the capable supervision of our teachers who will put the whole pro gramme over.

The modesty of a candidate for a Georgia city council is worth calling to the attention of aspirants for that honor elsewhere. One of his advertisements read: "I know I'm not much. But why vote for less?"—Journal.

SHORTEN NAME OF ALBERTA TOWN

St. Paul des Metis, Alberta, will be no more so far as the Postal Service of Canada is concerned.

Starting on September 1, this post office will be known as St. Paul, Alberta, according to an announcement made by P. E. J. Leger, district superintendent, Friday.

The change has been made following a board of trade movement at St. Paul des Metis to have the name shortened to "St. Paul."

Quick Action On East Road

"Reduce Speed to Forty Miles per Hour"

The Standard learns that following the article appearing in its columns last week concerning the highway east of town, which it dubbed the "Rocky Road," that prompt action on the part of the officials of the Board of Trade in conjunction with J. A. Morison, government road inspector, resulted in the decision to place two signs at the entrance of the road in question, the signs reading "Reduce Speed to 40 Miles per Hour."

The Standard is indeed gratified to learn that its columns have been the means of obtaining such prompt and effective action.

Tourists From U.S. May Return With Goods Worth $100

Removal of vexatious restrictions on tourists has long been urged as resolutions of the Alberta Motor Association. It has been shown that this country is desirous of making a very strong appeal to motorists from south of the border; this being the country to which a large percentage of them is said to drive for holiday jaunts.

There is therefore satisfaction as mong those promoting the work of the A.M.A. over the recent announcement from Washington that tourists will have no trouble taking purchases back to their own country so long as they follow instructions.

Writing from the U.S. capital to the Ontario Motor League, F.A. Weber, U.S. Commissioner of Customs, stated that the provisions still remain which allow tourists to bring back from Canada souvenirs in the shape of wearing apparel, table linen, pictures, books, musical instruments, pipes, cutlery, chinaware, stationery and "bric-a-brac" up to $100 in value free of duty. This definite ruling was obtained as the U.S. bureau had ruled in a recent case that a desk brought in from abroad was not entitled to free entry. His reply shows that the old ruling in respect to tourists visiting Canada still stands, despite the recent decision.

Signs Giving Names of Towns Should Be Displayed

Alberta towns on main or secondary highways might well adopt a plan of having the name of the community displayed on board or electric signs. While some have such signs, they are scant in number and should be augmented by others in all parts of the province.

During a trip to Lethbridge a few days ago, motorists found that such names of towns were singularly lacking. Some who arrived late at night had to drive round and make inquiries as to the name of the place in order to make certain that the right road was being followed.

Councils might well arrange for signs to be erected on the main roads on each side of the town, giving the community some useful publicity and at the same time providing a service that would be useful to motorists.

Church At Jasper Is Soldiers' Monument

JASPER, Alta. Unique among the churches of Canada is, the little church of St. Mary and St. George of Jasper, which was consecrated recently by the Bishop of Edmonton. The building, a beautiful structure of stone and stucco with a tiled roof, was built at a cost of $12,000 from a design by A. M. Calderon of Edmonton and is a gift to the parish from a lady in England, who wishes her name to remain anonymous.

It was presented in memory of her son who was killed in war, and beneath the corner stone which was laid late year by His Excellency the Governor-General, lies the testament which was found on the young man's body when he was carried out of "No Man's Land." The furnishings and fittings of the church were also the gift of the unknown donor, while the bell was presented by Viscount Willingdon

The High Cost of Sickness

Ten billion dollars a year, or one-ninth of the annual income of the United States, goes to that country to pay for illness or to repair damages inflicted by it, according to one responsible authority quoted in a recent issue of "The Literary Digest."

It is doubtful if in Canada the necessary information is available and data compiled to enable an estimate to be made of the costs of sickness to the Dominion as a whole. Probably in this more northerly climate and less congested centres of population, sickness is not quite so prevalent, although, on the other hand, owing to the distances which many of our rural population are from doctors, hospitals and nurses, the average cost per patient may be somewhat higher than across the line.

Some of the figures quoted by "Literary Digest" as applicable to the United States may, therefore, be not so very far out in their relation to Canada. At all events, they are arresting and thought provoking.

It is stated that the average individual between the cradle and the grave spends one-fortieth of his time in bed because of incapacitating illness, and that for the same reason the average worker loses two per cent. of his time, or a fraction more than seven days a year.

The people of the United States, it is asserted, are paying for the treatment of disease not less than $2,500,000,000 a year, or approximately $100 per family. In addition there is an estimated annual loss of $1,000,000,000 as a result of decreased wage-earning capacity. And there is a still further permanently interrupted wage-earning capacity through premature deaths, estimated to be 80,000 in number, making the total annual cost of disease to the people of the United States $10,000,000,000. The total annual income of the country is about $90,000,000,000.

Can any people afford to pay such a staggering sum, constituting, as it does, about a large percentage of the total income on such a non-productive, destructive thing as disease and preventable deaths? The United States census returns make answer According to the official compilation, 69.7 per cent of registered males in that country were unable to pay in full: 19.3 per cent. of patients paid in part, and 31 per cent. patients paid nothing While no reliable data is available as to the extent that patients who paid for the services of specialists, it is reasonable to suppose that physicians were paid as much the same ratio as the hospitals. If so, then only about one-half of the people paid in full for services required as a result of illness 30 per cent. paid in part, and 20 per cent. paid nothing.

The conclusion reached is, that for the great mass of families with incomes below $1,200 a year, there is only one of two alternatives when sickness overtakes them: medical charity or financial tragedy.

The further conclusion is reached that there are just two ways to the lowering the cost of medical care. One way is by the prevention of unnecessary disease,—certainly the best and most economical way, and the other way is through the use of an organized medical service.

An organized medical service, it is pointed out, can be effected for financial returns considerably smaller than the cost would be if the patient obtained the same services from unrelated practitioners and specialists. An organized service makes possible economies which are not possible in an unorganized service. Certain examples are cited

Through an organized medical service, some of the large universities are able to render a thoroughly modern medical service, including hospital care to their students for from $9 to $12 per student a year.

The Endicott-Johnson Corporation, with its 16,000 employees and their families represent a population of approximately 60,000 people. The Corporation gives those employees and their families a medical service which includes the full-time services of 27 physicians, 3 dentists, 1 X-ray technician, 81 nurses, and 2 pharmacists, for an annual cost of $6 to $7 per capita for the whole industrial population.

The industrial settlement of Cannon Mills, Kannapolis, North Carolina, composed of workers of five cotton mills and one paper mill, gives a modern, efficient medical service, including hospital care, home visits, and public-health nursing, for $22.50 per family, or at approximately $9 per capita.

The insurance principle is urged as the remedy, and an effective one, for covering the adequate medical needs of the average family of the average large percentage of the people. And it is believed that insurance companies will, in time, embrace it as a part of their protective programme.

DO YOU VALUE HEALTH?

Sickness Almost Always Due To Weak, Watery Blood

If your health is poor; if you are pale, nervous and easily tired; if you suffer from headaches or backaches; if there are touches of indigestion, or bodily disfigurement, you may depend upon it that these symptoms come from an impoverished condition of the blood, and that unless this condition is remedied by building up the blood, grave trouble will follow. To any who are in this condition, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will be found the perfect medicine. The whole mission of this medicine is to build up the blood, promote appetite and digestion, and when the blood is enriched nerves, men and women alike benefit through it. They are not a cure-all, but for those troubles that arise from poor blood, such as anaemia, indigestion, rheumatism, sciatica, kidney troubles, and the special ailments that so many women suffer from, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best medicine in the world. Mrs. Thomas Lapointe, Ste. Rose du Lac, Man., says: "I was in a very bad state of health, suffering from anaemia. I had no appetite, and was very pale and weak. I had dizzy spells, and was troubled with palpitation of the heart. I was under the doctor's care, but got no better. I was induced to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after using them for a short time I felt much better. I continued their use for some months, and was completely restored to health. I have since recommended them to others, and will always speak a good word for them."

You can get these pills from your druggist, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Honored Carrier Pigeon

Marble Plaque To Be Memory Unveiled At Verdun

The Roman City of Verdun saw the unveiling of perhaps the most novel war memorial in the world.

It was a marble plaque to the memory of the last carrier pigeon, No. 787-15, which on June 4, 1916, left Fort Vaux bearing the news of the storm of gas shells and machine gun fire.

It carried a message from Major Raynal, the commander of the fort, which read:

"We are still holding out, but we are receiving a very dangerous gas and smoke attack. It is urgent to relieve us. This is our last pigeon."

The pigeon got through, and was awarded the Legion of Honor and the Croix de Guerre. It was kept in the army pigeon headquarters as a pensioner until it died about four years ago.

U.S. Engineer Works On Problem To Prevent Mississippi Floods

With a view to obtaining information which might lead to the effective control of Mississippi floods, George Rundle, head of the Corps of Engineers of the U.S. War Department is investigating Canadian storage facilities in the hope that if the peaks of the floods of the Milk River in Alberta and its tributaries in Saskatchewan were smoothed off by the construction of reservoirs, the condition of the Mississippi river might be changed for the better. He intends to study intensely the conditions at the head-waters of the Milk River on the eastern slope of the Rockies near the Montana border From its source here the Milk River flows north into Canada and then turns south again. Its waters finally flowing into the Mississippi.

SHIP YOUR GRAIN TO McBean Bros.

Over conditions the world over appear to be unsatisfactory this year, no matter what the immediate future may bring forth, we believe that a careful study of the world's grain situation will show that wheat will be worth today $1.50 per bushel with every higher prices later on.

Assuming that importing countries will take as much wheat this year as they took last year, they will need over 300,000,000 bushels, and European crops as yet are short of this figure. There is every indication of a shortage in supplies before another crop is harvested, and we advise you to hold your wheat and feed it to stock, selling at $1.25, and sell it all then.

In shipping your grain to us you can obtain a regular advance and can then hold for a favorable market.

New British Liner

"Britannic" Of White Star Line Is Largest British Steamship

The twin-screw motor passenger liner "Britannic," built by Messrs. Harland & Wolff, Limited, for the White Star Line, has been successfully launched from the builder's North Yard, Belfast.

The "Britannic" is intended for the Liverpool-New York service of her owners, the White Star Line, and is the sister ship to the well known White Star fleet, being the largest British motorship.

Special consideration provided for the 1,350 passengers (cabin, tourist, and third class), will set up a new standard for this service, numerous features being the swimming pool and tennis courts in the cabin class, and a tennis lawn, and garden arrangements in the tourist and third class accommodation The size of the "Britannic" has been given considerable care for spacious planning and effortless design in the cabin class public rooms, and the impression of restricted space so common on board ship has been very effectively eliminated

The cooking throughout the ship is carried out electrically, and this not only includes the main cooking ranges, but every appliance as grills, roasters, fish friers, salamanders, griddle plates and hot plates. In this connection the kitchen's oven, together with the oven in the confectioner's shop, is also electrically operated.

It is expected that the "Britannic" will be the most popular ship sailing out of the port of New York during the tourist season. Never before has the tourist of moderate means been so catered for by a steamship company, and the opinion of shipping men is that the White Star Line are to be congratulated on the excellent way they have made by means of the "Britannic" to cater to the tourist class traffic, and the necessity created for the first class ships, and it is felt that a cabin class ship, such as the "Britannic" will in the very near future prove a popular addition to the shipping life of New York.

No Cause For Alarm

Oil Drillers Could Penetrate Earth Thirty Miles Without Danger

Some of the oil wells in Alberta are known to be kept for weeks drilled a mile down into the earth's surface. Uneasiness has been felt that perhaps this drilling is going a bit too deep. But there's no danger.

A Harvard professor has told the geological society that the crust of the earth is a sea of dense liquid gas on which oceans and continents float, and that wells can be sunk to surrender by successive shells.

If the Alberta oil drillers have pierced a shell or thickness they still a long way from tapping the liquid gas that, presumably, if allowed to escape, would poison the atmosphere.

BIG OPPORTUNITY FOR CANADA TO SECURE TRADE

Vancouver.—Vancouver's strategic position for trade with the Orient, if Canada takes full advantage of the gradual awakening of hundreds of millions of Chinese to the value of modern machinery and, more important, import the food quantities of wheat as compared with rice, was described by Sir Henry Thornton, president of the C.N.R.

At a luncheon tendered by the mayor and alderman to the president and regional officers of the C.N.R., Sir Henry pointed to China as a slumbering giant awakening, perhaps by nations, but nevertheless awakening.

"Hundreds of millions of people are there who have not yet become alive to the fruits of civilization," the speaker said. "The day of their awakening to the value of implements, machinery and railways, and, what is more important still to Canada, is the food value of wheat in preference to rice. The demand which will follow in the train of their awakening is an alluring field for this dominion, and Vancouver is the port through which the bulk of the business with that country must be done.

"Canada would be well advised as a nation to systematically and in concentrated fashion attack the opportunities in China and get in on the ground floor."

Facing Grain Shortage

Russia Will Have To Import Wheat Says Soviet Official

London, England.—A wheat shortage in Russia was indicated today in an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Moscow, via Riga.

The despatch said that that Michael Kalinin, president of the Soviet Central Executive Committee, despite his previous prediction that the 1920 harvest would be 5,000 000 tons greater than in 1922, was now reported to have said that Russia must import 50,000,000 roubles worth of grain or force the peasants to work harder

The situation was declared to be precarious, because of a prolonged drought in the south Ukraine, Volga and Caucasus regions.

The number of cases reported in Ottawa to date, is 39, which is regarded as an abnormal situation.

New Anaesthetic Gas

Inventor Claims It Is More Rapid and Recovery Is Quicker

Toronto.—Dr. Miles Minter Hospital publishes the following special despatch from Boston:

A new anaesthetic gas has been prepared by Dr. G. H. W. Lucas, of Philadelphia, and Prof. V. H. Henderson, of the University of Toronto. It was explained at the International Physiological congress at the Harvard medical school. They claim for it properties that make it safer than ether and when he goes away from home as similar to nitrous oxide, but with more satisfactory after-effects.

It is apparently a carbonic gas. Apparently anaesthetization is rapid, with little or no struggling, and recovery takes place almost equally as rapid.

Animals were anaesthetized on three successive days for a period of two hours without showing any apparent subsequent toxic effects. Respiration of a mouse was cut off at depth, and the blood pressure rises slightly or remains normal.

Fire fighters were soon on hand and worked into the night getting it under control, but it again broke out and a general alarm was sent out by 'phone and by the blowing of the fire whistle in Portal, N.D.

Citizens, railway employees, customs and immigration officers from both sides of the boundary headed by Sergt. Bradley, R.C.M.P., turned out in full force, leaving the towns almost deserted, and joined with the farmers making an army of 300 men who fought the flames for five hours and by backfiring and plowing up fire guards prevented loss of crops and buildings except an old barn on the Almond farm. One of the fire engines from Portal, N.D., was run out to the John Waddington farm in case it might be of use in protecting the farm buildings. The fine spirit shown by the citizens from the U.S. side in helping out their neighbor farmers is highly commended and much appreciated. The dry prairie and the high wind made the fire hard to control and dangerous ever known in this district.

Britain and France Sure To Co-Operate

Reparations Problems Will Not Affect Friendship says Hon. Jean Knight

Vancouver.—Problems resulting from the failure of Germany to meet her reparations payments to those countries which suffered most from the war, as a result of the World War, will be settled so far as Britain and France are concerned, in a spirit of understanding and co-operation, declared Hon. Jean Knight, first minister of Saskatchewan, on his return from a two Flat planes, and the lack of sufficient time to give the third Flat a complete and thorough trial. Nine machines are left out of the 12 that Italy had groomed for the supreme speed test

Three Flats were regarded as the masterpieces of Italian aviation. They were designed by the engineer, Rossi, and their motors were planned by the engineer Zerbe of the Flat company. They are known as the Flat type of eight-cylinder engine weighing only 2,000 pounds including the motor

Assembling Large Seaplane

Buffalo Concern Plans To Use It On Great Lakes

Philadelphia.—A seaplane capable of carrying 50 persons, believed to be the largest in America, is being assembled at the Philadelphia navy yard. It is destined for operation on the great lakes by a Buffalo concern to carry sightseers over the lakes.

The giant craft, of which drowned 100 Operons and destroyed 5,000 houses, was reported from Tabris. The custom house with 2,200 bales of merchandise was damaged and streets washed out in places to a depth of nine feet. The government has authorized immediate expenditure of $1,000 for the erection of levees.

BELIEVE NAVAL PARLEY PLANS NEARLY FINISHED

Washington, D.C. — Developments in the naval reduction negotiations between the United States and Great Britain are rapidly reaching the point where representatives of the two countries will be able to inform the public as to whether a conference will be held this present year

Disclosure at the White House that Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald is now expected to arrive at Washington early in October for a conference on the naval situation with President Hoover was interpreted by official Washington as strong indication not only that a naval parley will be held, probably in December, but that it will have a good chance of being successful.

The decision drawn from the statements of the White House to operations regarding the significance of MacDonald's coming to the United States was that the British official would be likely to make the trip to Washington unless the great work was prepared in advance for a conference

The present exchanges between the British and American governments, it was learned, already had begun and are being kept fully informed, are apparently shaping towards having Great Britain extend the invitation for the conference with London as the meeting place

Italian 'Planes Wrecked

Were To Be Used In Schneider Cup

Rome, Italy.—Italy is rearranging her plans to capture the Schneider Cup from Great Britain, September 26, as the result of the wrecking of two Flat 'planes, and the lack of sufficient time to give the third Flat a complete and thorough trial. Nine machines are left out of the 12 that Italy had groomed for the supreme speed test

Three Flats were regarded as the masterpieces of Italian aviation. They were designed by the engineer, Rossi, and their motors were planned by the engineer Zerbe of the Flat company. They are known as the Flat type of eight-cylinder engine weighing only 2,000 pounds including the motor

VARIOUS REASONS ARE GIVEN FOR GRAIN TIE-UP

Montreal.—Wartness of the European buyer; consumption of home grown wheat in many European countries; the great crop in Russia; wheat and just "market conditions" were various reasons ascribed in different quarters to the tie-up of Canadian wheat in Montreal and other eastern points

Whatever the cause, there are 175 inland ships laid up in the ports between the lakes and the Atlantic and some 1,800 Canadian sailors, it is estimated, are idle. The lake sailors here are practically full and there is no indication of a break

While the large steamers and tugs are feeling the pinch keenly, with probably half of their ships standing idle, the lot of the small owner, of the man with one or two ships, is even more serious.

The new crop will be on the move very shortly, but marketing conditions are unsatisfactory. Local dealers report both the United States and the Argentine as underselling Canada and, while the European buyer must have a certain amount of Canadian grain, he is buying a minimum in the face of this competition, it is stated here

Canadian seamen, out of employment through the tie-up, are going to the United States to seek employment declared J. H Pare, president of the Canadian Seamen's Association.

The present hold-up of grain in the port of Montreal is wholly a question of price. The time will come when either we shall have to meet the view of the European buyer or price, or he will have to meet ours. In the meantime, our products are not moving said Frederick Heywood, export manager for James Richardson and Sons Limited He added that Canadian prices were wholly a matter of market conditions and did not hold the Canadian wheat pool to blame.

DEPORTED MEN THROW HOODS INTO CANADA

LIVERPOOL, Eng., Aug. 27 — A dozen young Englishmen who had failed to make their way in Canada, where they went as farm workers some months ago and had been deported by the Canadian authorities, arrived at Liverpool on the liner Montcalm today.

One man said he and others recently had only ten dollars a month, though they were promised more. This man complained of long working hours, with 15 minute intervals for breakfast, dinner and supper.

Another stated thousands of men, out of work in Montreal, Quebec and Winnipeg, were anxious to get back to England. Some of the men said their experience in Canada was that large numbers of foreign laborers "undercut" the British migrants as farm hands, working for much lower wages. Some were largely run by vendors, furniture and men of other nationalities they claimed.

VERMILION AND DISTRICT SCHOOL FAIR WEDNESDAY

Next Wednesday, September 11th, is the day set for the Vermilion School Fair, to be held on the Agricultural Fair grounds. The Vermilion School Fair has always been noted as the largest and best organized in the Province, and this year will probably enhance that position a little more. The vegetables will probably not be up to the mark set in preceding years but all other classes will, it is thought equal or exceed those of previous fairs. All exhibits with the exception of livestock and flowers are to be at the grounds the day previous to the Fair

BOLES PROMINENT PLAYERS IN "THE DIVINE LADY" CAST

Corinne Griffith in Stellar Role, Has Victor Varconi and H. B. Warner in Supporting Company

There have been many "all-star" casts heralded by motion picture but "The Divine Lady," the First National picture to be shown at the Columbia theatre here on Sept. 12, 13, 14 next week end, comes as near meriting that phrase as any production of the year.

The real star of the picture is, of course, Corinne Griffith, who has her greatest screen role as Lady Hamilton in this picturization of E. Barrington's most interesting novel.

More than a dozen players of great prominence in addition to character players who appear in a picturesque and surround Miss Griffith

Victor Varconi, who has made such rapid progress in American films in a comparatively short space of time plays the roll of the heroic Lord Nelson.

H. B. Warner, whose greatest achievement on the screen was "The King of Kings," has a roll of almost equal prominence as Lord Hamilton. Varconi, incidently, first attracted real attention with his portrayals of the small but important roll of Pancho Pillete in the same production

Who does not know Marie Dressler, the screen's greatest comedienne, who, more than twelve years ago, eclipsed even the great Chaplin in the first feature length comedy, "Tillie's Punctured Romance."

Ian Keith, handsome player, grows in fame on both stage and screen. His striking personality in the roll of Greville, whose affair with Lady Hamilton in her youth started her on her illustrious career.

Dorothy Cumming, Michael Vavitch, Montagu Love, Helen Jerome, Eddy, William Conklin, George Periolat, Mary Mersh, Syd Crossley, Hank Ford, Gustave Partos and many other actors in small parts and "bits" are in the cast

"The Divine Lady" is the first of four big productions Frank Lloyd has contracted to direct for First National Pictures. It is scheduled as the most pretentious production of this year for that organization

MARKED INCREASE IN SCHOOL ATTENDANCE

The first routine meeting of the school board for the fall term was held last night with all members in attendance. The report of Principal Stewart showed an enrolment of 261 the public school, which is an initial increase of 8 over a year ago. The South Side school has 29 students with Grades 1 to V. The student list at the high school for the opening of the term, as reported by Principal Markle, was most satisfactory, numbering 116 as against 95 last September. The number will increase as the term advances and is expected to greatly exceed the peak of the past year (Hosley) and Agriculture I are additional subjects for the year

A considerable amount of routine business was dealt with before the meeting adjourned

Missionary Wants Used Razor Blades For African Natives

What do you do with your old razor blades" Some people use them up for sharpening pencils, but there is a limit to the number of pencil sharpeners one requires. Others simply allow them to accumulate, to the annoyance of their women folk.

But the blades which are a nuisance over here may be valuable in other lands. Some months ago a well-known missionary asked for used razor blades, which could not be disposed of otherwise, to be sent to him and he collected about 300-600 of them.

These blades are much prized by the African natives among whom this missionary works, and in one fifty-mile football match recently it was found that they were the popular choice as prizes for the winning team.

Conquer Mountain Peak

Party From New York Succeed In Scaling Mount Alexander

After battling Alpinists for many years, Mount Alexander has at last yielded. The great peak which stands near the Continental Divide, near Prince George, B.C., rises to more than 11,000 feet in altitude and is surrounded by what has hitherto been impregnable ice. The first ascent was made by Dr. Andrew Gilmore, of New York, accompanied by Miss Helen Buck, Dr. Mary Godard, Potter and Frank Waterman of the same city, and J. J. Waffl and B. Comstock, of New Jersey.

They were in Jasper on their way home after the victory, all except Waffl, who plans to attempt conquest of Mount Robson The party, entertained by Curly Phillips, well-known Rocky Mountain guide, went out from Devona, through the Rocky River country and returned by way of the Main Divide Among the other peaks they scaled were Resplendent and Chown.

More Powerful Motors For New Zeppelins

Would Ensure Trans-Oceanic Service Regardless Of Weather

Dr Lolster Kelp, director of the Zeppelin Construction Company, who was a round trip passenger on the recent flight to the U.S. of the Graf Zeppelin, has stated that the steamship company would probably partic pate in financing the new Zeppelins Hence he said, would be equipped with more powerful motors that would enable an average speed of finally 95 miles an hour and be capable of providing regular transoceanic service regardless of weather. It is anticipated that within a few years the fare between Germany and the U S would be reduced from $2,000 to $1,000

Old Settler Deported

Violated U.S. Immigration Laws Unknowingly Prosecution Says

John Donaldson Ross, Scottish dairy expert, who unwittingly violated the immigration law quota by coming into Wilner Glen, Montana, from Canada several years ago, was deported back to Scotland, on the Montana border, despite all the efforts of the Anaconda Copper Co., his employers, to keep him here.

Ross, who is now 52 years old, born in Scotland, but reared in Canada and his two small daughters, one born in Canada and the other in the United States.

They arrived at Ellis Island after a long trip from the mountains in Montana, aboard a special train filled with other deportees, many of whom were held in detention quarters and asylums. Ross came from Scotland to Canada eight years ago. There he married, and one daughter was born to the couple before they crossed into Montana.

Somebody informed immigration authorities that Ross was living in the United States in violation of immigration laws, and he and his family were ordered deported. Ross was not even permitted to back to Illinois.

Historic Apartment Has Been Preserved

Rooms in London Where Y.M.C.A. Was Founded 85 Years Ago

It is just a little more than 85 years ago since Sir George Williams then a humble shop assistant, founded the Young Men's Christian Association. He held the first meeting in his bedroom, which is now shown a big drapery shop in St. Paul's Churchyard. The rooms and his tables are preserved intact, for when rebuilding was in progress, the structure was lifted bodily from a lower floor to its present position. Pilgrims from every part of the globe visit the historic apartment to pay homage to their founder. The association later engaged a room in a coffee house for half a crown a week.

The Newest Skyscraper

New York Building Almost Equals Height Of a Mountain

It is extraordinary to reflect syrian "Lonber Co" in the London Daily Chronicle, that the news could ing to be exerted for a bunk in Wall Street, New York, will be only 100 feet less than the height of the mountain! With its 63 storeys and total height of 940 feet, this lofty erection should be one of the sights of the world. Britain's most elevated spire, that of Salisbury (merely 400 feet) quite pales into insignificance thereby. And the distance from the ground of the crew of Mr Paul's would have to be added to the height of Egypt's Great Pyramid before it equalled that of the New York giant.

An Unusual Church

Building In Copenhagen, Denmark, Is Shaped Like Gigantic Organ

Scattered throughout the civilized world are churches of varying degrees of beauty—some small, some large and lofty, some with towering spires, others with beautiful domes, of exquisite glass windows—but perhaps the most unusual and original church in existence today is to be seen in Copenhagen.

To begin with, this church has been constructed entirely as a memorial to N. F. S. Grundtvig, a preacher greatly admired and respected in Denmark; but it is the design of the building that is so attractive. The whole edifice is shaped like a gigantic organ outlined against the sky, and at first sight is almost overwhelming. One almost expects to hear music coming from the pipes that constitute the roof of this wonderful building, so natural is the effect.

Whilst on the subject of Copenhagen, another curious sight to be seen in the city is a tower that rises above the Church of Our Saviour. This remarkable tower is 268 feet high, and is built like a corkscrew, round which are steps, on the outside, leading to the top! This tower was built in 1696, and has long been a special feature of the city.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

SEPTEMBER 8

NEHEMIAH REBUILDING THE WALL OF JERUSALEM

Golden Text: "The people had a mind to work."—Nehemiah 4.6.

Lesson: Nehemiah 2.1 to 7.4.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 80.1-7.

Explanations and Comments

Withstanding Ridicule, verses 1-6. —"What are these feeble Jews up to?" mockingly questioned Sanballat before his brethren and the army of Samaria. "Do they think they can do it all in a day? Do they expect to bring the stones to life out of these heaps of rubbish?"

"In every community there are crowds of people who have gone to the wall, who feel crushed and beaten. Now, the Church's mission is to do for this ruined mass what Nehemiah did for the rubbish-heaps of Jerusalem—to build out of them the city of God. The rubbish-heap is God's raw material. A revival is His finished product. Let the "Church get to work. She alone is equipped for so divine a duty. She has power to transform this mass of rubbish into a field of roses."—F. W. Boreham.

Then Tobiah joined in the ridicule. "What stone wall," said they, "are they building;" he said, "will be broken down if a fox tries to scale it." Their words were repeated to Nehemiah, and he appealed to God to judge them. "Ridicule that comes out of the real humor of the situation may be hard to bear, but the mere ridiculed often finds his labors lightened if he can himself see the humorous side. The ridicule of Sanballat and Tobiah, however, came from fear and a realization of the power of Nehemiah. Nehemiah kept steadily at his work in face of ridicule. The trouble with righteous indignation is that many times the man who is righteously indignant has to stop his work to vent his feeling. The resentment of Nehemiah against the enemie, of the Lord only made him more determined to finish the wall."

"The people had a mind to work," Nehemiah said, giving them the credit for the work in the center the completion of half the height of the wall. It is thought that the most ancient walls had a height of two hundred feet."

"He who is severed from a cause he knows is right, through fear or ridicule, taunts, sneers or sarcasm of those around him, is not a man self-directed by right. He is only a weak prophet pulled by the strings of manipulation in the hands of others."

William George Jordan.

Despite all opposition from enemies, and all fears and weaknesses of workers, the wall was completed in the short space of fifty-two days. With great rejoicing a solemn dedication was held.

JUVENILE IMMIGRATION

MONTREAL, Sept. 3.—"The migration of British juveniles for farms in Canada, is one of the most promising features of the immigration situation at the present time," stated E. R. Pym, superintendent in Britain of juvenile immigration for the Colonization department of the Canadian National Railways, who arrived in Montreal on the White Star Liner "Laurentic," for the annual conference of National Railway Colonization department officials.

Mr. Pym arrived with the final party of British juveniles for the season, numbering some 83 boys, and commenting on the amazing development of juvenile immigration from the British Isles, Mr Pym stated that altogether this season a total of 1,100 boys had been brought over under the auspices of the Canadian National Railways. This was an increase of 134 per cent. over the season of 1928, and when it was considered that 1928 season showed an increase of 84 per cent over 1927, it could be realized to what a great extent juvenile immigration and became a factor in the general situation

More than 1,000 of the boys remains forward this year, were placed by the British Immigration and Colonization Association, of Montreal, on farms throughout Ontario The balance have been placed by other organizations in both eastern and western Canada. "About 97 per cent of these boys have, definitely made good" said Mr. Pym. "Considering like one half per cent have had to be deported, while the remaining small percentage might be said to be still on the fence, with respect to their desire to stay in this country."

Generally speaking, the boys come from good middle-class families and many of them are fairly well educated Britain and enterprising and eager to make a career for themselves in the new country.

"One of our greatest difficulties, in juvenile immigration work," said Mr Pym, "has been the persistence of the old idea, still persisting in the Old Country, that boys and young men are sent to colonies only as a last resort, if they were wayward or criminally inclined. It is surprising to what extent that idea still persists, and it is only gradually that we are registering this with the true ideal that Canada is a wonderful land of opportunity, and that British boys and Britishers in general are welcome here and that in this country they may build for themselves a future not possible in the old world."

"The juvenile movement has become very popular, and the prospects for next season are exceedingly promising," stated Mr Pym

Historic Sites Board Have Marked For Perpetuation Another Group of Historic Places

The Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada met at Ottawa recently and marked those for perpetuation another group of historic sites.

One hundred and twenty-nine such sites have been marked with a permanent monument since the board commenced its labors in 1919. These marks stretch from the international border to the Arctic, from the Atlantic to the Pacific. There is a wooden pillar to mark the site where Sir Benjamin Franklin last camped; there are monuments large and small from monoliths to cairns, from pillars to tablets.

Only last year a monument was unveiled to mark the landing of Jacques Cartier at Ile aux Coudres on September 6, 1535. At this place was held the first Christian service in the land of Canada.

At the recent meeting of the board 125 other sites were reviewed and several recommendations were made for immediate markings, Among these the outstanding ones are Wolfe's Landing, Cabbage Bay, Cape Breton, where Wolfe's brigade landed on June 8, 1758.

First coal mine in Cape Breton — the site of the first regular coal mining operations in America, begun by the French in 1720.

Fort Ste. Anne, Cape Breton, site of an early settlement and Jesuit mission established by the French in 1629.

Fort St. Peters, N.S., site of a fortified post and trading station built by the French in 1650.

Minto coal mine, N.B. to commemorate the discovery of coal by the French near the present town of Minto, soon after their occupation of Acadia.

Chambly Road, P.Q.: the first road built in New France in 1660.

Kings Mountain, P.Q., site of the first triangulation station of the geodetic survey of Canada, established in 1905 about 9 miles north of the City of Ottawa.

Quebec Seminary, Quebec, site of the first educational house in Canada, established by Laval, in 1663.

The Normandale Furnace, Normandale, Ont.; founded in 1818 and operated until 1853.

Kingston, Ont.; commemorating the treaty signed with the Mississauga Indians, 1788, whereby a large tract of land in eastern Ontario was purchased for the settlement of United Empire Loyalists.

Fort Erie, Ont.; commemorating the enterprise and courage of the officers of the Royal Navy and of the Royal Marines in capturing the United States ships of war, Ohio and Somers, in the Niagara River, Oct. 13, 1814.

Bay of Quinte, Carrying Place; commemorating the treaty concluded with the chief of the Mississauga Indians in 1787, by which a large tract of land in western Ontario was ceded to the Crown.

Quesnel, B.C.; to commemorate the beginning in 1858 of the work on the Collins overland telegraph line, intended to link America and Europe by way of British Columbia, Alaska, Behring Straits and Siberia.

Fort Prince of Wales, Churchill, Man.; the most northerly fur entrepot on the American continent, built by the Hudson's Bay Company in the years from 1733 to 1767 to safeguard the harbor.

Horticulture On the Prairie

Experimental Station At Morden Shows What Can Be Done

A visit to the Morden, Manitoba, Experimental Station at this season of the year and indeed until the autumn frosts arrive, affords a rare treat to those who are interested particularly in fruit and vegetable crops. Apples, plums, cherries, grapes, strawberries and canes and bush fruits are grown in large quantities and in many varieties. Visitors will learn much to their advantage with respect to varieties worth trying at their own homes and will see the effect of a shelter belt in growing garden crops. The flower borders and beds present a blaze of colour and afford many examples of the varieties of the gladiolus and many other flowers and the best methods of their cultivation. The report of the Morden Station, published by the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, if reviewed in advance of a visit would greatly help the visitor to appreciate the things he would see and to systematize his study that his visit would afford.

Has Necessary Qualities

Manitoba Hair Used In Manufacture Has Staple Preference At Sho

Manitoba horse hair will present a weight of almost three to five ounces. It is thus almost as strong as a steel wire of the same diameter. Unlike steel wire, however, human hair is exceedingly elastic. It is also very susceptible to changes of climate and temperature.

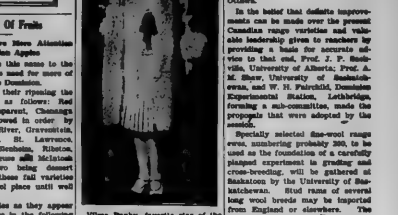
What appears at qualities has led to its employment in the manufacture for roasting fagheons on beeps at sea. Some covers of human hairs are also used in the manufacture of a violin bow. These stretch in fairly weather, so opening a valve which is provided for the purpose is able to work the stem and repeats at regular intervals so long as the fog lasts.

Employees Following In Father's Footsteps

Second and Third Generation Working For Canadian National Railways

The transfer of the motive power shops of the Canadian National Railways from the old to the new building at Point St. Charles, Montreal, has revealed that out of some 1,422 employees on the register of the old building, 167 were of the second generation in the C.N.R. organization, and two of the fourth generation of present or former workers in the service.

Building a city is certainly as important as building a house. Why, it's more, should there not be as much care shown in planning a community as in planning a residence?



Over 2,000 employees of the Canadian Pacific Angus Shops with wives and families took their Angus Sports Day and Basket Holiday picnic at St. Jerome, take Manitou, early in August. The famous fair at Hampstead Heath, London, held every July, was represented in the gathering which is the great event of the year for the Angus. Here is shown the start of "the Married Women's Race with an entry of thirteen contestants. Every conceivable game was represented from the sliding ladder to a typically English old-fashioned "obstacle race" in sacks. Pylons ragged from tennis rackets to witches and including many noticeable articles of clothing apparel. Highland reels were run off.

The King Of Fruits

People Should Give More Attention To Canadian Apples

Enthusiasts give this name to the apple, and there is much for more of these people in the Dominion.

In the order of their ripening the varieties that go to make up Red Astrachan, Transparent, Chenango and Duchess, followed in order by Gravenstein, Alexander, Wolf River, Greenville, Wealthy, Colvert. St. Laurence, Maiden Blush, Bienheim, Ribston, Rhinebeck, Fameuse and McIntosh Red, the latter two being dessert apples. Many of these fall varieties will keep in a cool place until well into the winter.

The winter apples as they appear on the market are in the following order: King, Rhode Island Greenings and Wagener, but these are closely followed by other common winter varieties such as the Baldwin, Beck, Pewaukee, Ontario, Jonathan, Yellow Newtown, Spy, Golden Russet, Ben Davis, Stark, Tallawaker, Roxbury Russet, Spitzenburg and Rome Beauty.

Information on the culture of the apple with hundreds of recipes covering practical uses for the apples will be found in a bulletin entitled "Canadian Grown Apples," which you may have on application to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Bought Lower Grade Wheat

European Importers Took Large Quantity At Advantageous Price

During the 12 months ended July 27, 1929, world shipments of wheat and flour amounted to 917,397,000 bushels as compared with 782,886,000 bushels for the previous corresponding period.

In that year of lower prices exports to Europe became a more prominent figure in World Trade. It absorbed about 720,000,000 bushels, which was approximately 90,000,000 bushels greater than the year before. Consideration of prices of the different grades wheat which, however, was of good milling and baking quality and more readily available for European importers at the attractively low prices.

Somebody Has To Pay

"Farm products cost more than they used to, I suppose," said a city visitor. "Yes," replied the farmer, "when the farmer is supposed to know enough to raise a crop of what he's raisin', an' the entomological name of the insect that eats it, an' the best remedy known to man for the chemical that will kill it, somebody's got to pay."

Crop Abroad Certain On Favorable Fall Lead

This Cannot Be Said Of Spring Or Mid Flooding

This year of extreme drought has illustrated clearly the fact that summerfallow land is almost certain to produce a crop, while spring ploughing, and even fall ploughing, are not. Throughout the prairies, where damage from lack of moisture varies from district to district, it has become plain that those farmers whose acreage was summer-fallowed or fall ploughing, will finish the season relatively in poorer condition. And it is noticeable in what areas there are crops being ploughed or pastured, that it is the spring ploughing, or occasionally fall ploughing that is showing the crops take the estimated acreages this season under summerfallow, new breaking and fall ploughing in the three provinces.

	New	Fall
	Summer-	Break-	Plough-
	fallow.	ing.	ing.
Manitoba.	1,519,000	76,000	2,540,000
Sask.....	5,979,917	626,687	7,961,000
Alberta..	3,000,000	1,000,000	5,000,000

While a certain amount of abandonment of sown fields is taking place this season, the reports are some benefits which will tend to follow. Land ploughed up at this stage of the season will have a chance to get a good a rest as genuine summerfallow, and should be more fertile next year. Pastures are also taking the opportunity of killing weeds by consistent ploughing of land where the sown crop through a crop does not preclude them. On the whole next spring there should be more land in good condition than for several years, especially in those areas badly affected by drought at the present time.

The Rotary Courtesan

A famous scientist was presented as a dinner party. One of the guests began to deride philosophy. He went on rudely to express the opinion that the word "philosophy" was but another way of spelling "fool." "What is your opinion, professor?" he asked, smiling. "Is there much distance between them?" The professor surveyed his boorish vis-a-vis keenly for a moment, then, with a polite bow, responded, "Sometimes only the width of a table."

It is perfectly all right for a woman to want to hold on to her youth, but she should not do it while he is driving.

The Singing Fool

SYNOPSIS

Al Stone, the singing waiter and song writer at Blackie Joe's, a New York night club, is discovered by Marcus, the famous theatrical producer. Molly, the ballad singer at Blackie's, who had tried out Al disdainfully, sizes up to him when she finds he is on the way to fame. They are married and Al and John Ferry, Al's best friend, become a famous revue performer. Meanwhile, Grace, the cigarette girl at Blackie's, who loved Al without his knowledge, is left behind. Molly and John Ferry, Al's best friend become interested in each other, but hide their feelings. One night Molly tells Al she is going to have a baby. He is overjoyed, but she is angry and resentful, believing her career will be spoiled. Al comforts her, telling her she will love the baby when it arrives.

CHAPTER XI

The months passed: the time approached for Molly's baby to be born. During that period she was kinder to Al, and more solicitous of his welfare. And, somehow, she and Al did not see John Ferry so much. Ferry seemed to be called out of the city a great deal of the time on business.

Al went about his work in a daze of happiness. At home was the lovely Molly, quiet-eyed, soft-spoken, patiently waiting. Undoubtedly the mystery of the approaching event had changed her for the better and, as Al predicted, she too wanted the baby.

Then the night came when she was rushed off to the hospital, and Al paced the white corridors, or sat down in the reception room, tried to read the dog-eared magazines he saw lying about, smoked countless cigarettes and waited for the good word. Occasionally a white-robed nurse passed, giving Al a curious, searching glance. Then the moment came when one of these nurses beckoned to him. He sprang forward.

"You may come now, Mr. Stone. The baby's born."

"How is it, what is it?"

"It's reddish! It's a boy."

"And how's Molly?"

"She's splendid, too."

Al tiptoed softly into the white room, behind the nurse. There was Molly, bolstered up slightly by pillows, pale yet more beautiful than ever before. She gave him a wan smile. And lying beside her was a small bundle, which Al could see was a little high, piercing yell. Al stepped over, over so cautiously, until he stood beside the bundle. Then he looked down into the wrinkled red little face.

"Isn't he beautiful! He's a boy!"

While the nurse quickly slipped her hand over Molly's mouth to hide a broad smile, Al leaned over Molly and kissed her gently. He felt one of her arms go weakly about his neck.

"Are you happy?" she whispered.

"Oh, so happy! You're both of you so wonderful!"

"Yes! I am happy too," murmured Molly, and suddenly she began to cry. Al was astonished, but he patted her lovely golden hair, and repeated, "There, there," and dried her eyes for her."

In after years Al looked back on that night as the time when he and Molly were closest together; when she seemed to create a rare and delicate intimacy between them. But as the days passed she grew fretful and impatient to be back at her work. She questioned Al constantly as to whether he was sure Marcus would welcome her back in the show, and as to whether the crowds would remember her as their favorite ballad singer. Much time the added strain of Al accidentally reiterated that she had nothing to fear. Why, wasn't she the pet of the winter at the Rolls-Royce? Just then the Avenue lights went red and the car drew up at the corner to wait for the cross-town traffic.

Now Grace was a man sitting beside Molly — a stranger. Grace stepped, fascinated by the sight of the richly dressed Molly, superb in delicately applied make-up and a clinging black hat. Without looking up, Grace looked down at her own clothes. They were not shabby, but they looked poor beside Molly's gorgeous raiment.

Then a strange thing happened. As the driver of the Rolls-Royce prepared to start his car with the sensitively short hr. As Molly turned to him with a smile the car darted ahead, while Grace stood rooted to the spot in amazement

May Join Expeditions

Great Britain Likely To Ask Canada To Take Part In Polar Exploration

Canada and Australia may be approached in connection with British expeditions to the North and South Poles for exploratory and meteorological purposes within a few years. Leading meteorologists of the Empire met in conference at the Air Ministry to consider weather forecasting in relation to the Empire generally, and in particular to aviation and agriculture within the Empire.

Dr. C. T. Simpson, who is director of the British Meteorological Office and Great Britain had one of the most ably organized meteorological services in the world. Discussing polar exploration, Mr. Simpson said: "We cannot allow exploration of the polar regions to be left entirely to others. It is up to us to take a real share in it. If there is going to be a definite attempt to explore some of the great regions, north and south, in 1932, we must be prepared to take our part. We shall appreciate the help we can afford in the first leg of the journey to the polar regions of the south under Sir George Hubert Wilkins. The object of this expedition is mainly scientific study of the economic and fishing resources of that section of the world.

Knowledge of meteorology was a vital need for the success of imperial aviation, declared Dr. Hamilton, Secretary of Air, pointed out. He believed that in a few years regularity and punctuality would have to be great as ships on the seas were navigated at present, but if this was to be brought about there must first be a great advance in meteorological knowledge.

A Notable Record

In 1862, Arthur Hawkes tells in an article in the Winnipeg Free Press Magazine, had seven lawyers: Peter Clifford Sifton, Arthur Sifton Thomas Mayne Daly, and George H. Caldwell became Cabinet Ministers, and two, W. A. Macdonald, and A. Henderson, judges in British Columbia. That record can hardly be beaten in Canada.

Sir William Morris (Lord Nuffield), leading automobile manufacturer told the press that every foreign car imported to the British Isles means the loss of a year's work for one man.

When Food Sours

About two hours after eating many people suffer from sour stomachs. They call it indigestion. It means that the stomach nerves have been overstimulated. There is excess acid. The way to correct it is with an alkali, which neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

The right way is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia—just a teaspoonful in water. It is pleasant, efficient, and harmless. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its discovery.

It is the quick method. Result a come almost instantly. It is the approved method. You will never use another way when known.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting acid indigestion. Each bottle contains full directions—any druggist.

Thrive On Unusual Fare

Australian Finds Rice Is Good Food For Sheep

James S. Ross, owner of Uri Park sheep station, on the Murrumbidgee River, Australia, in what is known as the Riverina District, has achieved success in feeding his sheep rice. The district had experienced a long spell dry years, but the stock had been able to get next to nothing off the paddocks. Mr. Ross had been feeding 3,000 merino baggels on maize and oats and decided to make a change to try rice. For several weeks, until the drought broke, the sheep were given half a pound of rice five days a week, and on Mondays and Thursdays they were fed on wheat hay. The sheep throve on the unusual fare, and are in excellent condition.

German People Favor Canada

Mr. Martin said that Germany had a definite immigration policy and though the people were not encouraged to go to the African colonies, they much preferred Canada where friends had "made good."

Ancient Tree Destroyed

Five-Hundred-Year-Old Elm In Bag Limit Prey To Fire

An elm tree 500 years old at Holland Bay, Manitoulin district, Ont., has been destroyed by fire. The tree started among dead leaves in a hollow in the base which is believed to have been started by campers. It was of enormous girth and had been one of the largest elms in the district. Hiram Wells, who has always lived in Holland Bay, said he could remember when he was a boy of 12 years that the tree was of the same size as it is now. Many of the settlers in Holland Bay have made use of the tree as a landmark.

Britain's Atlantic Fleet

Finest Naval Unit In Existence and Largest In World

The Atlantic fleet becomes the greatest single fighting force in the world by the decision of the admiralty to recall five battleships of the Queen Elizabeth class from Mediterranean waters to home ports and the Atlantic fleet.

The transference of the battleships, not only an important change in distribution of the navy, but an entirely new departure in British naval policy, means the balance of power is removed from Malta and Gibraltar to the Atlantic.

The Atlantic fleet will consist of 14 capital ships, among them the two most powerful vessels in the world, the Rodney and Nelson, and the largest battle cruiser in the world, H.M.S. Hood.

The Queen Elizabeth vessels are approximately 30,000 tons, armed with eight 15-inch guns. These five will join the two Nelson class vessels, the Hood, the four Iron Duke battleships, and the battle cruisers Renown and Repulse, to make the most formidable fleet assembled on peace time duty in the world

Officially the lack of adequate harbor accommodation is the reason for removal of the battleships. But there is more behind the decision than a mere question of detail. One suggestion is that the Admiralty is influenced by the fact that these big ships will now give the British dockyards a great deal of maintenance work to compensate for the loss by reduction of the replacement program.

The British fleet in the Mediterranean will be cut to five capital ships and four of the newest "Washington" 10,000-ton cruisers.

Owns Property in New York

Valuable Real Estate Is Held By King George

Among the owners of valuable real estate in New York is King George V. of England. It is recorded by the Associated Press. Several Fifth Avenue sites and plots of land in other parts of Manhattan Island are held by the British crown.

Among them is reported to be the site of the second and show storey which has the largest round window in the world — a cylindrical sheet of glass, 30 inches in diameter and 1½ inches thick which is lowered like an elevator to the basement to be trimmed and then lifted again hydraulically into place.

Big Job Ahead

One Man Starts Work On Millions Of Books In British Museum

One lone man is working on the job of cataloguing the 2,000,000 books in the British Museum, in London. For the past fourteen years he has been cataloguing the dusty volumes in this world famous museum and there are only 19,700,000 more to do. If his present rate of progress continues, he will complete the task in just 1,329 more years unless somebody publishes another book in the meantime

SAVE THE CHILDREN

In Summer When Childhood Ailments Are Most Dangerous

Mothers who keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house may feel that the lives of their little ones are reasonably safe during the hot weather. Stomach troubles, colera infantum and diarrhoea carry off thousands of little ones every summer in most cases because the mother does not have a safe medicine at hand to give promptly. Baby's Own Tablets relieve these troubles or if given occasionally to the well child they will prevent their coming on. The Tablets are guaranteed to be absolutely harmless even to the youngest babe. They are especially good in summer because they regulate the bowels and keep the stomach sweet and pure. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at All Saints' pro-cathedral on Saturday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, when Dorothy Mathilde, eldest daughter of Mrs. H. Craddock, became the bride of Albert Hector, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hodgkinson of Evesbury, Alberta.

The bride was given in marriage by Mr. J. Stephenson, looked charming in a gown of rose beige georgette and wore a blue felt hat and blue velvet shoes to match. She carried a bouquet of ophelia roses.

Miss Isobel Huffman, bridesmaid, wore peach taffeta with a picture hat to match and carried a bouquet of pink and white sweet peas. Mr. Tom Armitage attended the bridegroom. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. L. Bee of Viking, Alberta.

Following the ceremony a dainty buffet lunch was served at the home of Mrs. J. Stephenson.

The bridegroom's gift to the best man was a cigarette case and to the bridesmaid a rope of pearls.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Hodgkinson left on a honeymoon trip by motor to Banff and Waterton lakes. On their return they will reside in Edmonton.

Vermilion To Be On Air Route

OTTAWA, Sept. 3.—Inauguration of 1,250 miles of air mail service on the prairies is expected about October 1, linking Winnipeg with Camnore, Alta, and thereby saving a day's time between the two points.

H. Herring, chief superintendent of the dominion air mail service, is now in the west making arrangements with the Western Canada Airways company of Winnipeg, while Hon. P. J. Veniot, postmaster medical, plans to go to Winnipeg to officiate at the formal opening of the service.

There are two routes planned for daily service, it was learned at the postmaster general's department, the one from Winnipeg via Regina, Moose Jaw, Calgary and Camnore and the other from Regina, via Saskatoon and North Battleford to Edmonton.

Next year, it is indicated, the air mail service will likely be established across the rockies to the Pacific coast, probably via the Empress of Australia en route to Australia. His Lordship is operating a settlement scheme in the Argentine whereby farmers rent lands from a company, paying 15 per cent. on the company's marketing of their crops. He is contemplating a similar company in Australia in connection with sheep raising. He will also examine possibilities in the Prairie for a similar settlement organization.

To A Horse

O horse, you are a wonderful thing,
No horse to honk, no bells to ring, no license buying every year, with plates to screw on front and rear.

No spark to miss, no gears to strip;
you start yourself—no clutch to slip;
no gas bills mounting every day to steal the joy of life away. Your inner tubes are all O.K. and thank the Lord
they stay that way.

Your spark plugs never miss or fuss; your motor never makes us rue.
Your frame is good for many a mile, your body never changes style; your wants are few and easily met—you've something on the auto yet!

The Hobo's Philosophy

Yes, I'm a tramp, my brother,
A hobo — So what's the use
Of wasting your time to talk to me—
I've been on your shoes
I've never worked and I never will.
And I'll gather what is my due—
As I pass along with a smile and a song
And I'll never think of you.

Hanna Hospital Enlarges To 54 Beds

(By Edna Kells)

Ten years after the launching of the municipal hospital campaign in Hanna, Alberta, an extension to the original hospital built in 1921, will be formally opened on September 12 by the Hon. George Hoadley, Minister of Public Health.

The original hospital provided accommodation for 22 patients; the new wing increases the accommodation to 54 beds, and also provides more suitable quarters for the nursing staff.

In addition to affording facilities for the care of the sick during these years, the Hanna hospital has been a financial success. Since 1923, over $50,000 has been expended from general revenue for new equipment, such as X-ray machines, operating room and fire protection equipment. A sub-hospital at Craigmyle has been furnished at an outlay of approximately $1,000, and a surplus of $16,000 has accumulated to the credit of the hospital.

Home opposition, largely from the rural districts, met the hospital's scheme in the beginning, but this has disappeared like snow before a chinook, and when the vote according for the extension was taken last year, it carried by a majority of 403, only 43 ratepayers opposing it. The increased support came largely from the rural districts.

Hanna hospital is a three-storey brick building with full basement. All the wards are private or semi-private, and the equipment is up-to-date in every sense of the word.

The primary idea behind the Municipal Hospitals act was to provide for maternity cases, and the women of the Hanna district have not failed to avail themselves of this privilege. Few now remain in their homes for confinement. More than 700 babies have been born in the hospital, and in one eventful twenty-four hours six lusty young Canadians first saw the light under the hospital roof.

During the year 1928, 1,385 patients were cared for, an increase of 19.2 p.c. over 1927. Hospital days numbered 12,637. One hundred and fifty-five major and 227 minor operations were performed. Medical cases numbered 1,253, and maternity 110 babies were born; 49 clinical cases were treated and 548 X-ray plates taken. Deaths numbered only 12, including 8 still born and premature babies and 2 blue babies.

The people of Hanna are very proud of their hospital, which has proved a success beyond their dreams. Not only does it provide for the care of the sick, but it is a factor in developing a content among the people who know they can get proper attention when ill near home and their "auld folk."

To provide additional accommodation for visitors to Canada new hotels just completed or in course of erection in different cities of Canada represent a total cost of over $32,000,000

Nasty Man Didn't Like Vermilion

Wouldn't Spend A Cent Here

While the following may be accredited to the ladies it is not confined by some, it is true, absolutely it you don't believe us just ask Jam Taylor

Don noticed a tourist car pull up at the Motors' gas pump and inquiring a sale of several gallons of ice per, went on to give immediate service. Instead of buying the worthy gentleman told Don that driving into town from a mile east had lived him more than the whole trip from Winnipeg, and that consequently —most of the road being within the town limits—he wasn't going to spend a cent here, although he needed gasoline and was hungry to boot. "Just tell your Mayor and local men here that, will you," finished up the Mossleigher, and pulled out towards Mannville in a cloud of dust

Though the road from a mile east is not so good, if the worthy headliner in the above doesn't run into Lloydminster before he returns to his home in Manitoba, he will be extremely fortunate

Developing Sentiment For World Peace

Despatches appearing in the daily papers telling of the rupture of relations between Soviet Russia and China, with raids along the border between the two countries and the imminence of open warfare; despatches reporting the strained relations that have developed between the Jews and Arabs in Palestine ending in riots and necessitating vigorous military action by the British Government as the mandatory power in Palestine, despatches outlining the difficulties confronting the reparations conference at the Hague in reaching some suitable and satisfactory solution of the financial problems arising out of the Great War despatches recording the communistic activities of Soviet agents in all parts of the world,—all reveal how far distant is that day when the nations of the world can rest assured of universal, permanent world-wide peace

In his recent masterly address before the Canadian Club, at Regina, Hon. Winston Churchill declared with emphasis and without any qualification that the greatest need of Great Britain and the Empire today was a long period of world peace. Great Britain, he said, was making wonderful progress. It was sure to progress than ever before, more people were employed the standard of living was higher, but population was larger taxation was enormously heavy and a long struggle ahead to wipe out the huge burden of war debt But he maintained, all that was necessary was a long period of peace to enable the Old Land and the whole Empire to re-establish themselves develop their great resources, and thus enter up on the greatest era in their history

Mr Churchill therefore, urged the Canadian people to do everything to develop a strong sentiment for peace Such a sentiment existed and was growing stronger every day Statesmen everywhere were striving for it. But his message was to each and every individual to do their part, to think peace talk peace act peacefully. Only so would the nations themselves become peaceful in the sight and on God, only so could statesmen effect those compromises and develop those policies essential to world peace.

Finally Mr Churchill confidently predicted that, if such a state of mind was cultivated by the masses of the people, the longed for peace would be maintained. Then all the world's sorrowings and troubles and tribulations among the less civilized peoples such as were in evidence in Russia and China but people should not be misled by these into thinking that general world peace was impossible of realization

Canada, with its cosmopolitan population, containing, as it does representatives of almost every nation under the sun, has a particular duty to perform. It is clearly the duty of the people of this Dominion, both in the interests of Canada itself, and of the world at large, to cultivate the kindliest of feelings toward each other, to refrain from looking down upon their fellow-citizens of other racial extraction as inferior to themselves to be considerate of their customs and habits

It is likewise in the interests of Canada, and of world peace, to study international problems, and to resist to the utmost those tendencies to erect walls of division between this nation and that, whether those walls be military naval social or in relation to matters of trade and commerce. It should be the aim of the Canadian people to be friendly with all other people, and, instead of emulating any of them in policies of isolation, exert their influence to the end that cordial goodwill be developed instead of suspicion and antagonism

Science Appears To Be Supplanting Nature

German Has Evolved Coal Out Of Chemical Substance

Eight years ago a party of British research workers in British Guiana noticed a bird busily building its nest with a substance that looked very much like cotton. On closer inspection, however, it proved to be a plant previously thought useless which had been shredded by the bird.

Today, in Essex and Sussex, England, on soil that has been found useful for ordinary cultivation, hundreds of acres of the new "cotton" plants are flourishing. Nearly four million pounds of the artificial cotton are being produced at a cost of eight cents a pound less than the real thing

Every day sees a new discovery in the scientific world. Two German chemists have just succeeded in obtaining sugar from sawdust; a French scientist is transforming lumps of coal into real diamonds.

It seems that the day is fast approaching when we shall no longer be dependent on nature; the scientist will supply all our needs.

Take the case of the German who recently took eleven pounds of a chemical substance, and, after treating it for twenty-four hours, produced in its stead eleven pounds of coal! The modern scientist is developing in hours that for which nature would require as many centuries!

Having produced coal from vegetable the scientists are now getting their money's worth out of the coal. Petrol, rug, rubber, oil, fertilizer, ammonia and alcohol are only a few of the substances to be derived from a lump of coal.

But even now the scientists are not satisfied. They are now turning their attention to peanut shells to produce artificial silk.

It is reported that a promising nickel-copper discovery has been made in the vicinity of Ingolf on the Ontario-Manitoba border. Assays show 20 per cent. copper, 1 per cent. nickel and about three dollars worth of gold per ton. Further assay work in proceedings has been under time. It is stated at Ingalf that the find is about 600 feet wide and one and a half miles long, with an outcrop about six miles east. There is a large body of the same mineral on the Manitoba side but it is closed for staking yet.

WEAK, WATERY BLOOD

Is the Cause Of Much Distress and General Weakness

Anaemia — which really means weak, watery blood is responsible for the pale faces, thin cheeks, dull eyes and drooping figures one sees so frequently. It is the direct cause of headaches, weak backs, aching limbs and uncertain health. Every weak, anaemic person should win the fight to be well by creating fresh, watery bodies with the new, rich, red blood so promptly supplied by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. This new blood reaches every organ and nerve in the body and quickly establishes all those troubles that have their origin in poor blood. Among those who have found new health through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is Mrs. Elisabeth Gosselin, Pembroke, Ont., who says: "When I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I was so weak and run down that I could scarcely go about the house, and found housework altogether too much. But with no apparent help from the doctor I read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and decided to try them. Before I had finished helping me, and under their continued use I rapidly regained health. The pills also completely relieved my son of St. Vitus' Dance and I have every reason to praise them."

You can get the pills from your druggist or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

An Unusual Court Decision

Exiles Dust Beneath Floor Is Property Of Hungarian Tenant

The Supreme Court of Hungary decided recently that, although the floor of an apartment belongs to the landlord, the dust collected beneath it is the property of the tenant. The decision is worth $2,500 to Frau Simon Bichsmann, for the dust over which the case arose is gold dust which accumulated there during the fifteen years they her husband carried on the trade of goldsmith. On his death the widow decided on a floor raising enterprise which her landlord opposed, claiming the dust and floor both as his. Nine pounds of gold dust already have been recovered.

Steady Decline In Immigrants To States

But Americans Are Coming To Canada In Increasing Numbers

The number of Canadians who emigrate to the United States continues to decrease. This is shown by figures issued by the Bureau of Immigration, at Washington, for the period between January to June 30, 1928.

During the period 29,447 immigrants entered from Canada, while during the fiscal year ending on the same date, the influx of Canadians totals 64,444. The year 1926, Canadian figures were 73,156.

An analysis of the department indicates a steady decline in the number of native-born Canadians entering the United States. Figures are based on the non-quota visas which native Canadians must obtain for admission. They are for the years 1925 to 1928 inclusive: 103,169; 83,462; 70,136; and 54,704.

The department points out that a decrease of nine per cent. in the total immigration to the United States for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1928, was largely accounted for by the decline in the number of immigrants from Canada, the Irish Free State and Mexico. Canadian immigration dropped 12 per cent.

On the other side of the ledger the department at Washington indicate a new high for United States immigration to Canada of 50,706 for 1928. This was a jump of 20 per cent. over the 1926 estimate of 21,363. United States citizens have entered Canada in increasing numbers from 1925, when only 15,914 crossed the border. The previous high year was 1922, when 29,412 emigrated to the Dominion.

What's in a Name

Some Arouse Unpleasant Memories Of Others Very Well Known

Given the Chinese, unemotional as they seem, find that old names now and then arouse unpleasant memories. A thousand years ago Tartar invaders named a city Manking. The Chinese recaptured it in the twelfth century and named it Yen-Shan-Fu. Along came the Tartars again a few years later and they reinstituted it Chung-tu. Then came Kublai Khan, who made it Yenking. After being ruled by Ming and Cantching it was named Peking 500 years ago, and clung to this designation until recently, but now Nanking has given it a new twist and it is now Peiping, which means "northern peace."

Would Be Improvement

Automobiles are manufactured and sold which travel at more than 100 miles per hour on a level highway. That ought to be fast enough. The manufacturers might next turn their attention to front end bumpers that will absorb the shock when two cars meet head on and to safety devices for the protection of passengers when the car leaves the highway. Now that speed has been achieved we might pay some attention to safety.

Inventor Of Gramophone Dead

Emile Berliner Also Evolved Telephone Transmitter and Established Many Industries

Emile Berliner, inventor of the gramophone, the first disc record talking machine, and the telephone transmitter, died recently at his home in Washington, D.C. Mr. Berliner was 78 years of age.

Following his arrival from Germany in 1870, he engaged in various vocations. He sold glue, painted backgrounds on enlarged photographs and travelled as a salesman for a Milwaukee wholesale house.

In 1877 he moved to Washington and began experimenting. While a clerk in a store he evolved the idea of the loose contact transmitter or microphone, which placed the telephone on an advanced commercial basis, some three years after Bell and Watson had invented the telephone in Boston. Later the microphone was to become also the soul of radio broadcasting.

In 1887 he achieved the second scientific discovery that placed his name in the forefront of inventors by giving the world the gramophone. This talking machine utilized the disc record, also his invention, and a horizontal wave groove, rather than the cylinder up and down groove. He invented and perfected, as well, the present method of duplicating disc record.

For his gramophone invention he was awarded the John Scott medal and the Elliott Cresson gold medal by Franklin Institute, Philadelphia.

Mr. Berliner exhibited his adaptability in yet another sphere by interesting himself, in 1900, in the cause of the high death rate among babies, which was traced to the dangers of raw milk. He was instrumental in establishing milk stations, which were supplied with modified form by all the large cities of the country.

In his late years Berliner was associated with his son Henry in an advisory capacity for the development of the helicopter—an aircraft capable of rising straight up from the ground.

SHIP YOUR GRAIN — TO — McBean Bros.

Crop conditions the world over appear to be unsatisfactory this year, so much so, that we consider higher prices warranted than those prevailing. It is our opinion that the shortage in the present world conditions, that our wheat should be worth today $2.00 per bushel with considerably higher prices later on.

Assuming that importing Countries will take only their usual 1928 exportable surplus as has been the case for the past 3 years, they took 977,000,000 bushels, and European crops this year are short at least, we have every indication of a shortage to supply before another crop is harvested, and it is reason we look for wheat to sell at $2.00 per bushel, barley at $1.25, and oats at 75c.

By shipping your grain to us you can obtain a substantial advance, and can then hold for a favorable market.

It is astonishing to see what a number of activities are to be credited to the League of Nations. It also discussed the prevention of counterfeit coining, and suggested measure for discouraging criminals from evading and circulating false money. SITUATION IN THE HOLY LAND REMAINS ACUTE

Jerusalem. — The danger of Moslem uprising in Syria and Transjordania as a result of the continued Jewish-Moslem rioting in Palestine, remained acute, although the arrival of additional British troops and warships somewhat relieved the tension in the larger Palestine centres.

Clashes between Arab demonstrators and police in Damascus, many strong demonstrations in Syria and reports of warlike movements in Transjordania added to the disorders, which continued intermittently in various regions of Palestine.

A third French warship has been ordered to Syria, and the French border guard heavily reinforced.

Fighting at Haifa, where Arabs attacked British naval forces was the most serious reported in Palestine. The Arabs were repulsed by the British fire and troops continued their efforts to drive out looters. The non-Jewish quarters at Haifa have ilah official, was stoned by a mob at Haifa, and killed.

Rioting was reported also in Jerusalem, Jaffa, Nablus and Hebron.

The battleship Barham's forces were patrolling Haifa, but 10 Jews were killed there, and 40 Europeans were armed by the naval officers. About 700 Jews were evacuated from Haifa and concentrated at Hadar Hacarmel, at the foot of Mount Carmel. Approximately 500 persons were packed in one private house throughout the night.

Authorities apparently were making every effort to avoid the danger of Moslem outbreaks in the area outside the Palestine borders as the British troops were under strict orders in outlying sections of Palestine and to evacuate all residents in danger of attacks.

Close Co-Operation Between Federal and Provincial Authorities In Ontario

Ottawa.—Closer co-operation between federal and provincial authorities for the prevention of the short-circuiting of liquor into Ontario, was discussed at a conference between Sir Henry Drayton, chairman of the Ontario Liquor Commission, and Hon. James A. Robb, minister of finance and acting minister of national revenue, here.

At the conclusion of the conference, Sir Henry expressed satisfaction with the conclusions reached. Mr. Robb, in his capacity of minister of finance, will present the matter in a very good hearing, said the Ontario liquor board chairman.

In addition to Mr. Robb and Sir Henry R. W. Breadner, commissioner of customs, and G. W. Taylor, commissioner of excise, attended the conference.

A World's Record

Saskatchewan University Pullet Establishes New Mark

Saskatoon, Sask. — "Lady Victoria," a White Leghorn pullet of the Plymouth Rock Pullet No. 440, property of University of Saskatchewan," has laid 354 eggs in 365 days, according to official records, surpassing that held by White Leghorn No. 351, belonging to the University of British Columbia, which held the record with 351 eggs in 53 weeks, laying for hours the day after the close of the year.

"Lady Victoria" may still beat her own record as her year does not end for some days. The 351 egg greeted Professor R. K. Baker on his return from a trip as head of the poultry department to the convention of poultry science held at Alabama Polytechnic, Auburn, Alabama.

Cold Weather Halts Hostilities

Manchuli, Manchuria.—Both Chinese and Russian troops were driven from their trenches by freezing weather. The troops sought shelter from Siberia's cold in the homes of farmers and in settlements along the border region. It was believed the low temperature would decrease the number and intensity of border clashes.

Rumors Of Victory Election In November

But Premier Ferguson and Cabinet Members Turn Aside All Queries

Toronto.—The political pot in Ontario has begun to simmer. Rumors of an election this fall are heard on every hand—but Premier Howard Ferguson and members of his Cabinet have, so far, deftly turned aside all queries with non-committal answers.

In present government was elected December 1, 1926, and in the normal course of events would have more than a year's tenure of office ahead of it. The government has not seen fit to state that an election will not be held before the expiration of the regular term—but neither will they say an election will be held.

Hon. W. E. N. Sinclair, Liberal leader, who has been touring various sections of the province, has been predicting an election this fall and has been urging preparedness on the part of local Liberal organizations.

One source has it that an election would be held some time during the first two weeks in November.

Premier Ferguson had no comment to make on this.

Route Not Selected

Air Mail Route To Coast Awaits Report From Technical Flying

Edmonton.—No selection of a definite air mail route to the Pacific Coast has yet been made, declared O. Herring, of Ottawa, superintendent of air mail service for the Post Office Department, when seen on his arrival from Calgary.

Requests will be obtained from technical flying men dealing with service safety and the route offering the greatest rapidity of operation before anything definite will be settled in connection with the through line, said Mr. Herring.

There has been an impression that the through line was to run by way of Calgary, or that the southern route would be given the initial trying-on account of Canmore being selected as the terminus for the service that will open up by next month. Mr. Herring points out that Canmore was selected as it gave there operating the air mail service by two hours leeway in making connection with the train for the coast. It was not to be taken as indicating the Department's choice of the final route to the coast, as that has not been considered as yet.

May Not Have Rights

Prince May Not Benefit From Reported Oil Discovery On Ranch

Ottawa.—If the reported discovery of oil on the Prince of Wales' Alberta ranch "E.P." is substantiated he may or may not benefit from the find" depending upon the action he has taken. In a recent interview his royal highness referred to the discovery of oil in the neighborhood, but suggested he could not profit since the petroleum and natural gas rights and the mineral rights of the property were vested in the crown.

The mines branch of the Department of the Interior says, however, if such is the case the Prince may, by application to the Dominion lands agent in the district, secure a lease on the petroleum and natural rights on his land.

The name of the "E.P." ranch is an odd one, and it is also possible that when he purchased the title he may also have acquired the mineral and petroleum rights. In that event he may benefit from the discovery of oil simply by continuing to pay the yearly rental charge.

French correspondents described the record as "complete capitulation to Snowden."

Moslem Revolt Serious

British Marines Open Fire In Attempt To Quell Arab Attack

Cairo.—Arabs attacked the suburb of Tulkarem and Jenin, northwest of Jerusalem, and advanced behind intermittent fire according to advices received here from Jerusalem. Two Jews were wounded in rioting at Beisan and nearby points. Police repulsed them. Fighting continued in the western and southern parts of Jerusalem the advices said.

British marines opened fire at Haifa, in an attempt to quell an Arab attack on the Jewish quarter of the city in which many were killed and wounded, among both Jews and Arabs, according to reports received here by the Jewish Telegraphic Agency. The marines fired on both the Jews and Arabs, it is stated.

Another report received in Cairo described Jerusalem as being in grave danger, with an army of 2,000 armed police including Druz tribesmen, marching on the city.

VICTORY IS WON BY SNOWDEN AT HAGUE MEETING

The Hague.—The deadlock which has delayed result of the international reparations conference for three days ended with the victory for Rt. Hon. Philip Snowden, British chancellor of the exchequer.

After an all-night session, in which delegates of France, Belgium, Italy, Japan and Germany met with the British delegation, Snowden and his colleagues withdrew and evolved a project which was accepted by the other creditor powers a few hours later.

According to the British Communique announcing the accord, Snowden got 83½ per cent. of the 48,000,000 marks (about $12,000,000) which he demanded as an increase in Britain's share of the reparations payments. This increase amounts to 40,000,000 marks.

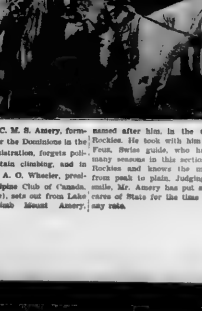
The chancellor of the exchequer also got 50 per cent. of his demand for 12,000,000 marks more in unconditional annual payments. This share amounts to 90,000,000 marks (about $24,000,000) which is not an increase in payment but represents guaranteed payment on specified debt.

In addition, the British won an important concession for their coal industry when Dutch agreed to buy 1,000,000 tons of coal annually for three years from British mines. This concession and the third British demand- a means of relief from forcing a period of German payments is also under consideration.

The accord marked the end of the hardest fight at any European conference since the world war. It left open, apparently, only the consent of Germany to re-arrangement of some payments and the German spokesman said that would be forthcoming.

French correspondents described the accord as "complete capitulation to Snowden."

To Conquer Namesake Peak



Rt. Hon. L. C. M. S. Amery, former secretary for the Dominions in the Baldwin administration, forgets politics for mountain climbing, and in company with A. O. Wheeler, president of the Alpine Club of Canada, (left in picture), sets out from Lake Louise to climb Mount Amery, named after him, in the Canadian Rockies. He took with him Edward Feux, Swiss guide, who has spent many seasons in this section of the Rockies and knows the mountains from peak to plain. Judging by his smile, Mr. Amery has put away the cares of State for the time being at any rate.

Urge Shorter Day For Canadian Miners

Six Hours Asked In Resolution To Labor Congress

St. John, N.B.—Six hour days for miners featured a resolution by Drumheller, Alberta, local union number 26, which was presented at the opening session of the Trade and Labor Congress of Canada here. The resolution stated that inasmuch as the miners were employed only five months in the year, that an extensive search for wider markets for Alberta coal had failed recently and that this had been used as a basis for reduction in miners wages by Drumheller; they therefore urged a six-hour day and a five-day week for all miners in Canada.

With the town of Edgerton badly hit by fire early last Thursday morning before the blaze was brought under control and with other towns being burned in Alberta during the past month, 1929 will rank as one of the most disastrous years, as far as fire losses in small towns are concerned in the history of the province.

Coupled with the Edgerton blaze is another report that the town of Lomond, near Lethbridge, was badly damaged by flames last Wednesday night with damages which will run into thousands.

The list of disastrous fires started with the big blaze at Wainwright on July 21 in which the loss was placed at about $600,000. Tofield suffered next on August 10 with damage at $75,000. Lloydminster's million-dollar fire was on August 19

All-Steel Fire Escape On East End School

Work Recently Completed

The work of installing the new fire escape on the east end school is now completed, resulting in that building being equipped with the latest type of fire escape. This was added to the east side of the school administration being raised from every floor, the windows being cut down for that purpose. It was found by experts that the building was too high for the circular tube fire escape that was at first intended to be purchased.

Muskrat Makes Home In Ford Showroom

A half grown muskrat, evidently attracted by the wide open spaces" seen in the Ford showroom window, sauntered into those premises last Monday evening. He is just a young fellow probably, and on a visit to Harry's genial commissaire, for on Wednesday he was still there, very much at home and living chiefly on apples. He is friendly enough personing you do not attempt to touch him, but this he resents in with a good healthy snap at his teeth

Truck Burns On Highway

Frank C Bedford suffered the loss of his Ruxby truck by fire last Wednesday, just three miles east of town on the highway while the body of the truck is a complete loss the engine, apart from the burnt wires and rubber connections appears to be unharmed in any great extent The truck burst into flames while in motion, evidently from a short circuit underneath the floor boards. A wind blew the flames away from the engine which saved it materially from sustaining greater damage.

When the Shelf Bottles Typified the Drug Store

If YOUR memory goes back twenty years you must recall the old fashioned glass labeled shelf bottles that once lined the wall of every drug store In ancient times they were marked with symbols or heraldic devices in place of names, and made of porcelain or glass in graceful and impressive shapes.

With the growing need for more display room the drug gist has been forced to keep much of his drug and chemical stock in his prescription Laboratory in the back of his store

While the old symbols have disappeared, the demands upon his professional skill have increased with the progress in medicine and chemical science The public naturally has progressed with the times, so that a pharmacy by his present work alone he would be well content but changing times and conditions have also necessary for him to add to his merchandise as well. You and your neighbors will remember the fact in a practical way this will insure your always having a druggist in your neighborhood with a prescription department equipped to serve you in time of need

Making Amazing Progress

Use Of English Has Outstripped All Other Languages

The amazing growth of the English language, surpassing that of any other during the past 100 years, was illustrated by statistics compiled by a newspaper published at Zurich, Switzerland.

English was spoken by less than 20,000,000 persons in 1820, the statistics showed, while at present no less than 160,000,000 people speak it natively, while an additional 60,000,000 understand it but do not consider it their native tongue.

The newspapers said that the rate of increase far outstripped all other languages and that there is no part of the world where the language is not spoken today

Aviators Had Hard Time

Had Almost Lost Hope When Rescued In Far North

After living eight days on berries between's God's Lake and Norway House, where they made a forced landing, R. Marshall and S. Harrison, Canadian Air Force aviators, are recovering at Norway House. They were rescued by an air force plane recently when they had almost given up hope.

Their clothing was in tatters and they were painfully weak when found. They were on the point, when the motor stalled and landed on the lake, and struggled unsuccessfully the first day in an effort to make repairs. They remained near the machine and on the eighth day their frantic signals attracted another plane to their rescue.

Miss Carman Laid To Rest In Family Plot At Fredericton, New Brunswick

The ashes of Miss Carman, who was Canada's greatest poet, now rest in a concrete tomb at the family burial plot at Forest Hill Cemetery, Fredericton, overlooking the city where he was born.

The ashes were brought from New Canaan, Connecticut, where he died, to Fredericton, and committed to their last resting place following a memorial service arranged by the Government of New Brunswick, and attended by distinguished men and women from many parts of Canada and the United States. One of Carman's best known poems was sung during the service at Christ Church Cathedral

A Great Mathematician

Professors Amazed By Rapid Mental Calculation Of Young Roman Woman

The world's most marvellous woman mathematician has been discovered—and in the person of Nina Gagglivi, 22 years old, who does in her mind, in from two to 20 seconds, mathematical problems which require hours of experts to do, in the ordinary way, with pencil and paper.

This wonder woman has been discovered after a wide survey, and scientists are amazed at her lightning-like mental calculations. Already a commission consisting of Professor Konrvuhoff and Professor Chiesa, mathematicians, has been named by the engineer, and Dr. Kinoloff, a physician, Miss Gagoliva with apparently little effort, extracted the root to the ninth degree of numbers with as many as 20 digits. Squaring and cubing numbers of 9 or 10 digits seemed no harder to her than the multiplication table to ordinary humans.

Her memory is remarkable and she can repeat, having heard them only once, long lists of words in languages she does not know. The commission pronounce this woman of Russian birth, greater than Arago or other prodigies on record.

May Make Icebergs Visible At Night

Expert Making Series Of Experiments To Ensure Safer Navigation

Dr. Howard T. Barnes, internationally known ice-engineering expert, was at McGill University for a few days while his experimental ship, "The Ulvira," was undergoing repairs and refitting before starting out for a series of experiments in the Bay of Fundy.

Dr. Barnes stated that he had just completed three weeks of experimental work in the detection of icebergs at night in the vicinity of Newfoundland and Labrador, doing considerable preliminary work for further experimental study in the laboratories at McGill.

To develop methods of making the icebergs visible at night is the objective of Dr. Barnes' present investigations. If he is successful he will then be able to proceed at full speed either in darkness or fog in the vicinity of icebergs, without danger of collision. This he hopes will make the St. Lawrence route to Europe even safer than at present.

Petition For New Judicial District

Very Necessary To The Due Administration Of Justice Say Members

Members of The Bar Association

Members of The Bar Association will petition the provincial government to make a new judicial district there comprising all the territory south of Township 44, in Manitoba, according to a decision made at a meeting of the barristers.

It was pointed out that there was of great importance to The Pas to have a judicial district. The lawyers declare that a resident judge is appointed, since the amount of work is not yet sufficient to make such a position permanent, but it is felt that, in the interests of the north, a judicial district here is necessary.

TEACHING THE LAW OF GOD

Golden Text: "The opening of Thy words giveth light."—Psalm 119:130.

Lesson: Nehemiah 8:1-12.

Supplemental Reading: Psalms 119: 97-104.

Ezra Reads and Explains the Law

The Reading Of the Law By Ezra, verse 1-6. The first day of the seventh month is the day which from the time of Alexander the Great, has been celebrated by the Jews as their New Year's Day. On this day occurred the festival known as the Feast of Trumpets, which was observed with special solemnity (see Lev. 23:24, 25; Num. 29:1-6. In the year 446 B.C., on this day, (Neh. 7:73), the people of Jerusalem assembled in the broad place before the water gate, and Ezra, the priest and scribe, read to them the Book of the Law of Moses, "to Ezra the title of 'scribe' came to mean 'the man of the book.' It is evident that the scribes were the nearest originals or the clergy of later times. Ezra's chief characteristic to what the phrase, the Book of the Law of God, implies is a disputed question among scholars. The entire Pentateuch, some believe; the Priestly portions alone, others; the Pentateuch, others mistakes.

Ezra stood upon a wooden platform above the people and was aided by thirteen Levites. Levites in the sense, so that the people understood the reading. Evidently Ezra read from the original Hebrew text, and briefly expounded it, and then the Levites gave the explanations clear to the people. Men, women and children, old enough to understand, listened attentively to the reading from early morning until midday. No account of the best they had their curiosity and interest upon them. To the reading the people responded with Amen, Amen (So be it), with lifting up of hands, and reverently with the palms upward in supplication for the divine blessing, and then they bowed their heads and worshipped Jehovah with their faces to the ground.

The Effect Of the Reading Of the Law, verse 9. "By Ezra's inspiration and under the influence of God was now for the first time put before the Jews in such a way as to constitute for them the most important thing in the world that their lives should be conducted daily in accordance with its precepts."—A. S. Peake.

Nehemiah the governor, Ezra the priest, and the Levites said to the people: "This day is holy unto Jehovah your God; mourn not, nor weep." The day was holy because it was the day of the new moon and of the Feast of Trumpets, and also because of the reading of the Law.

The Joyful Observance, verses 10-12. "Go your way, eat the fat and drink the sweet," counselled Nehemiah uting a proverbial expression meaning "Do not fast or mourn." "And send portions unto him for whom nothing is prepared."

New Means Of Solving Crime

Creator Of Sherlock Holmes Speaks Of Impressions Of Mediums

In the well equipped police station of the future a trained psychologist would be part of the detective department, according to the creator of Sherlock Holmes.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle discussed the possibilities of a clairvoyant or medium assisting the police in the solution of the Rothstein mystery and other puzzling cases confronting detective throughout the world. He envisioned a day when criminals would have to destroy everything used by carrying out crime, unless a psychometrist would "sense" clues and hand them to detectives.

"Although I do not believe you could ever be convicted on the knowledge or evidence of a clairvoyant, I do believe the knowledge would show the police fait," Sir Arthur said.

"The proper term is psychometrist, the work having nothing to do with spiritism. It is purely a matter of the medium's own latent powers."

Sir Arthur gave as an instance the finding of a blood-stained knife by a psychometrist, called to the scene, would inform the detective thus:

"I have a strong impression of a man with a long black moustache, wearing a brown suit."

According to Sir Arthur this would give the detective something to work on, as no matter how skilful the detective was, he could not have received an impression of the man's appearance from seeing the knife.

Investigating New Marketing System

May Market Wheat In Europe On Basis Of Protein Content

Dr. Robert Newton, professor of field crops at the University of Alberta, has been asked by the National Research Council of Canada to make an investigation of the possible experiments which would be given in Europe to a system of marketing wheat on a basis of protein content. The report will be prepared for the next session of parliament.

Suggestion that such an investigation be undertaken was made by the agricultural committee of the House of Commons last session. The announcement that the work would be done by Dr. Newton, was made by Dr. H. M. Tory, at a session of a committee of the research council here.

The report of grading of wheat by protein content, published by the research council for the committee, was approved.

Enthusiastic Over Northern Air Trail

Use In Aerial Mapping Sure Feature This Summer

North America's aerial commerce between Europe and Asia will centre about northern routes through Canada, Parker Cramer, noted explorer-flier, declared on his arrival at Wiu Pas with two other members of the crew of the Untin Bowler, the amphibian plane which left Montreal at Fort Burwell en route to Greenland.

Cramer, who was one of he pilots of the "Greater Rockford" on its flight from Rockford, Ill., to Greenland last fall, visions the day when air lines will run through the little known regions of northern Canada in a mammoth link with other empires.

The day is not far distant when the northern air trails will be regarded as the speediest, safest and most feasible links with Europe and Asia, he declared. The Untin Bowler party brought to The Pas a story of thrills in the far north. They winged away from Chicago, July 3, in a Sikorsky machine, and landed at Port Burwell, July 9, after an exciting hitch with fog. On July 15, their plane was swept out to sea from its anchorage at the port, and on July 20, they climbed aboard the Canadian Government hydrographic steamer "AcadIa," bound for Churchill.

The failure of their trip does not indicate that the northern air trail to Europe is unusable, Cramer states. Rather did it prove to him that with proper bases established the route is a commercial one in the best sense of the word, he stated.

"The Untin Bowler was lost because there were no facilities at Port Burwell for the proper anchorage of our plane," he asserted. "The tide was high and the ice was dangerous. We were forced to anchor our Sikorsky to the ice itself. The result was that when an unusually strong wind from the land hit the ship was carried out to sea with the shore ice. With a railway or other proper transportation facilities at Burwell, our amphibian would not have been lost, and we should have undoubtedly completed the flight to Greenland."

Safety In Flying

Depends On Pilot and Plane Used Says Author

"How Safe Is It To Fly?" is the title of an article written by Herbert Brucher, in the July issue of the "Review of Reviews."

The author answers the query with the following statement. "Flying depends entirely on how it is what you fly. With a safe craft and a pilot doing nary the things of trouble, flying is no greater than when you take a Sunday automobile drive."

Enumerating statistics to prove the small number of accidents in connection with aviation flying, the writer refers to the Canadian Light Airplane Contest, which, "At the end of last year there were fifteen of these clubs with a combined membership of 2,600, piloting a total of 35,537 flights, lasting 8,124 hours, on 813,000 miles of airplane travel. Much of this was amateur flying, but more dangerous than the flying of qualified pilots, yet the total number of killed was three."

Protecting Roaming Timber

As a preliminary experiment, an area of 100 acres in the Indian River District will be "dusted" with calcium arsenate from the Calco Chemical Agency, Ltd., flying boat. This is being done in an effort to halt the depredations of the hemlock looper, a caterpillar which has been doing great damage to standing timber in the district. Should the experiment prove to be successful, the powder will be used extensively in the area.

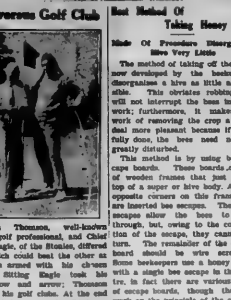
Bee versus Golf Club



William Thomson, well-known western golf professional, and Chief Sitting Eagle, of the Stonies, differed on a point which could best the other at golf, each armed with his chosen weapon. Sitting Eagle took his trusty bow and arrow; Thomson relied on his golf clubs. At the end of a nine-hole try out the Chief was four up on the pro. His target was of course larger than Thomson's objective and he could and did "hole out" from long range. The contest was staged over on-behalf of the championship course where the competitions for the Prince of Wales Trophy will be staged in the "Canadian Golfer" tour of Canada, starting from Toronto August 12.

Made Trip On Bronchos

Two Cowboys Ride From Alberta To The Pas District

Completing a 600-mile jaunt aboard a couple of Alberta bronchos, Jack Spence and Douglas Parker, western cowboys, arrived at The Pas recently from Alberta. The boys went on to Flin Flon, after disposing of their horses. After leaving Flin Flon, Spence and Parker will head through the bush country, which is considered almost impassable. The trip, however, though slow is quick, was done without any untoward accident.

Leaving on July 16, they covered the first 470 miles in 11 days. In the bush country to the west of The Pas key found tough going for a way, but stated that it was quite possible to use the road. Once or twice they got off winter trails and on special occasion got into difficulties around muskegs, and for the most part they travelled right along.

They added that they hated to part with their horses, but there was no way of getting through to the Flin Flon.

New Brunswick Farm

Hon. Dr. J. D. McLean, former Premier of British Columbia, has just completed his first inspection trip through New Brunswick in the capacity as chief executive officer of the federal Farm Loan Board. He has had as his experienced opinion that New Brunswick has farm lands that are equal to say to be found in other parts of Canada.

Best Method Of Taking Honey Crop

Made Of Procedure Disorganize Hive Very Little

The method of taking off the crop, now developed by the beekeepers, disorganizes a hive as little as possible. This obviates robbing and does not interrupt the bees in their work; furthermore, it makes the work of removing the crop a great deal more pleasant because if carefully done, the bees need not be greatly disturbed.

The method is by using bee escape boards. These boards consist of wooden frames that just fit on top of a super or hive body. At two opposite corners on this framework are inserted bee escapes. These bee escapes allow the bees to pass through, but, owing to the construction of the escape, they cannot return. The remainder of the escape board should be wire screening. Some beekeepers use a honey board with a single bee escape in the centre. In fact there are various types of escape boards, though they all work on the principle of the one described.

The escape boards are placed on the hives below the lowest super that it is desired to remove. Care must be taken that there be no brood in the supers placed above an escape. The bees will not pass through. Care must also be taken that there are no chinks or holes in the supers above the escape, as the bees will leave through the escapes, the supers become unprotected and robbing may start. An empty super or half super is generally given when the escape is put on as the hive will become too crowded.

The honey should be put above an escape. Unfinished combs should be left below to be finished off by the bees.

If the weather is bright and the bees are active it should be possible to take off the supers about forty-four or forty-eight hours after putting on the escapes, and find no bees in them.

Should Start When Young

If Music Taught In School Children Learn To Appreciate It

There is only one way to implant the love of music in the citizens of any country, and that is by teaching them, while they are still children, to sing and appreciate the best in art. This can best be done by having the little ones make music themselves, and not by having the proper agencies to undertake this work The individual effort in the country has been forgotten for a long way, from any serious national effort to make us appreciate some of the more delightful phases of life. Indeed, we had a leading part in the development of many nations, and we in Canada should certainly not overlook its importance

The new plant of Western Steel Products, Limited, has been completed and is now occupied by the company. It was erected by the Pool Construction Company, of Regina, in record time. Although the building is only just finished officials of the company think that a still further extension may be necessary shortly if the present rate of progress keeps up

Compliment To the Dog

Four-Footed Friends Can Teach Man Lessons Of Faithfulness

It pleased Lord Birkenhead, who has attained the years that bring the philosophical mind to entertain an assembly of British dog fanciers by telling here of the devotion and loyalty of a pet. "Claire," known as "Jane," which insists upon attending state banquets with her master and whenever he happens to be away travelling abroad "Jane" loses her appetite. Lord Birkenhead adds that he never knew a man who, because of his absence, refused to eat and drink. But that is the dog nature. It is a compliment to "Toby." Over against the fact that our word "cynic" simply means, in Greek, a dog, we may set the fact that the dog star and dog days seasons have been named after our four-footed friend; and "Vishtul as any dog" has become, not without good reason, a proverb in our language. A writer in Temple Bar says: "From the investigations I have made upon the subject the record of literary men and women who have experienced and reciprocated the devotion of their dogs, would furnish the material for many books." It has done so, for this fascinating dogs. Goethe was against them. He, when manager of the Weimar Theatre, had a quarrel with Duke Carl August, and in order to hurt Karsten's poodle was billed to play in the melodrama, whereupon Goethe issued the rule. "No dogs allowed on the stage." The poodle arrived and won the plaudits of the crowd, whereupon was incensed. But the Duke's choice between dogdom and the loss of his theatrical manager. The Duke wrote the German philosopher a curt letter of dismissal. Had Goethe been less choleric and more acquainted with the minds of dog's mind, he might have appreciated the saying of a famous fancier which runs thus: "If petulant, don't kick your dog instead of someone else who would not take it so meekly, and who certainly not, in return, ask your pardon for being kicked."

On Long Route March

Ex-Soldier From Newfoundland Hiking Around World On Bet

Recently passed through Glasgow, Scotland, an ex-soldier engaged in one of the longest route marches ever known. He is Andrew Robe M'Whyte, son of a Scotsman engaged in the fishing industry in Newfoundland.

He is walking round the world, a distance of 25,000 miles, for a wager of $40,000. The conditions are that apart from necessary rest periods he must tramp the entire distance by foot, and, must not even accept a friendly lift on the road. He must also earn his own living.

He carries a small tent and cooking utensils, and rarely sleeps indoors.

"I am forty-three years of age," he told an interviewer, "but I feel as fit as a boy of twenty.

I have many thousands of miles to walk yet, but I am not in a hurry. Apart from the $40,000 awaiting me I am thoroughly enjoying the experience, and, even if the bet were cancelled for some reason or other, I should still carry on."

The Real Canadians

According To Crerar Tabers, Only Indians Can Qualify

A correspondent of the Vancouver Sun recounts being told by a United States immigration agent that the only real Canadians are Indians.

That is of course, zero in courtesy and does not represent even the official or general attitude of the United States. But it is technically the truth according to our own census taken in that collection is made every 10 years no one can be defined as a "Canadian."

CANADIAN NATIONAL HOTEL FOR SASKATOON

Above is shown a preliminary study of the new hotel which the Canadian National Railways will build in Saskatoon. It will have a minimum of 300 bedrooms as well as specially planned facilities for catering to banquets; conventions and dances. It will be thoroughly modern and fireproof throughout and its handsome design will make it a beautiful as well as useful addition to the most notable of the city's buildings. The architects are John S. Archibald, Montreal, one of Canada's greatest designers, and John Schofield, architect of the Canadian National Railways, Montreal. Mr. Archibald and Mr. Schofield have collaborated on such outstanding buildings as the recent addition to the Chateau Laurier, in Ottawa; the hotels of the Canadian National Railways now under construction at Halifax and Vancouver, as well as on a number of other buildings which are famous throughout the country for the charm of their design.

Canada's Trade With Britain

Figures Show Decrease For First Six Months Of 1930

Canada's share in the foreign trade of Great Britain for the first six months of the present year is regarded as "slightly disappointing" by Harrison Watson, Canadian Trade Commissioner in London, because, contrary to general expectation, the total shows no increase over 1929.

The figures published, show that both Canada and the United States fell off noticeably in wheat exports to the United Kingdom, their loss being practically balanced by Argentina's and Australia's gain in this respect. During these six months, Britain imported a total of 53,497,229 hundredweight. Argentine led with 19,106,940 hundredweight, Canada came next with 15,841,175, while the United States supplied 8,422,336, and Australia, 7,602,633 hundredweight.

That the British bacon market is still unattractive to Canadian packers would appear evident from figures which show Canada far below other exporting countries in the matter of bacon. The figures are: Denmark, 2,946,046 hundredweight; Netherlands, 502,234; United States, 369,386; Canada, 84,864. This is also true of hams. From the United States, Britain imported 429,741 hundredweight, while Canada supplied barely a tenth of that amount, 48,107 hundredweight, which is the lowest quantity shipped for some time past.

Complete disappearance of shipments of Canadian fruits to Britain is also noted, the Irish Free State now taking care of practically the whole of her outside requirements. Canadian butter has disappeared from the list for all practical purposes.

On the other hand, Canada still contributes more than half of all flour imported by the United Kingdom: there has been a marked advance in the quantity of barley from the Dominion; while Canada's shipments of oats are far in excess of other countries.

Commenting on Canada's apparent inability to produce goods in sufficient quantities to supply the British market, W. Waldron, agricultural commissioner in the provincial department of agriculture, remarked: "It seems that we are not making the most of our opportunities as a producer if we cannot supply Great Britain, and if other countries are securing the major share of the business.

"But if Canada does manage to achieve an exportable surplus of bacon, hams, eggs, butter and poultry, that much surplus be exported to Great Britain? The exporter is interested in the best market he can find, and the carving of the United States tariffs may cause him to turn to Great Britain, but something more is needed, and much information as possible on the requirements of the British market should be made available. Canada's export interest and keep that market constantly before the eyes of Canadian producers. Substantial progress has already been made in this direction, but it is a good thing to which the Dominion and provincial governments could perhaps pay greater attention."

A Considerate Neighbor

A newcomer to Liberal was certain to specify to the real estate man that he wanted a house close to town but one that was at least a half mile away from any other dwelling.

"Ah, I see," said the agent with an understanding smile. "You want to enjoy the simple life, don't you?"

No," answered the newcomer "I want to practice on the corpse."

Canadian Fish For England

A record shipment of 150,000 pounds of River St. Lawrence salmon was shipped recently from Quebec to the British Isles. This salmon is crossed by a new process that does not affect the flavour of the fish in any way It is expected that weekly shipments of about 100,000 pounds of this salmon will be made to the British markets

Landonville District Annual Schools Fair

The fifth annual School Fair of the Landonville and district association was held at Semple's hall on Thursday, Sept. 5th. Although threshing was in full operation throughout the district, quite a number of the members closed down for the Fair. Then as it should be. Every farmer and his family should attend these fairs, not only for the valuable information and experience they gain thereby, but it also encourages the pupils, teachers and all who are working for the cause of the fair.

The entries in some classes were not as numerous this year as previous years owing no doubt in a large number at cases to the continued dry weather during the growing season. The exhibits in practically all classes, however showed a marked improvement over last year and the educational side of these fairs is becoming more and more manifest, particularly in the agricultural, sewing and preparation of the vegetables. We believe this to be the best all around exhibit of vegetables we have ever had at this point, the size and quality being remarkable.

The livestock entries also showed a marked improvement over previous years both in quality and numbers.

In the poultry classes every nine was strongly contested, and the judge had to examine the birds many times before placing the tickets.

The following is a list of the prize winners. Although five prizes were awarded in each class, through lack of time to make up the lists we will give only the first three.

In the nursery work, only three schools were represented: Telegraph by Harmon Grey, who took first; Angelo Lake by Steve Porcina, second; Yankee by Irene Dufour, third.

In the Collection of Insects the schools Telegraph carried away the only award.

In the matter of Physical Exercise we feel compelled to lend considerable criticism with our credit. The Telegraph pupils under their teacher Miss Lorie, gave a wonderful exhibition, the commands being obeyed with promptitude, gave the pupils, (who were all in their places) a very smart appearance. The various body movements, also their "pull" were extremely well executed.

We believe that a word of criticism just here is due to certain of the pupils of the Angle Lake pupils. We believe that after a teacher has devoted approximately seven months of strenuous labor preparing her pupils for a drill, the parents of those pupils should go best assume the responsibility of bringing the children to the Fair it would seem to the writer that the board and secretary of any live school district should at least cooperate sufficiently with their teacher to donate a half day each year to assist that teacher and her pupils to win the honors and awards for which they have labored.

Miss Anderson of Angle Lake who took the field second, although severely pushed by only part of her pupils, received well deserved praise, and although badly handicapped gave a good account of themselves and carried away second prize. The other three schools did not compete in this drill.

This report would hardly be complete without tendering a word of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Semple for the use of the hall and accommodation, the judges, the teachers, the public, and all who assisted in making the 1929 Fair a success.

The Singing Fool
By HUBERT DAY.
Classic Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

SYNOPSIS

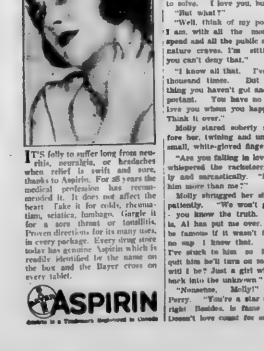
Al Stone, the singing waiter and song writer at Blackie Joy's New York night club, is discovered by Mabreee, the famous Broadway revue producer, who is interested in helping Molly, the ballad singer at Blackie's, become a big star. Molly married him, not loving him, and he pulls her up the ladder of fame. Meanwhile, Grace, the cigarette girl at Blackie's, who loved Al without his knowing it, is left behind. Molly discovers she is to have a baby. She resents this at first but is reconciled after Little Junior arrives. But when she returns to the stage she loses interest in the child. Her romantic interest in John Perry, Al's best friend, is renewed and one day Grace sees them kissing in Molly's limousine. She does not see the man put his arm possessively about Molly.

CHAPTER XII.

Night on Broadway. The richly dressed theatre crowds had left the theatres and were pouring into the fashionable night clubs. The electric signs on the night clubs blinked, beamed and beckoned. "Here," they seemed to say, "you may find romance from care, here you may eat, drink and be merry until dawn—if you have the price!"

Brightest among the insidiously beckoning lights was the brilliant sign of the CLUB BOMBO, where Al Stone was part owner and master of ceremonies. What a contrast to the shabby old place where he had once worked at Blackie Joy's. Al often thought of it. And what a contrast between the job he now held and his odd one. Once he had been a mere singing waiter, eager for the tips that the none too affluent patrons of Blackie's place threw him when they happened to like his comic songs and his ad lib wise-cracking. Now he was using his fame as Broadway's foremost song writer to pull the shekels into his pocket at the Club Bombo. He was the magnet, the favorite of the big-time revels. He was called him the "Singing Fool" because he could put his songs over with such emotional intensity.

The ballroom of Al's club was expensive and expansive, designed to hold the huge crowds that flocked there. The tables spread across the room an army of round white tops, with a small cleared space in the middle for the cabaret performers and for dancing. One of the best jazz orchestras in the land furnished music from a raised platform at one end.



IT'S folly to suffer long from neuralgia, neuritis, rheumatism, when relief is swift and sure, thanks to Aspirin. For 28 years the medical profession has recommended it. It does not affect the heart. Take it for colds, rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago. Gargle it for a sore throat or tonsilitis. Proven directions for its many uses, in every package. Every drug store today has genuine Aspirin which is readily identified by the name on the box and the Bayer cross on every tablet.

ASPIRIN
Aspirin is a Trademark Registered in Canada

Now as Al walked slowly up and down near the doorway, greeting new arrivals, the jazz boys were sending out their plaintive, seductive strains and the floor was crowded with dancers.

The music died away. like a haunting cry echoing down a ravine. The lights went out and the couples left the floor. Then the spotlight picked up Al alone on the dance floor, and a roar of applause met him. He smiled happily and shook hands with himself—a symbolic gesture indicating that he was shaking hands with everyone.

"Ladies and gentlemen" — his voice came clear and resonant — "we're all here and I want you to have a good time. Forget the cost—the bill is unimportant. But before the show starts I want you to know a few of the celebrities we have present. Here's Dolores Costello, the famous motion picture star; there's Jack Barrymore, who needs no back. At the right you will see Rudolph Walker of our great city."

Finally Al's glance rested on a vacant table that was rather conspicuously placed. This was the special table that he always kept the reserved sign on, the table belonging to Grace. Where was she? Now he saw a couple stop before it and force it with the head-waiter to let them have it. He moved across the room quickly

"Sorry, folks," he said, with polite firmness, "but this table is always reserved. We'll find you one just as good don't worry. Herman, see to the lady and gentleman are well seated."

Al gave the waiter a friendly clap on the shoulder and turned away. But when the couple had gone he glanced back toward the table, gazing at it with tender speculation. This was Grace's table and a moment, she would be here to occupy it. It must be held inviolate

Al was in a somewhat different from the others; it was more tastefully arranged and the flowers on it were more carefully selected and placed by Al himself. He was not quite satisfied with them, so he began rearranging them, forgetful of his crowd entirely. Then he produced a jeweler's box from his inside pocket and slipped it into the napkin. Attached to it was a card which read "To my darling wife—on her anniversary and mine"

This done, Al looked up, smiling happily, and glanced at his watch. She should be here by now

At that moment Molly and John Perry were comfortably ensconced in her blue limousine, proceeding with purposeful slowness toward the Club Bombo. Molly had told the chauffeur not to hurry.

She sat leaning against Perry's strong shoulder, while they conversed intimately in whispers. Perry was pleading, but Molly shook her head, although undecidedly

"John, it is too complicated for me to solve. I love you, but "

"But what?"

"Well, think of my position. Here I am, with all the money I can spend and all the public applause my failure craves. I'm sitting pretty, you can't deny that."

"I know all that. I've heard it a thousand times. But there's one thing you haven't got and that's important. You have no husband to love you when you happen to love. Think it over."

"Are you falling in love with Al?" whispered the racketeer, hastening. "Is that unbearable, Molly?"

Molly shrugged her shoulders impatiently. "We weren't go into that - you know the truth. The point is, Al has put me over. I wouldn't be there now if it weren't for him. I'm no cad I know that. That's why I've stuck to him so long. If I quit him he'll turn on me and where will I be? Just a girl who will drift back into the unknown"

"Nonsense, Molly!" exclaimed Perry. "You're a star in your own right Besides, is fame everything? Doesn't love count for something?"

"You bet it does!" cried Molly vehemently, and almost bitterly. "If it didn't think so I would never have let you come near me."

John Perry smiled. He knew the cool, calculating, ambitious Molly was mad about him. She was wild and about her, too. At first his interest had been the lightest of heart affairs, for he was a born philanderer, but gradually the situation had changed. To his own amazement a longing for Molly possessed him; now he found himself willing to dare anything to get her. Suddenly she turned to him and said gravely, "What about my baby who—about Junior?"

But Perry had no answer to that; he merely shrugged his shoulders. He wanted Molly to himself, without any entanglements. Molly gave a tired smile and fixed her gaze on the broad back of the chauffeur, just ahead. How much did that man know of her interest in John?

Her unspoken words were cut short as the car came to a standstill, and she felt herself drawn recklessly toward him. In the dark compartment of the limousine, subject he deals with than Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the Arctic explorer, that books written in Canada, presumably by Canadian authors, must sign Northern Canada. Mr. dry season should not be raised on foreign immigrant labor which is largely propaganda. Now comes a complaint by no less an authority on the subject he deals with than Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the Arctic explorer, that books written in Canada, presumably by Canadian authors, must sign Northern Canada. Mr. dry season should know more of the spoken and attention may be given by the authorities to his observations. One instance of the misrepresentation the explorer complains of is that the Canadian textbooks say that the temperature in the northern districts rarely rises above the zero point, and in such districts he points out the mercury rises as high as it does in Winnipeg. Another case he cites grow one hundred feet high are described to Canadian school children as being "barren, treeless wastes" when the figure is on level with that in Southern Alberta are referred to as "plains where moss and lichens are found." Mr. Stefansson looks forward to the production of primary textbooks in the north as the next development

It becomes evident that much of the misrepresentation in school textbooks was compiled many years ago, or, if recently written was taken from the works of writers who in their anxiety not to lose any opportunity of advertising the actual facts. Fiji, Labrador might do well to get their heads together, to consider the state of affairs mentioned by the explorer and to see that the evils complained of are no longer perpetrated in the textbooks. Misrepresenting Canada

Canadian Text Books Need Revising In Some Particulars

School history textbooks written, edited and printed in the United States for use in Canadian schools have of late stirred some impetuosity in Canadian educational circles and beyond, the argument being quite properly, that Canadian children should not be raised on foreign immigrant literature which is largely pro-

An Amazing Project

Plan To Make Inland Sea In Sahara Is Feasible

Ancient prophecies may be fulfilled if a project declared feasible by engineers is carried out. It involves making a vast inland sea in the Sahara and that would be accomplished by digging a canal which would begin about twenty-five miles from Biskra and run out to the Gulf of Gabes in Algeria. It would be 210 yards wide, thirty-one feet deep, 170 miles long. It would connect the eight shotts (shallow salty lakes), that exist in that depression and transform it into a vast interior sea having a surface of 14,000 square miles

Plan Improving Town Hospital

Innisfail Votes in Favor $25,000 Extension

INNISFAIL, Alta., Sept. 4.—The Innisfail municipal hospital was opened in November, 1926, and has already proved inadequate for the needs of the district and plans were made for an extension costing around $25,000.

The necessary bylaw was submitted to the ratepayers on Saturday and resulted in a substantial majority in favour of the scheme. Owing to harvest operations the rural vote was comparatively small, but only one place polled an adverse vote.

The results, with one small poll to hear from, give 490 for and 121 against.

Canadian Pacific steamer Minnedosa recently brought over to Canada two fine stallions belonging to the Prince of Wales, "Aldershot" an Arab, and "Peasmarsh" a Clyde, to on the royal ranch at Sight River, Alberta. WHEAT POOL NOTES

The Alberta Wheat Pool is making a determined effort to point out to Pool members the importance of delivering Pool grain to Pool elevators wherever it is possible, in view of the light crop in Alberta this year.

The Pool elevator system was built up for the purpose of giving service and protection to the membership. Three years ago there were 1 Pool elevators in Alberta. Today there are 437, representing an investment of over six million dollars of Pool farmers' money. This investment must be protected.

Pool members should realize that it is a matter of very great importance for the selling agency to have Pool wheat readily available at all times. When Pool wheat is delivered to Pool elevators it is always available to the selling Agency.

This great elevator system was developed because Pool farmers insisted that this course be taken. For years the selling efforts of the Wheat Pool has been delayed with requests and even demands for Pool elevators. Now it is up to Pool farmers to show their appreciation of their own system by delivering their wheat to Pool elevators.

The introduction of combines and auto trucks has speeded up harvesting on the Canadian prairies to a remarkable degree. The result has been an unprecedented flow of grain to the elevators during a brief period in the fall. In order to restrict this grist as much as possible the Alberta Wheat Pool is offering a bonus of 2 cents per bushel for wheat held on farms until December 2nd, 1929. Wheat producers should realize it is not good business to deliver the crop in any hurried manner that it has a restrictionary effect on the market.

The Wheat Pool has not made a practice of counselling Pool farmers to deliver their crop in one crop year. For instance, some Pool farmers have carried wheat from their 1924 crop past the date of the closing of the 1924 Pool, which was July 15th, and delivered this grain to the 1929 Pool. No objections have been made by the Pool against this practice. A report here item issued by the Wheat Pool mentioned that action had been taken against a few Pool members who had not delivered their 1928 wheat to the Pool. This has been construed by some to mean that all Pool wheat should be delivered within the Crop Year. As a matter of fact the action was taken because the wheat had been delivered outside the Pool

SINCLAIR — BELL

A pretty wedding took place at Vermilion on Saturday, August 7th at the home of the bride's brother, Dr. W. W. Bell, in the presence of immediate relatives, when Frances Margaret, daughter of the late Rev. J. W. Bell and Mrs. Bell, became the bride of Mr. John Chambers Sinclair of Innisfail, Alta., son of the late Mr. Sinclair and Mrs. McDermott of Innisfail. The bride, who entered the drawing room on the arm of her brother, Dr. Bell, made a dainty picture in her gown of white silk georgette, fashioned on long flowing lines, simply trimmed with a wide lace collar, and wearing a veil of embroidered silk net attached to the head with a wreath of orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of Ophelia roses and maiden-hair fern. She was attended by Miss Gladys Speers of Edmonton smartly gowned in canary yellow georgette with small felt hat to match and carrying mauve sweet peas and sycopathia. The groom was supported by Mr Thomas Waits of Vermilion and the Rev H. A Boyd, B.D. performed the ceremony. Following the service a delicious dinner was served, a three-tier wedding cake centering the table. The happy couple left by motor for a short honeymoon, amid showers of confetti, the bride travelling in a smart ensemble of periwinkle blue silk crepe with small hat of the same shade.

Mr and Mrs Sinclair will reside in Innisfail. The bride is a graduate of the Royal Alexandra hospital, Edmonton and has many friends in both the capital city and Calvary

Down Hearted and Lonely

TO a widow's Grief is always added Worry. There are funeral expenses to pay; doctors' bills; and legal costs—these are the common lot.

But the farmer's widow has handicaps unknown to even the most unfortunate of her city sisters. For the seed is unsown; or the crop unharvested —and that means hiring help. And there is the interest on the mortgage—and little to meet it with. And there are implements to buy; stock to purchase; seed to obtain—

Sell? But it is the wrong season, and if she moved to town, for what task is she fitted and where could she go? No! Her whole hope of comfort and independence for herself and her children is on the farm—if only there be ready money to meet the immediate need.

And that is exactly what life assurance provides. Here is what a Sun Life of Canada policy assures: A man of 35, by payment of a modest premium yearly (decreased every year by dividends on the current scale starting at over $65 the second year) can assure that his widow or children receive $5,000 in cash at his death and, in addition, a minimum income of $30 a month for five years while they gain experience and re-adjust themselves in the surroundings they know and love.

The Sun Life provides a policy to meet every need. Consult our representative in your district. It entails no obligation.

Britain and Canada

Canada is honored at the present time by having among its visitors three notable British statesmen, Hon. J. H. Thomas Minister of Employment in the Ramsay MacDonald Government, Hon. Winston S. Churchill, former Chancellor of the Exchequer and Mr. Amery, former Minister for the Dominions. Mr. Churchill and Mr. Amery are in Canada on holiday but they are not the less closely studying conditions and ascertaining the sentiment of this country in regard to vital questions of Empire policy such as immigration, trade and commerce and the possibilities of closer relationships in matters for the general advancement of both Mother Country and this Dominion.

On the other hand, Mr. Thomas visit to Canada is made in his official capacity as Minister of Employment with the object of endeavoring to find out in what ways Canada can assist in solving the serious unemployment problem in Britain without doing injury to itself, and, having discovered, by conference and consultation to accomplish this object, to secure the co-operation of the Canadian Government and the Canadian people in carrying them into effect.

Fortunately the first object presented to Mr. Thomas mission has been removed. As the minister charged with the task of solving the unemployment problem in Britain, he was felt that Mr. Thomas was coming to Canada with the view of bringing some immigration policy whereby large numbers if British unemployed would be transferred to this Dominion. Assuming as Canada may be to have a large proportion of its incoming settlers of British birth, this Dominion is not prepared to have thousands of men dumped into the country unless they can first find work at their home and who have no training or aptitude for life in the land Mr. Thomas has made it abundantly clear that he has no such intention on the part of the British people. It is not my aim to solve my unemployment problem by creating one for you." Unemployment and immigration are be-cause two quite separate and distinct problems and should be so kept as such.

Then what is Mr. Thomas proposal to Canada? It is simple, clear-cut, workable, and one that should find favor with, and the sympathetic support of the people of Canada. In a word it is that our large Canadian corporations, and our people generally, should when making purchases buy British-made goods and articles if such are not made in Canada, in preference to buying from any other country. He has asked the Dominion Government to give encouragement and support to such a policy He has met down in conference with the heads of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways and asked them to follow such a policy as has said to the officials of the Canadian Wheat Pool "Britain is the largest purchaser of your wheat We are your best customer just as we are Canada's best customer Then when you require machinery or other things which Canada itself does not manufacture and cannot supply, we ask you to buy from us rather than from others"

This should appeal to the people of Canada as good business. It is a self-respecting proposal for both parties to it. For example, Mr. Thomas points out that Canada imports over 16,000,000 tons of coal from the United States. He wants coal to be going to get, some of that coal to the business for Britain. Canada's best customer and thereby assist the coal mining industry of the Old Land and supply work for some of the thousands of unemployed miners there to do. He has had a request from Britain providing employment for British dock hands sailors, and all and country having to do with the business of shipping

Such a policy will strike a responsive chord with the people of Western Canada, who are not particularly favourable to any policy of restrictive tariffs or other forms of restraint on trade, and who fiercely believe that the proper policy for this Dominion to pursue is to offset tariff action by other countries against Canada by further reducing tariffs on British goods and thereby assisting to substitute British-made goods for those of other countries

The success of such a policy lies largely with the individual Canadian citizen He can make it a success by purchasing when making any purchase the first to look have an article made in Canada and, if that cannot be obtained second that of British-made importers wholesalers, distributors, retailers will quickly adjust their stocks to comply with the popular demand.

Lose no ill sentiment aside. It is good business for the people of Canada to support and buy from their best customer The more we buy from Britain, the more Britain can afford to buy from us.

Was Victim Of Glacier

Body Of Austrian Recovered After Eighty-Three Years

Eighty-three years ago, Herbert Mattersberger, at the time 33 years old, husband of Magda, and father of Franz Otto, failed to return to his cottage, in the village of Hall, Austria, one day from the woods, where he won his living hunting game. A rescue party from the village decided he had been caught in an avalanche of ice.

Recently Mattersberger came home just as he left that day in 1846. The glacier had given up its prey. Although clean shaven, according to family records, when he left, he had a two-inch beard when a party of hunters found him on the edge of the glacier. The body, clothes, and weapons were in a perfect state of preservation.

Franz Mattersberger is now 86. His father was buried at Kais, with grandchildren and great-grand-children mourned at his grave

WHAT OUR GIRLS NEED

When Languid, Anaemic and Feeling Run Down

When a girl grows languid, dull and careless when her color fades and she becomes pale, you may be sure that she needs the assistance of imperishable blood. The bright, red color of the blood is caused by the presence in it of millions of tiny red corpuscles. It is these that carry the curry nourishment from the blood to the tissues. They also cause the glow of health in cheeks and lips. When a girl's blood is deficient in these red corpuscles her body is under-nourished her nerves starved, and there is serious danger of decline. What is needed in an impoverished state of the blood, and it is a scientific fact that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will so enrich and purify the blood that the evils of anaemia and its accompanying weakness will disappear. As an evidence of the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a tonic of this kind, Mrs. John Plasin, Lac du Bonnet, P.E.I., says: "I am glad to take this opportunity of recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills My daughter was in a badly run down condition very pale, nervous and much under weight. We tried several medicines, but they did not benefit her in the least, and I decided to give her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Almost from the start she began to improve, and after the use of a few boxes was her color, gained in weight, her appetite improved and she felt like a new girl. Her cheeks —in fact she had fully regained her former good health. I would advise every mother of young girls to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair first sign of an anaemic condition."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50c a box from The Dr Williams Medicine Co. Brockville Ont

Wonderful Discovery Of German Experts

Treatment Given To Living Trees Makes Lumber Pretty Fireproof

A thin mineral soup, fed to living trees to make their wood partly fireproof after it has been cut and made into boards, has been invented by experts of the College of Forestry, at Tharandt, Germany. The process is a modification of one now in some time ago to dye the wood of a living tree to any desired colour. For this purpose solutions of the desired dyes were placed in holes bored in the tree close to the ground. As the sap rose the dye went with it, gradually colouring the wood. In the new fireproofing process, the dye solution is replaced by a bowl of the new "soup" containing compounds of silicon and fluorine and other chemical elements, so arranged that the solution flows little by little into a hole bored in the tree trunk. As with the dye solution, these chemicals are absorbed slowly by the tree and carried up by the rising sap into every fibre of the wood. The solution is too diluted to damage the living cells of the tree. Instead, its chemicals are gradually converted into mineral deposits throughout the wood, as the sap passes in the course of millions of years to wood buried in mineralizing ground and slowly turned into mineral fossil. To carry this mineralizing process too far in the trees intended for timber is unwise, since the mineral deposits make the wood harder to saw. The German experts claim to have succeeded, however, in mineralizing trees just enough to make their wood almost fireproof without destroying its properties as wood.

GREAT BRITAIN'S FOREIGN POLICY ONE OF PEACE

Victoria.—Great Britain's foreign policy has never been one of subservience to France, but one for the preservation of peace in Europe, Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill, former chancellor of the exchequer in the Baldwin Government, declared here.

He was addressing a luncheon given in his honor, where nearly 1,000 persons greeted him enthusiastically. The gathering was sponsored by the Canadian Club and National Council of Education.

He had gathered, said Mr. Churchill, that there had been tendencies to misrepresent the foreign policy of which he spoke. Britain had ever recognized, he recalled, that reconciliation between France and Germany was the primary objective of European diplomats and leaders. All other problems were of lesser importance. Through the treaty of Locarno the bringing of these two nations into closer comradeship had been attained.

"We have always been anxious that Germany should recover her place in the family of Europe, and that has been achieved. Not that we did that at the expense of our allies with whom we stood side by side during those long war years," he said. "Our policy in Europe has been clear, honest, and consistent."

Britain had very old and highly valued associations with Japan, he said, stretching into the days of the Far East. He had always found his confidence in the government of Japan strengthened by all he contacted.

In broadening the Anglo-Japanese alliance at Washington to include the United States, Britain and Canada had been placed in a position of security that did not belie its name.

"I think you will agree that British policy in China has been successful," he declared, pointing out that a very difficult task had been performed through and consolidation was now in sight.

Reduce Running Time

Canadian National To Consider Matter Of Increasing Speed From Montreal To Toronto

Winnipeg, Man.—Immediate consideration is being given the matter of cutting the running time of the Canadian National service from Montreal to Vancouver in conformity with the proposed cut of 10 hours for transcontinental service of the Canadian Pacific, as recently announced by President Beatty, according to a statement made by Sir Henry Thornton, K.B.E., president of the Canadian National Railways, just prior to the departure for the east.

The president who was accompanied by Lady Thornton, left on his special train for the east. The statement marks the conclusion of Sir Henry's annual tour of western lines, in the course of which he has had one or more bad occasion to note with admiration the optimism of Canadians in the west under trying circumstances.

He referred to the adverse crop conditions. While a national disaster had been narrowly averted, the morale of the westerner had not been affected Nor had the faith of the Canadian National in the west, he added, stating that the plans for expansion which had been in progress would be continued while new ones were being considered.

Big Aviation Event

Important Race For Aviators May Be Held In 7 Years

Toronto.—The rapid development of air navigation in Canada during the past few years promises to culminate in an aviation event in this country which, it is expected here, will rival in importance the race for the Schneider cup, now the international classic of Europe.

In view of the fact, as a result of the training received in the war, Canada numbers a considerable body of expert air navigators, and in view of the inevitable tendency towards international air meets, C. O. Stillman, president of the Imperial Oil company, has made an informal announcement to the effect that his company contemplates a contribution of $50,000 for the purpose of promoting an international race to be called "The Imperial Air Derby." This race will begin at some experimental flying centre in the United States, and end at a Canadian field, on some date next year to be announced later.

The amount suggested as prize money is said to be far in excess of any inducement yet offered on this continent for an air race, and it is bound to attract the best pilots and with the most modern machines not only of Canada and the United States, but of other countries.

Western Air Mail

Service Expected To Commence About October First

Ottawa.—Inauguration of 1,250 miles of air mail service on the prairies is expected about Oct. 1, linking Winnipeg with Canmore, Alta. and thereby saving a day's time between the two points. G. Herring, chief superintendent of the Dominion Air Mail Service, is now in the west to make arrangements with the Western Canada Airways Company, of Winnipeg, while Hon. F. J. Venier, postmaster-general, plans to go to Winnipeg to officiate at the formal opening of the service.

"There are two routes planned for daily mail each way, it was learned at the postmaster-general's department, the one from Winnipeg via Regina, Moose Jaw, Calgary and Canmore, and the other from Regina via Saskatoon and North Battleford to Edmonton.

Next year, it is indicated, the air mail service will likely be established on the route from Vancouver to Prince George, giving practically a Dominion-wide air mail service from Rimouski in the east to Prince Rupert in the west, a distance of 4,000 miles.

The Canadian Pacific Railway and Canadian National Railways have also signified their intention of establishing aerial mail services in connection with the Dominion air mail service.

Canada's National Parks

American Visitor Thinks Parks Of British Columbia Ahead Of Those In United States

Washington.—Travelling through the Canadian Rocky Mountain National Park has convinced Mayor Ralph Cole, of Seattle, Wash., that the engagement and upkeep of the British Columbia park is far ahead of the parks in the United States, which he had also toured. He has written a letter to Senator David I. Walsh, of the state office, urging the setting aside of the national park service to investigate.

Mayor Bauer stated that the Canadian roads were better made, and wider and were well oiled. There were also additional conveniences and the whole reservation seemed to be run for the people to whom it belongs rather than for commercial gain "in an effort to bleed the people to the last dollar possible"

British Settlers For Coast Province

$400,000,000 Is Received For Purpose Of Facilitating Plan

London, Eng.—The required sum of $400,000,000 for the establishment of the Empire Development Corporation is assured, according to an assertion by Mr. C. T. Cramp, in London newspapers recently—an assertion that is causing much rejoicing in official quarters. Dr. Galbraith is here in connection with the movement of settlers from the Old Country to British Columbia.

Dr. Galbraith says it is proposed that the corporation should acquire 20,000,000 acres in British Columbia and settle thereon 20,000 British families.

Premier Tolmie has requested Mr. Thomas to send a representative to British Columbia," he declared, "and I am only waiting the approval of the scheme by Premier MacDonald, Lord Passfield, Mr. Thomas and Premier Tolmie."

"It is proposed that the governments of Britain and British Columbia should have representatives on advisory boards and that British and Canadian trades unions also will have representatives. Opportunities for co-operation will be offered to organizations carrying on empire settlement operations."

CANADA TAKES IMPORTANT STEP AT WORLD COURT

Geneva.—Canada is first among the British Dominions formally to accept the arrangements with the compulsory clause of the world court, which provides for compulsory arbitration of international disputes.

Cheers rang through the Hall of Reformation when Senator Raoul Dandurand, leader of the Canadian delegation, made this declaration to the tenth assembly of the League of Nations. As he left the tribune, the premiers of both Great Britain and France joined with those offering congratulations.

From Senator Dandurand's statement it was clear the Canadian declaration did not come as a result of the recent discussion between the delegates of the Dominions and Great Britain, or in consequence of Premier Ramsay MacDonald's similar declaration in behalf of British Since the day Premier Mackenie King, of Canada, sent the League his statement of March 10, 1-25, that the Canadian Government was prepared to accept compulsory jurisdiction of the Court of International Justice in justifiable disputes, Canada has never wavered, Senator Dandurand emphasized.

Other dominions which are members of the League, likewise are prepared to make their declarations of adhesion, but there still remains the problem of reservations. In an effort to reach a common understanding the Dominion's representatives again met the representatives of Britain, Australia and New Zealand, both have reservations. Canada, too, may have a reservation but it is unlikely it will be made as far-reaching as those out of the Antipodes. The Irish Free State and South Africa, are understood to be the New Zealand, both have reservations. Among suggested reservations is a provision that compulsory reference to the international court would not apply to disputes between units of the British Commonwealth.

Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Bell and son have returned to town after their motor trip to the coast. They visited friends in Calgary and Seattle both going and coming, and stayed ten days in Victoria at the home of Mrs. Bell's parents. The roads were good for the most part. The heat through the Washington desert was terrific, the Doctor said. No trouble was experienced but a heavy snowfall from Banff east spoiled the return trip. All enjoyed the outing and feel fine after their three weeks' holiday. On the way home they visited in Brooks and report remarkable growth under irrigation. The late crop of strawberries was in full swing and the berries were delicious, but outside the irrigated area conditions are not so good, and Vermilion still satisfies in spite of the dry summer just past.

Court Decision of Interest to S.D's

A decision of some importance to at least some of the rural school districts was given by His Honor Judge Taylor in the district court here on Tuesday of this week. The case was that of Chisholm vs. the Preston school district. Chisholm was employed in 1927 and 1928 to teach in that school. The first year no definite arrangement was made with regard to the janitor service; Chisholm, however, did the work. The second year somethiar was said, but no agreement arrived at. Chisholm moved a way and subsequently sued for his services as janitor. It would appear as if the district had made it "a custom" to have the teacher do the work; it was just customary and that was as far as the arrangements went. The district felt that having made no agreement with Chisholm there was nothing coming to him. Chisholm said it was not his duty to see to the janitor services and having done the work thought he should be paid for it. The judge thought so too, and gave him judgment for $0.00 for 1923, but disallowed his claim for 1922 as it would seem he did not intend originally to make a charge. J. W. G. Morrison conducted the case for Chisholm and F. J. Richardson for the school district.

As far as the Standard can see, the moral of this case is that boards or school trustees would be well advised to make specific agreements relating to janitor services and pay for them.

Prize Winners At School Fair

The annual school fair of Vermilion and district was held last Wednesday, September 11th. In spite of adverse weather conditions, there was quite a turn-out to see the kiddies' display, all seeming to think that the time was well spent. The general organization of the fair was in the capable hands of W. L. Stinson, whose credit for the new and attractive features shown and vegetable displays is due also to Mrs. Lloyd, Miss Dury and Mrs. Payne, who gave unsparingly to their time to ensure the success of the fair, as did Mr. C. Hunt and Mr. M. Good in the livestock classes and vegetables. Thanks are also due to Messrs E. Daley and M. Stone who carried the burden of the clerking and secretarial work. D. K. Dury and A. Hinch kindly tended the gate for the day. The booth was in charge of the lady teachers, Misses Lipsey, Fraser, Cameron and Irving.

The Progress of Little Things

In these modern days when it is "the thing" to boast about the bigness of this and that, and when countries and cities lay claim to the possession of the biggest of something or other, we are apt to forget how many of those "big" things were brought about, and to lose sight of the essential fact that anything "big" is in reality only a collection or combination of many very small things.

Nowadays not so much stress is laid upon old sayings of a couple of generations ago, such, for example, as "Mighty oaks from little acorns grow" nor do we stop to contemplate that this globe on which we live is after all made up of little drops of water, little grains of sand."

It would be better for everyone of us if we gave greater heed and attached their real importance to the little things of everyday life. The wealth of the multimillionaire is after all, only an unusually large accumulation of pennies, and some of the very rich men of the world laid the foundation of their wealth by careful saving of their pennies. The hundreds of millions of bushels of Marquis wheat harvested in Canada every year is the result of one little kernel developed by Dr. Saunders.

The improvement of a very few dollars by the parents of a baby at the time of his birth, if left to accumulate at compound interest throughout the years of his minority, would mean a very substantial sum of money upon which to commence a career in the world by the time the child became of age.

These thoughts came to us when reading a recent article about Trinity Church, in New York City. Trinity, as every one knows, is a church on Wall Street, the centre of New York's financial district began its career 220 years ago on a precarious income derived from the Botanic and dead whales cast up by the sea along the shore where one of the world's largest cities now stands. Today Trinity Church Corporation is one of the largest holders of real estate in that city, owning $15,000,000 of revenue producing real estate, bringing into the church coffers an income of $1,500,000 a year. Nor do these large figures include the value of the property upon which Trinity Church itself stands the equivalent of about two square blocks in the heart of the financial district, and assessed at another $15,000,000.

The tremendous wealth of Trinity, we read in the Wall Street Journal, would appear fantastic to the organizers of this church in 1696, when King William III. granted the original charter. But the parish supplemented those nine years later by a further grant from Queen Anne in those days the land was of no particular value Wall Street was non-existant, and Fifth Avenue not even a foot path But Manhattan Island was destined for great wealth, and the worthless property of a little over 200 years ago is worth many millions today

Historical records contain efforts to obtain funds to start the church, which appear incredible when contrasted with present day values. One old will to the Building of the original church in 1696 was a patent issued by the Governor of New York it permitted everyman to seize all drift whales, or anything else driven by the sea onto land, and for which there was no owner. It further directed that the whales be towed ashore, fried, and proceeds used for a building fund

The lesson of this interesting bit of history is this: Today there are thousands of young people just starting out in life. They have little or nothing With them it is indeed a day of small things, and as they look around them and see so many fortunes being made, and the speed of the modern world, they are inclined to be discouraged, and become obsessed with the false idea that there is no opportunity for them.

But opportunities exist today as never before There are a thousand today where there was but one two hundred years ago. The beginning must be small now, as it was then, but the opportunity is there just the same, while the possibilities and probabilities of growth are many times more rapid now

Tackle the small thing at once save the small things, the pennies; watch for and embrace them, for opportunities are the small things which come to you. The bigger things, and the rewards of work and of service to your fellowmen will follow in due course

Story Of Privation

Tragic Case Of Two Boys Lost In Woods Of Northern Quebec

How 12-year-old Michael Courtois remained for nearly two months beside the body of his brother, Rene, 19, dead from hunger and privation in the woods, and how the two of them had wandered for miles, famished and helpless, was described at Roberval, Quebec, at the inquest into the death of Rene Courtois, found dead in the woods of northern Quebec, after having been missing since August, 1928.

Roots, berries and fish bones furnished slender means of livelihood for a time, young Michael told the coroner's jury. Then the fire was still enough for a few days, but soon died out.

Michael had almost completely lost his reason when rescued, but it is now expected he will recover.

FEELING WORN OUT

When the Blood Becomes Watery a Breakdown Follows

How many men and women suffer from headaches, pain in the back or side, poor appetite, nervousness and constant feeling of weakness? The palpitation of the heart at the least exertion. Of course, all these symptoms may not be present in any one case, but you will be surprised that the blood has become thin and watery, and your health may be regained only by enriching the blood This should be done without delay. For this purpose nothing else acts so promptly and so surely as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They actually make new rich blood and tone weak nerves and strengthen the whole system's vitality to weak, and often despondent people. The truth of this statement is proved by the case of Mrs. Howard King, R. R. 5, Truro, N.S., who says: "A couple of years ago I grew so much worked scarcely with across a room without help. My blood was very thin and I was almost breathless. I had no appetite. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills on a former occasion with good results, and so decided to try them again. By the time I had taken a few boxes I felt much better, but I continued taking the pills for several months, by which time I could walk for miles with little effort. I do all my own housework and care for four children, so you will see what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer, or by mail, at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Highway To the North

Strathcona Favors Road From The Pas To Northern Points

Returning from a trip to Churchill, Dr. V. Stefansson, famous explorer, declared he stood ready to give of the aid he could in the attempt to have a highway connecting The Pas and northern points with the rest of the continent

Enlisting himself as an advocate of a highway to the north, the famous explorer declared that it would be "another step in the opening of the north, a logical advance of civilization into the new northern empire and another blow to the old prejudice that the north is dangerous and worthless." He declared that a road into the northern country would "add ten-fold to Western Canada's attractions as a tourist haven."

It is usually safe to say that when a child is pale, sickly, peevish and cross, worms is the cause. These parasites range the stomach and intestines, causing serious disorders of the digestion and preventing the infant from deriving sustenance from its food. Miller's Worm Powders, by destroying the worms, correct these evils of the disorder and serve to restore the organs to healthy action.

ISLAND COLONY FOR DOUKHOBORS IS NOW PROPOSED

Victoria. — Fanatical Doukhobors from all over Western Canada, including those who have been making trouble in interior British Columbia, will be placed in a prison colony, probably on Darcy Island, in the Gulf of Georgia, between the mainland of British Columbia and Vancouver Island, if the Federal Government accepts plans laid before it by the Provincial Government.

The scheme, it was revealed, has been placed before Hon. J. H. King, Federal Minister of Health. He will discuss the matter with his colleagues on his return to Ottawa.

The proposal that Doukhobors who refuse to obey Canadian laws be removed to a colony by themselves, where they will have to live with law-abiding members of their sect, is advanced by the Provincial Government in the belief that the Doukhobor problem is a Federal issue. The Doukhobors, it is explained, were brought to Canada under contract by the Federal Government.

As Doukhobor colonies exist in Alberta and Saskatchewan, as well as in British Columbia, no single Provincial Government, it is pointed out, can adequately deal with them.

Darcy Island is suggested as a suitable place for the proposed colony, because it is separated by escape from it is almost impossible.

The Provincial authorities feel that the Doukhobors who left the Russian sect should not be placed permanently in a penitentiary. Some base estimate of their movement, it is thought, is desirable. On Darcy Island or some similar place they would be allowed comparative liberty, and would be able to engage in agriculture. After being there for a time it is hoped they would agree to embrace Canadian institutions.

Young Scientists Startles American Chemical Society With Discoveries

Minneapolis.—The splitting of a supposedly indivisible element, hydrogen gas, in two substances, was announced to the American Chemical Society here.

It was called the "greatest scientific discovery of 1928," by Dr. Hugh S. Taylor, of Princeton University, chairman of the session.

Dr. E. F. Bleakney, a young German, who was a 17-year-old infantryman in the front-line trenches in the days of the world war, is the discoverer.

Dramatically he set his proof before the scientists. Figures compiled by the Commonwealth statistician. The corresponding estimate for New Zealand was 1,408,952, showing an increase of 16,962.

The splitting of hydrogen is the first recent mathematically by the new wave mechanics. It means that our ideas of modern chemistry will have to be re-written.

The discovery has no present commercial value, but the new world in chemistry it seems is open is very important.

Hon. Robt. Forke Says Elections May Be Held Next Spring

Winnipeg.—Within 18 months — and probably within a year—a Dominion election will be held, was the forecast of Hon. Robert Forke, Minister of Immigration, speaking before the Winnipeg Liberal Association here. The Dominion minister declared that the Liberal party would make gains in the Maritimes. Manitoba, he said, would be the keystone province.

"Why pay people to come to this country?" asked Mr. Forke. "Canada is a good enough country for people to come to of their own volition."

Fund Lost Aviator

Rescued In Northern Manitoba After Wandering in Bush For 16 Days

The Pas, Man.—After wandering 16 days in the wilds of northern Manitoba, during which time an intense search by air and land was made for him, C. P. Mews, young aviator, was discovered by V. Partridge, airman, some 20 miles west of Oxford House, and has been rescued, had virtually abandoned hope of finding him.

Mews is little the worse for his experience. He is somewhat thin and haggard, having lived principally on berries, but is reported to be in good health at the moment, and he expressed confidence that he could have made his way to Oxford House, where Partridge picked him up. His clothes were in tatters as a result of scrambling through the bush.

The youthful flier, who is a pilot for the Northern Aerial Mineral Exploration Company, was last seen on April 24, when forced to land near Knee Lake owing to lack of fuel. He remained with the machine for two days, hoping that his companions would be able to spot him from the air and come to his assistance.

When aid did not arrive, Mews decided to set out for Oxford House 70 miles as the crow flies from the place he was forsaken. He landed. The bush, however, is very thick throughout that territory and the country is marked with lakes, making travel by foot extremely hard. It is estimated that he made but two hundred miles in attempting to reach his goal.

Meantime planes were sent out to find him but the search proved a long took up his trail, being guided by occasional food-tracks and plucked berry bushes. Mews was not found the Indians were only 12 miles behind him, and probably would have joined him in two days' time if he had not been seen from the air.

STATE CONTROL SUGGESTED FOR BROADCASTING

Ottawa. — Radio-broadcasting in Canada should be controlled and operated by the Government, recommended Hon. P. J. Cardin, minister of marine and fisheries.

The minister would have somewhat similar relations to the Dominion Government as the Canadian National Railways has, but would be distinct from that organization. It would have 12 members, three representing more particularly the Dominion Government, and one representing each of the provincial governments. The members of the commission were Sir John Aird, Toronto, chairman; Charles A. Bowman, Ottawa, and Dr. Augustin Frigon Montreal.

The recommendations provide that the task of supplying the programs would fall upon the provincial representatives of the company.

The present owners of broadcasting stations would be reimbursed or recompensed when their plants were taken over or dismantled. The existing stations would be given preference in the future, or more likely there will be a uniform commission for both classes. He urged creation of a new mode of dress which would incorporate the advantages for both

ANGLO-AMERICAN NAVAL ACCORD EXPECTED SOON

London, Eng.—Official announcement that Premier Ramsay MacDonald would sail on September 28, for the United States, to visit President Hoover, was hailed here as definite evidence that the two governments had virtually reached an agreement upon naval disarmament

Well-informed circles indicated that a question involving three members of the eight-inch class is the principal point upon which full accord has not been reached.

The developments came swiftly after a conference between Mr. MacDonald and Charles G. Dawes, United States Ambassador. Just previous to this conference, messages had been made that the United States' answer to the latest British proposals had been received in London. It was assumed that General Dawes carried this answer to No 10 Downing Street, when he called on Premier

The two were closeted for an hour The official date for Mr. MacDonald's sailing was announced immediately after the Ambassador had departed

It was just such conversations" as this it is here marked the discussions when the Ambassador dashed from the steamer which carried him to England and had his initial meeting with Mr MacDonald at Lossiemouth in June 10. By the time Mr. Dawes left certain preliminary conclusions had been reached which were tentatively submitted to Washington The next meeting between the United States capital completed what many believed was the most important step for agreement

PLANTING TULIPS

The correct time to plant tulips is when the bulbs are ripe the ground is cool and the bulbs to hand which, in the prairie may be any time between August and freeze-up. However, as in garden practice the position reserved for tulips is usually occupied by summer flowering plants, the operation has to be deferred until these are frozen or out of bloom. In general, is in October. At this time some well developed masses should be due in to supply the final requirements of the bulbs and the surrounding crop of flowers.

The garden today has many former groups, each of which has characteristics requiring consideration when planting, but, for the purpose of this article a brief reference to the three most popular, namely, the Early Single, Early Double, and the Darwin, may suffice. It must be asserted that the tulip is most effective when in masses of distinct color, so that flowery beds and small borders should be planted with one, or at the most two, contrasted or blended colors.

At the Morden Experimental Station the Early Singles are planted in a sheltered border in patches varied in shape and of a size to fit the number of bulbs of each variety, each patch being distinct in outline and facing into the whole. After the ground is marked out in the desired form the bulbs are placed in position four inches apart on the margin of the patch, afterwards filling in the centre at the same distance in rows nine inches apart. All the bulbs being laid out, planting begins by the operator starting at one end of the border facing the bulbs and with a trowel, burying each four inches below the position it occupied on the surface.

The Early Double Tulip can be treated in a similar manner, but its blossoms period on the Prairies is later and not so synchronous with the flowering out season and for this reason is better planted alone. Blooming from the first to the third week in June, the flowers are perhaps the most desirable of all the tall stems and rich pastel shades of colour make them great favorites for room decoration and this accounts for why they are better planted in some part of the garden where the effect will not be marred by the gradual deterioration of the best flowers, as the temptation to cut them is always irresistable strong growing plants with strong sometimes two and a half feet high require planting not further apart in rows three inches distant from each other. They are also very effective when planted in small groups in the perennial border.

When the ground is slightly in the hill, a six-inch covering of straw or stable litter will be a protection from the vagaries of winter and early spring.

Wm. Godfrey, Dominion Experimental Station Morden, Man.

Hunting Season Off With A Bang

Fair Bags on Opening Day

Hunters of all descriptions returned to their favorite haunts in the wee small hours of Monday morning, and even camping out in remoter spots overnight, and daylight and ducks galore were greeted with a mighty barrage as the 1929 shooting season was ushered in.

Good shooting spots within easy reach of town are few this season, all sloughs and stirings of small inked, where flights used to be good being dried up, and those who had to be back for work at 8 a. m. contented themselves for the most part with the easier lakes and road and weed on the river. The guns at the coulees were as numerous as the ducks shot; the birds were numerous but the flight was "a mile hitch." The river shooters were more fortunate as a rule, the ducks on the lakes being too onto and more scattered. Bags reported around town were small for the most part, groups of two, three and four mirards coming in with bags varying from 6 to 20 birds

"The greatest apple crop in the history of Nova Scotia," is the almost unanimous opinion expressed by prominent fruit growers and Government experts of the province. It is estimated the crop will reach 2,500,000 barrels, at least half a million barrels more than any o her crop ever raised in Nova Scotia.

In preparation for the opening of the 1929 Mg pheasant hunting season in New Brunswick, 25,000 numbis licenses have been sent out from the Department of Lands and Mines to 300 vendors in all parts of the province.

"I am watching with the greatest interest the progress being achieved in the United States where railways are experimenting in the use of aeroplanes as adjuncts to their railway service," said E. W. Beatty, chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, interviewed at Toronto recently. "There they are using planes to drop in certain places and rail travel by night and the experiments are very interesting to me," the president added.

Determining Period of the Year Most Important For Land To Receive Normal Precipitation

Opinion differs as to the period of the year in which it is most important for the land to receive normal precipitation in order that moisture reserves may be adequate for the growing crops. Recently a detailed study has been made of 18 representative districts over the prairies during the last 12 years, and certain conclusions arrived at on the basis of these 156 instances.

Out of 62 occasions, when Fall and Winter precipitation was normal or above normal, in 19-instances fair to heavy stands resulted irrespective of the moisture condition following after, which in 43 cases was below normal. Fall and winter deficiency was made up by above normal spring and summer rains in only 20 out of 74 occasions.

On the other hand, on the 47 occasions when below normal fall and summer rainfall was preceded by above normal fall and winter precipitation, the resulting crops were fair to heavy.

The evidence would seem to point to the fact that the value of winter moisture gives no guarantee of a good crop, still it is a most important factor and makes probable a good yield.

An examination of last fall and winter precipitation records reveals that there was need of a rainfall, this spring considerably above normal if crop prospects were to be regarded in any way as favorable. From September, 1928, to March, 1929, the average rain and snowfall was appreciably less than the normal, not a single weather reporting district receiving its quota.

Coupled with inadequate subsoil moisture came an unusually dry spring and summer, when April was the only month which received expected normal, while the two critical months, June and July, were two-thirds and a little over one-half of normal respectively.

So far as the present crop is concerned, it required an unusually large amount of spring and summer rainfall which did not come. The results of this lack are now evident.

Advantage Of Rough Seas

Determines Whether Person Is Sane, Says Medical Inspector

There is nothing like a sea voyage —that is a good rough and tumble passage—to determine whether or not you are crazy. This was a declaration of the immigration inspect recently by Dr. Page, Chief Medical Inspector of Immigration.

Dr. Page points to experience to justify his opinion. This season a dozen immigrants who were apparently normal on examination and underwent the medical examination before they did so, were turned back to this side because of developing mental derangement during or in sequence to the voyage.

Dr. Page casts no reflection on the examination overseas and the efficiency of the staff there but says that often a rough sea voyage will upset the mental equilibrium and leave it upset. It is a fine test, he said, and he is inclined to recommend it to those who are not quite sure of themselves.

Why She Was Satisfied

It was necessary for taxation purposes to decide on which side of the Canadian and United States border a farm which an elderly lady had just purchased, actually lay. Surveyors finally announced that the farm was just on the American side of the border. The lady smiled with relief. "I'm so glad to know that," she said. "I've heard that winters in Canada are often terribly severe."

Canada's North Country

Railways Lold In Wilderness Justifying Optimism Of Pioneers

Running north between North Bay and Cochrane and then on eastward towards Winnipeg, one looks from an observation car to see marsh and muskeg and the hungry, tender trees standing in stark ugliness against the sky. Contemplating it all, one marvels at the courage of the men who laid steel along such wastes, at the fortitude of the men who first went into such a wilderness. Yet this country, ugly and so seemingly useless, promises to become one of the richest portions of Canada. The story of what it has yielded and promises to yield in minerals, in gold and silver, copper and nickel, is known to all. And now comes word of the discovery of rich coal deposits in the Abitibi River, in the Mackamith Rapids area north of Cochrane. Coal is promised to be added to the rest of this province's riches.

Providence, truly, has been good to Canada. We have one of the great granaries of the world; a diversified climate that permits us to raise most anything that we need; some of the world's greatest forests, and mines and rivers that thrive with fish; mines that yield fabulous wealth; mighty water powers; millions of acres of rich soil. And we are only upon the threshold of development. The great north country, ignored until recent years, promises to open up possibilities undreamed of by the most sanguine optimist less than a decade ago.—Ottawa Journal.

Could Learn From Canada

Australia Would Follow Example Of Dominion In Dealing With Strikes

The Bulletin, Sydney, Australia, says:—

Canada doesn't go in for compulsory trade-unionism or trade-wage commissions, or arbitration courts, or anything like that. It believes that the best Government, meddles as little industry the better for both employers and employees; and as warrant for its belief it can point to prosperous industries, recent wage increases in many trades, low unemployment returns, and comparative freedom from strikes. In 1927 the number of disputes was 79, the number of workmen involved 23,822, and the number of working days lost 160,386. Australia, with its expensive apparatus of industrial tribunals had 641 strikes, 200,757 involved employees, and 1,751,561 lost working days in that same year. In short, Canada is beating us badly, and we ought to be too proud to let Canada beat us beating us. We are proud to learn from its example.

To Have New Industry

Western Foundries, Ltd., Building Factory At Lethbridge

The Western Foundries, Ltd., with a capital of $100,000, has purchased four acres of land in the Canadian Pacific Railway industrial section at Lethbridge. Work has already commenced on the buildings. The Company proposes to manufacture highway machinery, mining and oil drilling equipment, soil pipes, cast iron water pipes, and brass, aluminium and bronze castings. It is understood that supplies of pig iron will come from the Pacific coast, coke from Michel, and moulding sand from the Lethbridge district.

Saskatchewan turkey exhibits at the Toronto Royal this fall, it was announced, will have the advantage of the supervision of the well-known exhibitor, R. H. Stapleton, who will accompany his own birds to the show and who offered to look after the birds of other Saskatchewan exhibitors.

The executive drew up recommendations in regard to the holding and inspection of turkeys for submission to the Department of Agriculture.

Grading Of Market Hogs

Department Of Agriculture, Ottawa, Has Issued New Hand Book

The grading of hogs has gone through several stages, each change bringing the grading system into more nearly perfect relationship with the conditions and needs of the industry. The grades, which are now nine in number, and designated as Select Bacon, Bacon, Butchers, Heavies, Extra Heavies, Lights and Feeders, Roughs, Sows, and Stags, are clearly defined in a new pamphlet No. 60, of the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa. The grading of the hogs is done by official graders at stock yards, abattoirs, and at such other points as may be found necessary from time to time. New buying grading points or centres may be established on the recommendation of a provincial swine breeders' or provincial producers' association who find that the centres already in operation do not adequately serve the territory in question. The utmost care has been taken by the Live Stock Branch of the Department of Agriculture, to meet every emergency that may reasonably arise in order to give effect to proper grading, which at all times gives due consideration to the rights of hog raisers. VISITOR FINDS CLAN-DONALD FARMERS HAPPY

None Wish to Leave, Commerce Delegate States

"The most impressive sight I have witnessed in Canada," stated the Hon. Vair Morgan, who is a delegate to the Canadian Chambers of Commerce convention on his return to Edmonton from a visit to the Chadendel settlement at Vermilion.

"There is no doubt at the ultimate success of the farmers in this group of districts, the settlement at present is worst time in its history. The crop has been more or less of a failure, but in spite of this the men and women are looking forward with a great deal of confidence to the future" continued Mr Morgan.

"In short, I heard plenty of grumbling but I was all of the same opinion that the average farmer grumbles more in a case like this in the world over. The usual grumbler against the weather, poor prices for a crop and the thousand and one other topics that farmers claim for their own, came up as I visited the settlers, but in spite of the grumbling I found that the settlers as a whole were contented with their lot.

Quite Content

Asked point-blank if they would like to leave their farms and return to their homeland the heads of the families stated that they were getting hope and that they would make good. Some of the younger sons are well established. Their crops for the year are not the best, however, but these are good years to make up for the poor of all the settlers have.

In one case the answer was "We'll pay you as soon as we get our crop in the year or Liverpool. I would be in receipt and bear no farm report of Mr Morgan.

I am convinced the settlement as a whole is established will be the medium of the future prosperity of the district. Under adverse conditions such as the settler has a real chance to make good.

A feature of the settlement that appealed to me was the amount of interest taken in the same by the people. During my tour of Canada I have been surprised that the branch of farming is not more indulged in. It is inconceivable to me that farmers should neglect this important branch of the farming industry and rely entirely on their grain crops for revenue. To me it would appear that the scarcity of the industry rests in the development of the mixed farming," continued Mr Morgan.

It was a revelation to me to see this colony. It is the most complete settlement effort I have ever seen. Everything possible has been done for the welfare of settlers. Churches have been built, a convent and an hospital provided, in fact there is nothing to be added that would in any way add to the general comfort of the settler.

"I am greatly impressed with this scheme and will endeavor to interest other schemes of a like nature when I return to England concluded Mr Morgan.

Output of creamery butter in Saskatchewan for the first six months of the year is exactly 66% greater than for the similar period in 1928, according to a report of the dairy branch of the provincial department of Agriculture in the first half of 1928 it was 6,176,944 as against 4,316,360 pounds in the first half of 1928

Dairying In Western Canada

Butter Being Made In Saskatchewan To Study Production Costs

A dairy survey of the province of Saskatchewan is being undertaken under the auspices of the provincial government. The problem set is to determine the cost of producing milk and butter fat on Saskatchewan farms, both on those where dairying is a major activity producing milk for the city trade, and those where it is conducted as a side line, and cream is sold for butter-making purposes, or dairy butter is manufactured on the farm.

It is generally believed that a study of production costs will show up strongly different degrees of efficiency, and will encourage farmers who have not made dairying pay in the past to attempt it with somewhat improved methods, or with better foundation stock for the future.

Dairying, and other branches of mixed farming are frequently recommended to farmers as insurance against disaster when short grain crops occur. Those familiar, however, with farm practice, point out that in years of drought livestock may be a burden instead of a blessing, and that some very large losses have occurred in the past by farmers who have been forced to sell their stock owing to lack of available feed, or have tried to carry their stock along on purchased feed. But in years when grain prices are low, or where grain has been lowered in grade by rust or frost, livestock often give a much better return for grain fed than the market will give.

The increasing tendency toward mechanization of farms, results in a trend toward larger farm units, the employment of less labor, and to a considerable extent the reduction of activities outside of straight grain-growing. This has been part of the causes for the somewhat reduced dairy production of Saskatchewan during the past few years. To what extent it is possible or desirable to interrupt this trend, and to what extent, and in what districts farmers should be encouraged to diversify their efforts, is a problem which has by no means been definitely settled. The information which the dairy survey will reveal will probably lead to a much clearer idea on the subject.—The Financial Post

Tourist Traffic Increasing

First Six Months Showed Larger Number Of Cars Came Through B.C. Ports

Approximately 9,000 more tourist cars entered Canada from the United States via British Columbia ports during the first six months of 1929, than during the corresponding period of 1928, according to the Trade Commissioner, of Vancouver. His report shows that the increased number of cars carried 30,000 more passengers this year than during the first six months of 1928.

Beauty Of Emerald Lake

The beauty of Emerald Lake in Yoho National Park, British Columbia, lies in the peculiar colouring of its waters and the charm of its thickly wooded shores. Its waters are of a prevailing emerald in colour, and in their crystalline depths it is said one may count twenty shades of green at one time but never one of blue. A complete border of jade green forest adds to the loveliness of the scene

Fish Cannery For Manitoba

According to the "Canadian Fisherman," a fish cannery is being proposed to pack the fish products of the Manitoba lakes. It is also reported that efforts are to be made to utilize the large available quantity of coarse fish and fish offal from the Manitoba fisheries in fertilizer and stock feed manufacture.

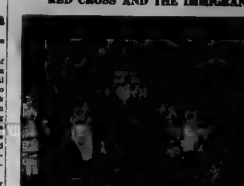
RED CROSS AND THE IMMIGRANTS



The strangers within the gates have their first impression of Canadian hospitality in the welcome prepared for them by the Red Cross Society, at the ports of Quebec, St. John and Halifax. Here, beautifully equipped nurseries provide for weary women and travel-stained children, a haven of rest.

The kindly service of a friendly cup of tea to the adults and milk and biscuits to the little ones, expresses in a simple yet gracious manner, Canada's welcome to her future citizens.

The Red Cross nurses, register the names of all immigrants, and by means of an admirable system of follow-up, the settlers are put in touch with their provincial Red Cross in the province of their adoption. Thus the peace time program of Red Cross friendships and health service is begun.

Grateful letters of appreciation from settlers in the far flung outposts, go to prove that there is no greater act of courtesy to a New Canadian than that of the hearty hospitality for which the Society's Red Cross Nurseries are famous.

Advocates Exercise For Eyes

Would Be Of Great Benefit Says Member Of Mayo Clinic

Exercise for the eyes was advocated by Dr. Charles Sheard, chief of the physiological optics at the Mayo clinic, Rochester, Minn., in an interview recently. The doctor said "setting-up exercises" for the morning would benefit the eyes as much as they do the body. "eye-rolling" being specially recommended—that is, rolling eyes sideways and upward.

Dr. Sheard said: "The eyes are as lazy as any part of the body and need exercise. Like other parts, also, they can adapt themselves to the need of the modern world." He said the "movies" were not injurious to the eyes. The motor car, though brings with it a strain on the eyes, which was not known in the old days of the horse. "Driving a car is a continual strain on the eye," the doctor said, "but people are less tired driving now than they used to be, and there is no appreciable harm done. The short-sighted driver is often safer than the man who takes long chances."

Result Of Organization

Orkney Islands Have Profited Greatly Through Co-Operative Marketing

An excellent example of what can be accomplished by organization comes from the Orkney Islands. Last year, from that northern outpost of the Empire, 2,800,0000 dozens of eggs were exported, the value being more than twice the total valuation of the country. This represents an increase of more than half a million eggs compared with the previous year. In most matters associated with the farming interest, the people of these remote islands are well abreast of the times. For a number of years past they have profited much through the co-operative marketing of their produce

Phoenicians Were Pioneers

First People Known To History To Use Artificial Teeth

The first false teeth known to history were worn by a woman of Sidon, in Phoenicia, about 300 B.C., according to Dr. Ray L. Woodhull known anatomist. The Phoenician woman's jaw, with the false teeth, is now preserved in the Louvre, in Paris. The two right incisors are represented by artificial teeth, held in place and bound to each other by gold wire. The wire has been drawn through careful perforations in the artificial teeth.

Although the Egyptians pioneered in treatment of many diseased conditions of the body, this sort of dental replacement apparently was never devised by Egyptian physicians. Thousands of mummies, representing seven thousand years of life in Egypt, have been examined but no clear evidence of such repair work has ever been found. It appears that we not only owe our alphabet, and numerous geographic discoveries to the restless, inquiring minds of the Phoenician, Dr. Moodie points out, but also we are indebted to them for this entrance into prosthetics, which is a particularly valuable field of dentistry.

Manitoba's Good Production

Figures coming with good production in Manitoba during 1928, just published by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, show a total nearly double that of the other productions of the eleven preceding years. The output in 1928 was 19,213 fine ounces, valued at $409,371, while the output for the eleven years, 1917-27, was 9,339 fine ounces, valued at $211,-683.

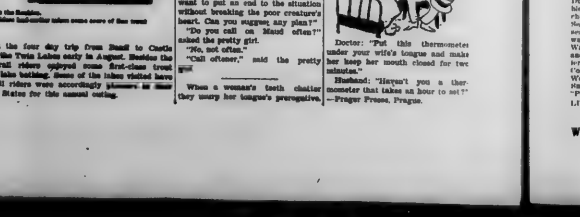
Trail Riders in Rockies



1—Resting at the foot of Mount Ball on Bracket Lake, a spot seldom visited by the fraternity.
2—Fish and scenery looking in a glacier-fed lake from which the boulder backdrop makes some more of the trail riders.
3—Riding on a shelf-like cow across thousand foot high.

Over a hundred members of the Order of Trail Riders took the four day trip from Banff to Castle Mountain Bungalow Camp, via Healey Creek, Bracket Lake and the Twin Lakes early in August. Besides the glorious scenery, the exhilarating air and the life in the open, the trail riders equipped some first-class trout fishing, and some of the hardier ones even took in a little glacier-fed lake bathing. Some of the lakes visited have been seldom seen by tourists in the Canadian Rockies and the trail riders were accordingly pioneers in more ways than one. The riders came from all parts of Canada and the United States for this annual outing.

Making Correct Map

Experts Are Working On Accurate Picture Of World

So few places remain unexplored that most people take for granted that modern maps give an accurate picture of the world. Yet nearly everyone has a distorted idea of the sizes of most countries and their geographical relation to each other.

The blame lies in the commonly accepted map of the world which (unless still study) This flat was designed by Gerardus Mercator in 1538, and is known as the Mercator projection, or system of showing the world on a flat surface. It gives a grossly inaccurate picture, writes Karl Voight, in Popular Science Monthly for September.

For instance, the United States appears nearly twice as large as Brazil, although in reality it is smaller. North America is shown as about twice as large as South America, though they are approximately equal in size. Greenland is shown as being larger than Australia, and yet Australia is more than three times as large as Greenland!

The trouble with the Mercator map is that it was designed as a chart for sailors rather than as an accurate picture of the world.

As a result of five years' work, experts of the U.S. Department of Commerce have just completed a correctly-proportioned flat map of true areas and distances. Every square inch on the new map stands for exactly the same number of square miles as each other square inch. Distances along the lines paralleled to the equator are accurate and true to scale. So also are distances on each vertical meridian that extends through the centre of a continent. There is some slight distortion in distances elsewhere on the map, but it is vastly less than on the old Mercator projection.

Geographers who have examined the new map have predicted that it will take the place of the old map for all things except navigation.

Amusements Secondary

Work Is Only Justification For Existence Of Man

Work is really as much a necessity to a man's well being as eating and sleeping. The neglect of work has also its penalty deterioration of character. Work is too often regarded in the light of a punishment — an evil which has to be endured, unless happily it can be avoided. Work is a supreme good. It is the most lasting pleasure. The knowledge of work well done "makes music at midnight!" Carlyle, speaking of industry, says: "Work is the cure for all the maladies and miseries of man — honest work, which you intend getting done."

The amusements of life can never be regarded as anything more than secondary or even tertiary. Work is the real fun, and it is the only justification for one's existence. When a person has come to feel that work is worship, and idle amusement the only thing worth considering, he has really lost his soul.

World's Grain Exhibition

More than $200,000 will be awarded in prizes at the world's grain exhibition and conference to be held in Regina in 1932, if the present plans and classification prize list are adhered to. These were drawn up at a meeting of the executive recently. There is an appropriation of $70,000 to prize wheat.

During the present year there are only 84 days on which the banks are open all over the world.

As Big as Himself

Of course the little fellow in the picture trying to hold this ten-pound steelhead trout, did not do much towards catching him. It took his father 45 minutes to land this fighter which was taken with a black gnat on the Stamp River, Vancouver Island, on a July morning. July, August and September are the best months, and the river is located in the Alberni District on the west coast of Vancouver Island, about 140 miles from Victoria, easily reachable by Canadian Pacific Railway.

Newest Automatic Salesman

One Machine Makes and Sells Hot Cakes With Syrup

A dark young man with a restless eye sauntered into a store in Newport and Broadway, New York. Walking up to a change machine he was interested by the directions that if he dropped a quarter in a certain slot, five nickels would be delivered below. The dark young man drew something from his pocket and inserted it hastily at the slot indicated.

The change machine accepted the disk with a non-committal click. Instead of disgorging five nickels, it dropped an iron washer into the delivery cup, and from within the cabinet a stern voice spoke: "Please use good coins only!"

For a moment the young man regarded the machine with sagging jaw, then he took the rejected washer and beat a hasty retreat. His small-time fraud was exposed by the latest machine to join the ranks of the army of robots now serving the American public, writes Frederic Tisdale in the September Popular Science Monthly.

Increased demand for, automatic salesmen has brought 250 manufacturers into the market. They produce almost 400 different machines. The first robots had scant vocabularies, contenting themselves with a hearty "thank you!" Now the thanks is often followed by the trade slogan of the product sold. One machine will speak its short piece 10,000 times before wear makes necessary a fresh record.

A robot that rivals the blond lady who stands in the restaurant window and deftly flips hot cakes has been produced by one inventor. The automatic wheat cake vendor, electrically operated, has a magazine which will accept enough dough for a hundred cakes at one servings. A quarter dropped into the slot entitles the customer to four wheat cakes, and starts a fascinating series of operations. One by one the portions of batter drop on the hot plate. When one side is brown an automatic flipper turns the cake. The machine supplies syrup.

Even gasoline is now sold by machine.. The slot takes fifty cents. An adjustment allows the owner to set the amount according to the days' price. At one of the amusement beaches near New York, an automatic machine sells fifty different commodities by means of mechanical robots. Broadway has a "Rodamat" in which eleven machines sell loganberry juice, root beer, orangeade and the like.

A Good Suggestion

Captain Robert Dollar, of San Francisco, said at the Willard to a Washington correspondent, apropos of a bumptious politician's defeat:

"He was taken down neatly, like the conceited ass in the anecdote. This ass said to a pretty girl:

"You know Maud Travers? Well, the poor thing's all broken up over me, I like her, of course, but I could never love her—oh, no, never. I'm very sorry for her, though, and I want to put an end to the situation without breaking the poor creature's heart. Can you suggest any plan?"

"Do you call on Maud often?" asked the pretty girl.

"No, not often."

"Call oftener," said the pretty girl.

Growing Pure Seed Grain

Careful and Painstaking Work In Growing Seed Grain

No good seed grain can be grown grain without working over his fields and seed plots, to remove the impurities of "rogues" which he may find in the growing grain. This removing of impurities is called "roguing."

At the present time it is practically an impossibility to grow pure seed grain without carefully and painstakingly going over every foot of the area set aside for seed, and picking out the odd bearded heads from the bald main crop. Even where the seed crop is very good and no really outstanding impurities can be noticed, the careful grower goes over the plots to remove the plants which are not quite up to the high standard set for good seed.

The easiest way to "rogue" a seed plot is to walk down the seven-inch path between the drills, and carefully scrutinize all the heads which become visible in each of the three or four drills on each side of the path being followed. By walking slowly and carefully, and noting the heads in the six or seven rows as you pass along, all impurities or abnormalities can be quickly detected, and the offtype plants can then be pulled up by the roots. If the plot is particularly bad, turn about and come back on the same row, and in this way a number of off-heads may be found on the return trip.

Another way this the seeder is often run back on the wheel mark, which leaves a 14-inch path down, which is then harrowed in the fall for roguing purposes. However, if the fields are dirty with weeds, it is often a better plan to have such a place to harbor and produce weeds.

By carefully going over the seed plot, and once again just before the grain ripens, most of the impurities can be easily spotted and removed before harvest.

The seed plots which are thus carefully "rogued" in the manner explained above will contain clean seed, and subsequent crops should be pure and cause less trouble at harvest time, than the old, uncared for seed supply.—By J. G. Carl Fraser Ottawa.

A Versatile Animal

Dairy Cow With Aid Of Chemist Produces a Number Of Things

Sang Stevenson of his truly bovine companions: "The friendly cow, all red and white, I love with all my heart; she gives me cream with all her might, to eat with apple tart." She also gives, unless the Federal Dairy Research laboratories are spoofing, cuff links, dominoes, dice combs, cigar-holders, pipe-stems waterproof glue, radio parts, leather finish, paint, paper sizing and spectacle frames. That is, if we include all those products with the aid of the chemist, who takes a quantity of skim milk or whey, does a few things to it and has a nice batch of casein it is this substances which can be molded and hardened and mixed with other materials to make the various products announced by the laboratories.

Such resourcefulness in an humble domestic animal is to be highly commended, but the ingenuity of the Swiss Family Robinson appear dull and obvious. With the family cow for milk and butter, fuel for curs castaways on desert isles should lack for nothing —St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Our Clay-Working Industries

The clay-working industries in Canada are engaged chiefly in the manufacture of heavy clay products such as brick, structural tile, drain tile, and salt-glazed ware such as sewer pipe. Surface clays of glacial origin, which are widespread over the country, are used at most of the plants; but shales from several geological horizons are also employed to a considerable extent.

120 MORE ELEVATORS

Facilities at Vancouver More Than Doubled in Present Year

Investment in Alberta wheat pool elevators now stands at $6,000,000, according to information just released by pool officials.

A contract was let this week for a new elevator at Warwick, north of Vegreville, and when completed this will bring the number of elevators operated by the pool to 135, with a total capacity of 16,350,000 bushels.

During the past spring and summer the Alberta pool increased the number of its country elevators by 120, of which 45 were built and 75 purchased from other elevator companies.

The capacity of the Alberta pool terminal elevator at Vancouver is being doubled this year. Two other terminal elevators are being leased from the Government, one at Prince Rupert and one at Vancouver, the company states.

The capacity of the three terminal elevators is now 4,500,000 bushels, as follows: Prince Rupert, 1,350,000 bushels; Vancouver No. 1, 2,250,000 bushels; Vancouver No. 2, 1,860,000 bushels.

70 New Settlers Clandonald Colony This Year

Some 70 new settlers families, principally miners and their families from the north of England—have been settled in the Clandonald district this year, states Father McDonnell, who is back in Edmonton after a trip to the old country.

These settlers came here in the spring of this year, April, May, and June and are all now settling down and making good progress on their farms.

Many of the men had the advantage of some little farm training in England before coming to Alberta but all have taken hold in real earnest and are doing their best.

They were brought to Clandonald under the auspices of the Scottish Immigrant Aid Society, for whom Father McDonnell is a special immigration agent.

SEVENTH SEASONAL CROP REPORT

Issued by the Department of Agriculture, Government of Alberta, Edmonton, Sept 14, 1929

Threshing is fairly well advanced throughout the province, and grain in many cases is yielding higher than was anticipated. Threshing has been resumed in most districts after a short period of unsettled weather which delayed operations to some extent, and with continued good weather will be completed somewhat earlier than was the case last year.

From the reports received it is estimated by the Department that the average wheat yield for the province will be between 18 and 19 bushels per acre. This is as close as the estimate can be made with any degree of accuracy until further returns are received from the threshermen throughout the province. The above figures are based on early returns which have already come in.

According to an estimate arrived at jointly by the Department of Agriculture and the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, the wheat acreage in Alberta this year has been placed at 7,-42,796 acres.

A very satisfactory feature of the present season's crop is the high quality of the majority of the wheat being threshed, many districts report that a large percentage of No. 1 and No. 2 is coming cased, although a grade has been reduced by the presence of green kernels, but in very few cases is the grade below No. 3.

It is apparent from the reports that there will be a shortage of seed oats available for next year's crop in some districts in the central parts of the province, but it is believed this demand can be met satisfactorily by other sections of the province where a heavier yield of the coarse grains is being threshed.

Negotiations have been under way between the Alberta Government and the railway companies respecting the free shipment of hay and feed oats into those districts where the crop is short. These negotiations have now been completed and the plan will be in operation after September 15. Farmers interested in taking advantage of this arrangement are asked to communicate with the Department of Agriculture where full information is available.

A careful survey made by the field representatives of the Department in districts that are comparatively small amount of hay will be required as every available source has been made use of and the dry weather has permitted the cutting of hay on many sloughs which were previously flooded. The amount required will, of course, depend on the length and severity of the winter. There has been quite a demand for feed oats in the area most severely affected by the drought

Death Dealing Toxin

Dreadful Possibilities Of Use in Warfare Is Explained

The dreadful possibilities of a certain death dealing toxin in war that was mentioned by Professor Leonard Hill, in an address to the Sanitary Inspectors' Association, at Lowestoft, [illegible]

Professor Hill called attention to "a certain bacilli which shall be nameless, but is easily cultivated.

"If man were as susceptible as guinea pigs are to the toxin produced by this bacillus and there is reason to think they are, it would appear that one grammme, or about a salt spoonful of the dry toxin would suffice to kill a million persons."

Prof. Hill said that the toxin acted if inhaled or if it touched the eye as a powder. He asked the question: "Supposing if men set out to prepare such a toxin and to scatter it by aeroplane, what would be the use of the panoply of war."

Infra-Red Rays

Can Be Used For Penetrating the Deepest Fog

Infra-red rays, the "invisible light" with which the camera peers far into impenetrable fog, now brings to view tiny, living objects that hitherto escaped detection by the microscope. One of these rays in medical photography was described to the thirteenth International Physiological Congress at Harvard Medical School by Ivan Bertrand and L. Justin-Besancon, of Paris. Infra-red is a longer wave length than red, the most lengthy visible ray. It is an intervening step between light and heat.

The Frenchmen exclude all visible light from the photographic plate which is especially sensitized to the infra-red emanations. They said that because of the extra length these rays penetrate into and reveal some of the outer portions of living cells. They described photography in a kidney study that revealed organisms entirely missing in the microscopic examinations by the eye."

Visit Of Sir John Martin-Harvey

Again Coming To Canada With Own Well-Known Plays

Who will ever take the place Sir John Martin-Harvey has won for himself in many visits to Canada? the thought arises from his announcement that on this tour, during which he will be seen at The Grand Theatre, Regina, on November 4, 5 and 6, he will make his farewell appearance as Sidney Carton in "The Only Way." In this role, in this splendid drama, Sir John has built up through many years a reputation that is probably unique in stage history. To the confirmed theatregoer the final speech of this ne'er-do-well lawyer in this powerful as well known as the soliloquies of Hamlet, and all because Sir John brought his great ability to a part that could be less than mediocre in the hands of an actor of ordinary rank and merit. It truly to be regretted that Sir John has decided to end Sidney Carton, for end it is, as there is unlikely to be anyone in this generation who will revive the role to the satisfaction of those who have seen the greatest of Sidney Cartons.

Sir John has made another of his surprising moves in adding for this tour "Romance" to his repertoire. This rare piece is a romantic drama of 1837, that makes an appeal to everyone. It is the story of the wholesome love of Sir Jasper Thorndyke, 40, for a young girl. It abounds in humor, pathos, and the general beauty associated with the gentle, kindly age it represents. As Sir Jasper, Sir John Martin-Harvey is seen at his best.

For the third play on his list, Sir John has selected a new play by Stephen. The title is "The Lowland Wolf." From the pen of Angel Guimera, the play presents Sir John in a dramatic role chance to show talents that have not been altogether displayed on his previous tours. He takes the part of Manelich, a shepherd of the mountains. The play has been translated from the Spanish language, and so powerful an appeal has been made by Manelich to the Spanish people, that they have erected a statue to him in Barcelona. In Spain he holds rank with Hamlet. This will be the first time this epochal Spanish play has been seen here, and it should prove one of the most popular in which Sir John has ever appeared. For his present tour he has engaged a splendid company, and if it should be a farewell visit it will be one long remembered.

Want To Go To Churchill

Government Besieged With Requests From People Who Have Heard The Call Of the North

The lure of the north is strong in the hearts of Canadians. Anyone doubting this should see the correspondence pouring in on the Department of Railways and Canals, asking to be allowed to go to Churchill. So flood of requests started when a news item announced that it might be possible trains would be running into that port by the end of the month.

It is rather embarrassing to the department, because at the present the only buildings at Churchill are those of the men now engaged on the dredging and the railway construction. The only food supplies there are those belonging to the government.

Hon. C. A. Dunning, minister of railways, announced that his department was preparing a statement which will be published soon explaining the whole situation there.

MALACHI FORETELLS A NEW DAY

Golden Text: "Behold, I send my messenger, and he shall prepare the way before Me."—Malachi 3:1.

Lesson: Malachi 1:1 to 4:6.

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 11. 2-10.

Explanations and Comments

The Coming Of the Lord In Judgment. verses 1-5.—In the preceding verse the prophet represents the people of Judah as complaining that the wicked please God, that God is not just in prospering them while they, the righteous, suffer. "Where is the God of Justice?" they ask. Now the prophet represents God as replying to them and encouraging them with a message of hope. Behold, I send my messenger." The word "Malachi" means "my messenger"; it has probably become the title of the book because of its use here in this verse. "He will prepare the way before Me." Recall the words of Isaiah 40, whence this statement is probably taken. Zacharias (8.3), had promised that Jehovah would come to His temple, and our text adds that a people that He, the messenger of the covenant, who is part of the covenant agreement with His people, will suddenly come. The Day of Jesus is the subject of the Bible. Towards this point the Old Testament and the prophets and the poems of the psalmists were directed and to-Day all these are turned towards the dawn. From the dawn of a new day begin to blow silently over the earth. At first it is cool and refreshing, a day of hope and love. When we remember the light streaming that has come into human life and the Day that has flooded softly down from the manger-cradle in Bethlehem of Judea, we do not wonder that mankind has learned to date history from His birth as Jesus, and to date all events by the years before or after the Nativity of Christ."—J. E. Madyre.

"How wonderful the history of Israel victor with God! First a band of westward emigrants, then a horde of escaped slaves, then a host of conquering warriors out of the desert; then crushed and groaning into captivity; thence, after seventy years, to return with song and outburst of poetry, prophecy, and wisdom; then, after flowering in the Messiah, withered and dead down to the roots; then all that was visible crushed and ground under Rome's world empire, and scattered as dust to the winds.—that is the story of the Hebrew people. And yet inseed, gift to the world is magic, deathless, unmatched in value. Out of Israel came the moral law, prophecy, the eternal word, the Teacher of nations, the Saviour of mankind, our Exemplar and inspiration, the Word of God which liveth and abideth forever."—William Ashley Anderson.

SYNOPSIS

Al Stone, the singing waiter and song writer, at Blackie Joe's New York night club, is discovered by Marcus, the famous Broadway show producer. Al insists on helping Molly, the ballad singer, get a chance, because he loves her. Molly marries him, not loving him, and he pulls her up the ladder of fame. Meanwhile, Grace, the cigarette girl at Blackie's, who loved Al without his knowing it, is left behind. Molly has a baby. After her return to the stage her romantic interest in John Perry, Al's best friend, is revived. Al becomes part owner and master of ceremonies at the fashionable Club Bombo. On the third anniversary of their marriage he slips a jewel case under a napkin on her reserved table. Molly is her homecoming with John Perry on the way to the club. He pleads with her to throw over Al for him and suddenly kisses her.

CHAPTER XIII

Brimming over with affection, Al greeted Molly as she entered the Bombo Club. Then he turned to Perry and said, half-heartedly:

"Awfully good of you, old man, to take care of Molly while I'm working."

Perry had turned away to rest it any vestiges of Molly's face pomther still remained on that. He realized that he was safe, he turned his coat, but and stick over to a check girl and acknowledged Al's thanks with an appearance of sincere cordiality.

They passed into the main dining room. Al leading the way. As they moved toward the reserved table, bewildering and contrasting thoughts flickered through Molly's mind. What a strange whirlpool of emotions had sucked her down! She felt the light caressing kiss that Al had given her in greeting still on her lips, but behind it, and much more powerful, was the recollection of John Perry's embrace

Now Molly and John Perry were seated at the table. Al remained standing, watching his wife with intense curiosity. Why did he do that, she thought. Did he suspect something?

Al was waiting for her to lift her napkin When she leaned back in her chair and made no move to do it he pantomimed definitely for her to look under the tiny square. Molly raised the napkin, saw the jewel case and card, and gave a cry of delight

"Oh Al, this is wonderful of you!" With eyes sparkling she tenderly lifted from the padded silken interior of the case a magnificent diamond brooch. She drew it close, held it at arm's length, studied it carefully while all the time her face was radiant at her expression of delight. Then she passed it to Perry for inspection.

A moment later she was pinning the expensive brooch to her dress, while Al turned and drew the attention of the crowd toward him.

"Folks," he said, "we have with us tonight none other than Molly Winslow, the celebrated stars of the Merry-Go-Round."

Then, with a proud gesture, he indicated Molly. Rousing applause was the response of the crowd to Al's toast to the girl's popularity. But Al raised his hand.

"Wait, folks!" he cried. "You ain't heard nothin' yet."

He seized Molly's hand and pulled her unwillingly to her feet. While she stood smiling and bowing to the audience he continued

"For the benefit of those of you who don't know it already, I want to say that Miss Winton is in private life Mrs. Al Stone, and we are celebrating the third anniversary of our marriage and I want you all to congratulate us and be hanpy with us."

With that, Al suddenly slipped his arm about Molly, drew her close and kissed her. The roar of applause was deafening, twice the volume Molly received by herself. As she stood, with Al's arm around her waist, bowing again and again, there was a sudden catch in her throat that she give them a song. Molly nodded amiably.

"I'll sing you for them, honey," whispered Al

"Yes, I don't mind."

Al took her arm comfortably under Molly's and led her toward the orchestra platform The crowd settled silently, giving her every attention. At the table she had left, John Perry sat with his elbow on the table and his chin in his cupped hand, staring after her retreating figure. A vague smile played across his features When the song was finished Molly returned. Perry rose and said

"That was splendid, Molly! I never heard you in better voice. You held them in the hollow of your hand."

"Thank you, John," said Molly quickly, but with pretended indifference Then she turned to Al: "Can't you sit down and stay with us a while Must you always be circulating among the customers?"

"I'll be back in a moment," whispered Al. "You know I want to be with you every moment I can. But, after all, I'm master of ceremonies."

Molly shrugged her shoulders as he moved off. She had made her play for him to stay, but the woo was pleased he had gone off. Now she could talk to John.

"And you say you need him!" came Perry's whispered exclamation across the table.

"What do you mean?"

"Well, you heard the applause you got. You don't need him at all."

"Bah!" Molly drummed on the table-top without further words. The pink, polished nails of her white, bejringed fingers went up and down with incredible rapidity. Too many rings on those slim fingers, too many glittering gems to be in the best of taste! How stridently they proclaimed her wealth and success! Molly glanced down at the brooch Al had just given her, as it reposed against the satin bodice of her gown. A few days before she had mentioned casually that she wanted a new brooch. Now—presto!—it was here! But now, a few moments after Al had given it to her, it became just another costly ornament to add to her rich collection; the significant a of the gift was lost on her.

A half hour passed, and Al returned to the table. Another half hour, and John Perry rose to go.

"Frald so," John answered. Now he was the one who thought of excuses; he wanted to get away from there ages before his feelings so plainly before Al.

"Why?" she insisted. "I thought you'd stay with us until we left."

"Well, it's late for one thing. Besides, Molly, this is your anniversary, and Al doesn't want some time alone together."

Perry spoke with the utmost gravity, but he thought she detected a sardonic gleam in his alert eyes. He was making fun of Al, and, in a sense, of her present time there are 62,500 books available and 1,250 travelling libraries are in circulation.

Use Of Radium

Complete Potency Of Radium As a Cure For Cancer Not Substantiated

Warnings against undue optimism were sounded at the sixth annual meeting of the British Empire Cancer Campaign presided over by the Duke of York Sir Thomas Horder physician in ordinary to the Prince of Wales and physician to St. Bartholomew s Hospital In presenting the annual report said that the launching of the National Radium Fund might create in the minds of many people an unfounded belief in the complete potency of radium as a cure for cancer. Such a belief might have very unfortunate results for the patient if carried into practice in any case in which the growth was completely removable by operation In the course of time radium might come to equal or even exceed operative measures in efficiency. At present, however, it was the bounden duty of the doctor, in very many cases in his patient s interest, to overrule his antipathy to surgical measures All the same, the number of cases in which radium was applicable and the number in which brilliant results were achieved increased every year But Sir Thomas added that it was open to considerable doubt whether many of the institutions that were advertising for money to purchase radium had upon their staffs men or women qualified to use it. It might even be necessary to employ some of the money collected in providing for such training in the use of a powerful but dangerous remedy Toronto Mail and Empire

"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I was so sick every month that I had to keep my bed for two days and I suffered so that I felt badly all the time. I had been working in a factory but for a long time was not able to work as I was so run-down and nervous. My friends told me of the Vegetable Compound. I am now sound and well and have gone back to work. I have a good appetite, my color is good and I am in good spirits." — Evelyn Bourque, 122 Alma Street, Moncton, New Brunswick

Fallacies About the Moon

When Net Visible Suffers Say It Has Headache

The Dakota Indians think that the moon at its waning is eaten by mice The Polynesians believe it is devoured by the spirits of the dead The Kaffirs say that it wanes when suffering from a headache, it puts its hand to its forehead and hides the latter from our view The Eskimos imagine that the moon, harassed by fatigue, retires for a moment to take a rest and food.

A DOZEN different ways to cause a headache, but there's only one way to relieve it—get immediate relief! Aspirin is absolutely safe. It can't depress the heart. Keep it at the office, and in the home. The action of aspirin is prompt, sure and safe. Relief, Until you have a headache, colds, neuralgia or rheumatism, you need not take much aspirin. It means quick relief for millions of men and women who use it every year. And it doesn't depress the heart.

Mrs. M. L. Brimacombe, Doug and Jeff returned home on Monday after spending the summer at Mrs. Brimacombe's old home at Weirton, Ont. On the return trip they ran into snow in northern Ontario, cold steely rain at Winnipeg and more heat and cold at Saskatoon, so although days here found very ill-suited, Jeff managed to buy a suit on top through the whole journey without a cap and this will probably be a point of interest to the young boys for quite a while to come. Old times at Vermilion were met by Mr. Brimacombe another item being Mr and Mrs Clarence Baker, Mr. and Mrs Chas Pibbs, Mrs Payne, all of Toronto and Mr and Mrs Geo Rutherford, Mr. and Mrs Slater, and Miss Taylor of Winnipeg. All of them wished to convey their very best wishes to Vermilion folks, and Evan Slater mentioned especially "Bill" and "Matt"

C. N. COMMUNITY CLUB HALL TO BE ARMORY

The C. N. R. Community hall will be taken over shortly by the department of national defence for the purposes of the local squadron of the 19th R which military body was organized here a few months ago

The building was originally used as an assembly hall and for several years by the post office department. Several years ago the C N R Community club was organized and the building was rented from the department of public works for a term of years. The lease was subject to cancellation and it is learned this is now being done and that in a few weeks it will be designated as an armory for military purposes

The club elected considerable improvements on the premises and during their incumbency was the centre of all the social activities of the town. Some renovations and changes will be made for the accommodation of the military organization but it is understood the building may still be used for public entertainment, dances and so on

Royal Horses Reach Canada

"Aldebaran", Arab stallion, belonging to the Prince of Wales, and his mate "Crusader", a Clyde stallion, a recent passenger on Canadian Pacific steamship Minnedosa, are sent to the Toronto Exhibition as a break in their long journey across Canada to the Prince's ranch at High River. Aldebaran, like his royal master, is of decidedly erratic temperament and made no bones about posing for the photographer. Here is a close-up of the horse. The Prince has some highclass blood stock on his ranch and these horses with a number of others that have come or are coming over to Canada in the near future, will have an effect on breeding all through the west that will be a boon to farmers and stock raisers.

His return to town was later than that of most of the other boys in their various homes in Western Canada, as he stopped off in Toronto and visited relatives there, as well as seeing other members of his family who were visiting in the east. Marwood hasn't said much of his trip yet except that it was packed full of interest from start to finish, the ocean trip, encamped with Scouts from all over the world —inspection by the Prince of Wales, and visiting historic spots in England were some of the high lights of the journey. He will doubtless be giving an account of the trip and Jamboree activities to the local troop at the next meeting.

Ladies Of Town In Car Accident

Auto Hits Guard Rail and Up-Turns

Five local ladies, who were on their way to Kitscoty by motor to attend a Women's Institute convention to be held at that place at 2 p.m. Thursday last, met with a bad accident eight miles east of Islay when their car struck a guard rail while descending a hill and somersaulted, alighting on the highway upside down. The occupants of the car, a sedan, were Mrs W. J. Fisk, Mrs. C. Scarr, Mrs. E. Bechtel, Mrs. Croteau and Mrs. F. Fitch. Mrs. Fisk, the driver, was the first to get out through the window, which fortunately was open, and with Mrs. Scarr they were enabled to liberate the three occupants of the back seat, two of whom swooned from the shock. Though considerably bruised, Mrs. Fisk set off in an effort to get water and help and when on the point of exhaustion from fruitless efforts was picked up by Mr. Dorval, traveler for the British America Oil Co., Calgary, who was heading westward. Too much praise cannot be extended to this gentleman for his kindness and help. Not content with bringing them all back in his car to Vermilion, he insisted that they visit a doctor before going home, to ascertain the extent of any injuries received, and then took them to their several residences.

At the point where the accident occurred there is a curve in the hill, and in rounding this the steering gear in some way or other apparently failed to work, as the right front bumper struck the protecting rail of the bank, turning the car upside down. Strange to relate, the window broke, and this accounts for the miraculous escape of the occupants, as otherwise if the upturned car had not had this support they would have been pinned under with fatal results. The car was later brought back to town under its own power with a badly broken top.

Inspect 10th Car No.1 Hard Wheat

Edmonton Journal—The tenth car of No. 1 hard wheat to pass inspection here this season was included in the week's inspection of 171 cars of wheat. Of the lot, 72 cars graded No. 1 northern and 91 cars No. 2 northern.

There were 8 cars tough, 1 smutty and 1 damp, but all others graded straight. Of the wheat 95 per cent were contract grades. There were 15 cars of oats and barley inspected, making 777 cars of grain inspected in Edmonton in September to date.

Car Does Double Somersault On Main Highway

Five Occupants Are Unhurt

A 5-hour-old top ninety touring car overturned three miles east of town last Tuesday while traveling at a fair rate of speed. The car is reported to have turned completely over twice, ultimately throwing the two rear occupants of the car clear of all the (miraculously) escaping injury. The car itself was practically demolished, it is said, but was taken to a local garage where Joe said them mostly ran for mild cash and they then continued merrily on their way in spite of Edmonton where the gentlemen in question said they lived.

A. M. A. CAMPAIGN FOR MORE HIGHWAYS IS SHOWING GOOD RESULTS

The campaign being carried on by the Alberta Motor Association to better highways and more highways in this province is proving full of justification, if one but looks at what is being done both on the east and west sides.

In British Columbia, announcement was recently made of a project to build a motor highway from a point near Whitehorse, west of Prince George for 85 miles in a northerly direction to Manson Creek. Later this road will extend to Hazelton, Forks while another extension plan would see the road north as far as Dawson.

This new highway in northern British Columbia will not be completed all the way to Manson Creek this year, but a great deal of it will be done. Engineers are already on the ground and preliminary work on same is under way. This road will pass through a hardly mineralized country as well as that of scenic beauty, providing a couple of the best fishing districts in the province.

Alberta linking up with all possible speed with British Columbia in the building of automobile roads. The highway to Peace River would form the Alberta link with this new road for the coast province.

In the south it is reported that an agreement has been reached between Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, and Premier Tolmie of British Columbia, under which the road way between Golden and Revelstoke will be completed. Hon. Mr. Stewart stated recently that while this town route 90 miles longer than the original one, it would be free of the danger of snow slides. As the road will run around certain lakes in the vicinity, some heavy construction work cannot be avoided.

With this road built there will be an additional link between Alberta and British Columbia, while a big start will have been made in having a national highway across the dominion.

Saskatchewan is also going ahead this year with at least some progress in what will mean that links with Alberta will be established from the east. It all goes to prove that as the road builders arrive on the east and western limits Alberta as a province and the whole as a dominion will benefit from the highway system which should be enlarged from year to year.

CEMENT ALL RUN IN SAFEWAY STORE BUILDING

Roadway is being made at a rapid pace on the Safeway premises, final coat of the foundation cement being run at the present time and before the end of the week or so it is expected The Safeway company will be open for business at this point about December 1st.

French Bakers Celebrate

Commemorated Four Hundredth Birthday Of the Doughnut

This generation has an evident fondness for anniversaries. People write them, and seek causes for making them. Therefore, no person can object when French bakers decide to commemorate the 400th birthday of the doughnut.

The first example of the famous comestible was made in Paris in 1539. Some time later it got passage over the Channel into England, and from there made its way into household effects and other ideas to this continent.

The first doughnut, we read in the Christian Science Monitor, was shaped like a crescent. That is, of course, interesting, but is of comparatively little importance. The real thrill will come with the name of the genius who first took the idea and molded the doughnut round the vacant space

Clue To Unsolved Mystery

McMillan Expedition Finds Traces Of Frobisher's Party, Lost In 1578

A clue to an unsolved mystery of nearly 400 years' standing - the fate of five men left on Kadlunarn Island by Sir Martin Frobisher in 1578--is reported by Donald B. MacMillan on his return here from over two months' exploration voyage to Baffin Land.

On an island on Countess Warwick Sound, the famous explorer discovered an ancient stone house which the Eskimos said was the work of white men. Inside were the bones of a bear and other evidence that it had been used as a shelter. The age of the moss and other particulars pointed to the dwelling being contemporary with Frobisher

Kadlunarn was also visited and there the party found, in a very fair state of preservation, the house built by Frobisher in Queen Elizabeth's day. Digging in the earth floor, they discovered some pottery and other relics belonging to that period; also traces of the ship-ways from which the intrepid explorer launched the boats they built after their ships were crushed in by ice.

It was hitherto supposed that the five men left behind by Frobisher on one of his three voyages sought assistance to build a fort to protect the supposed gold mines and had been killed by Eskimos. Careful enquiry among the natives reveals a tradition that the white men were massacred, but built a big boat and not long after on their perilous return to England.

The relics now found by MacMillan show that they had proceeded only about fifty miles when their frail craft was crushed by icebergs and one or more escaped ashore and built the shelter in Countess Warwick Sound.

Three Year Old Makes Long Journey

Little Boy Travels Alone From Liverpool To The Pas, Man.

Albert Pilkington, aged three years, stepped off the Continental Limited in Winnipeg recently, clutching in one hand a ticket that was taller than Albert by many inches, and in the other "Bosco," a mechanical doll, who had accompanied him all the way from Liverpool. Albert, or Bert, as he insists on being called, was en route to The Pas, where his father sent him in the hot weather by an aunt upon the death of his mother. He sailed on the SS. Regina, in charge of the captain of that ship, and at Montreal was turned over to the care of George Cosgrain, Canadian National Railways conductor, who looked after him on the journey from Montreal to Winnipeg.

When the Continental Limited reached Winnipeg, Albert gravely climbed down from the train, shook hands with his friend the conductor, smiled for the photographers, and announced that he wanted an automobile ride. That was promptly accommodated, and when he boarded the train for The Pas, on the last leg of his journey, he gave his opinion that "Boats were very nice, and automobiles were even nicer, but what Bert liked best of all, was riding on a train."

This winter when Albert is in the North he will have the thrill of riding on a dog sled, but until that time the railways have a certain small and enthusiastic booster.

Survey Of Dairy Industry

Data On Dairy Cows In Saskatchewan Soon To Be Available

Making Saskatoon his headquarters in his survey of dairy industry for the province, A. W. Ashton, Director of Co-operative Economics, at Ottawa, has announced that the actual taking of records will be completed about the end of this month. Figures will then be available on dairy cows on about 550 farms in Saskatchewan. Particular care has been taken to secure a fair average of the herds.

Dr. Minner has been furnished with a staff of assistants to do the survey work by the Department of Agriculture, at Regina. Although figures as to the number of creameries and distributing milk in Saskatchewan will be ready soon, Dr. Minner does not think this will exhaust the usefulness of the data gathered. He expects the department will have further work when the data is compiled. The survey is financed from the surplus of the Canada Wheat Board of 1930, which was set aside for agriculture research.

Painless and perfect in their action, Miller's Worm Powders are always a safe and reliable remedy for children who show symptoms of worms. Their presence is easily recognized in a feverish restlessness, frequently ending in convulsions. A part of nutritious food eaten by the child after Miller's Worm Powders have been taken will remain undigested and hence are tossed up into a very healthy condition.

Research Possibilities

By Dr. H. M. Tory, President National Research Council

No one can realize what may be before us. I saw a statement made by a distinguished professor of chemistry that if we could write down the formulae for all combinations possible from a molecule containing one hundred atoms, these formulae alone would fill all the pages of all the books in the world. He was giving that as an illustration of the wide open field that lies before the chemists of this country in developing its chemical industry. Fifty years ago there was no such thing as a strictly chemical industry. Last year in Canada alone there were invented in chemical and allied industries $750,000,000 which produced $500,000,000 worth of products, while in the United States the corresponding production amounted to approximately $7,000,000,000.

Women In Airplane Factories

Are More Adept At Piece Adjustments Than Men

Much of the most exacting work in the construction of an airplane is done by women workers. Builders have found that women are most adept at shaping and sewing the fabric covers of wings and making certain delicate adjustments on the wings and struts of airplanes. Also, they are often called upon to plan the decorations of the interiors of planes built on special orders.

Major Reuben H. Fleet, president of Fleet Aircraft, Inc., of Buffalo, has many women workers in his plant. "We find that women can do the complicated work of covering the wings and assembling ribs and fitting them more accurately and in less time than men," he said.

BERRIES BLACKBERRY JAM

The seeds of blackberries are very objectionable to many, so it is well to get rid of them. Mash berries, cook in their own juice until thoroughly heated then remove seeds by pressing through a fine sieve. Measure pulp and liquid and allow one cup sugar for each pint. Add sugar to pulp and cook rapidly until thick, stirring frequently. Pack in clean, hot jars and seal.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

SEPTEMBER 29

SIGNIFICANCE OF THE EXILE

LESSON TEXT—Ezekiel 1:1-3; 3:22-27.

Golden Text: "The loving-kindness of Jehovah is from everlasting to everlasting upon them that fear Him, and His righteousness unto children's children."—Psalm 103.17.

Before the destruction of Jerusalem, the prophet Ezekiel went into exile with the first deportation, and five years afterwards he was commissioned to the prophetic office. It was a severe arraignment of the people of Israel that he was told to make to the name of the Lord. Ezekiel lived up to his responsibility. Do we live up to ours? It is one thing to have convictions, but quite another thing to have the courage of convictions. A responsibility calls for a response. Not to respond to the responsibility that rightfully belongs to one is tragedy and base.

The captivity was God's training school, where the exiles were given an opportunity to lament their rebelliousness and recognize their dependence upon Him. Jeremiah had prophesied that after seventy years were accomplished, God would visit and purify His good name through them, in causing them to return to their home. The first opportunity for return from exile came in the first year of Cyrus, King of Persia. Jehovah stirred up the spirit of his king to make a proclamation permitting any who wished to go back and build the house of Jehovah.

The chief desire of the returning exiles was to rebuild the temple and re-establish their ancient worship. It was a great day when the foundation of the temple was laid, vocal and instrumental music formed part of the ceremony, and joy reigned supreme. But while there was joy in all hearts, conflicting emotions filled the hearts of the old men who had known the glorious temple of Solomon. They were weeping as well as rejoicing. Life has many such scenes where the bitter mingles with the sweet. One of Tennyson's odes refers to a wedding as "the white funeral of single life." The foundation laying of that second temple in the midst of ruin and desolation was to the old men a "white funeral" of all the glories of the past.

Juveniles To Compete

Boys' and Girls' Swine Clubs Membership Is Necessary

More than five thousand boys and girls on Canadian farms will be taking part in the annual swine club and calf breeding contests in the various provinces this year, for which the Canadian National Railways offer prizes and trophies, it was stated recently by Dr. W. J. Black, Director of Colonization and Agriculture, of the National System. Through the stimulation of the assistance offered in this work by the railway company, in bringing the boys and girls together in annual competition, the work of the clubs has progressed rapidly, particularly with respect to calf clubs. There will be nearly 200 of these in operation this year, there being a 400 per cent. increase over last year.

Dr. Robert Newton, professor of field crops, of the University of Alberta, has been asked by the National Research Council, of Canada, to make investigation of the possible reception which would be given in Europe to a system of marketing wheat on a basis of protein content. The report will be prepared for the next session of Parliament.

Hogs Milk Shipment

Largest Consignment Of Its Kind Shipped From Aylmer To Western Canada

Seven hundred and fifty thousand cows working in high gear for one whole day could contribute just enough milk to make up a shipment which left Aylmer, Ont., on a special Canadian National Railways freight recently for the west. Product of the Aylmer Milk Powder Company, it was the largest shipment of its kind ever to leave any point in Canada, and made up a train consisting of 200 cars. There were 21,840 cases containing 700,000 cans and weighing 853 tons in the consignment which is destined to grace the tables of farm houses during coming winter. It required 1,500,000 pounds of fresh milk to make up this shipment at the largest evaporated milk plant in Canada. The product has a value of $45,000 and is pointed to as a sterling example of an extension of the dairying industry in Canada.

Although a small part of the shipment will reach the Pacific coast, it is, in the biggest part, for consumption throughout the prairie provinces.

Take Pride In Canada

Only Necessary To Travel the Length Of This Dominion To Stir Up Patriotism

Proud of everything Canadian before he took a recent trip to western Canada, Dr. C. B. Oliver, of Chatham, Ont., is even more proud of his nationality, since he has once more travelled through Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia. The more he sees of the Dominion, the prouder he is of Canada. His patriotism needs no artificial stimulus. All he requires is to see his Canada. Every citizen of this Canadian nation has a perfect right to be proud of his country. The more a person travels in Canada, the more he appreciates the wealth of this land. The more he sees the Canadian travels in other countries, the more he realizes that in Canada he can find facts and opportunities to equal anything he sees elsewhere.—Border Cities Star.

Elevators Plugged: Serious Situation For Grain Trade

Wheat Continues to Pour in; Railway Companies Worried

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Sept. 25 — Railway officials fear a serious storage situation is developing at the lakehead. Elevators at Port Arthur and Fort William are plugged almost to capacity and a total of 1,178 cars in the yards of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways, the grain storage situation at the head of the lakes today presents a very unusual aspect.

While railway companies continue to be optimistic of an early break, the grain trade generally maintains an attitude of no-business as the flow of wheat to the lakehead ports continues unabated. Railway companies reported at noon today they had 2,190 carloads at Winnipeg. About half that number are moving eastward. Five vessels were under the spouts of elevators Tuesday.

1,000 More Cars

The Canadian Pacific railway has room for about 1,000 more cars in its yards. The Canadian National could accommodate slightly over that figure, but the grain claim another week or two of fall shipping will see a serious jam in elevators.

The Saskatchewan co-operative elevators reported Tuesday that their elevators had reached the maximum in storage and that upwards of seventy cars had been laid off over the week end. Other elevators are following suit as rapidly as the loosen-leaves cooperative for lack of space.

Elevator and railway companies are starting their hope on the prospect of a rush eastward which, some claim, is in the offing but the conditions around harbors do not point to an early resumption of eastbound traffic.

Taxing Storage Cargoes

Customs and excise officials interviewed today reported vessels taking storage cargoes for delivery at the head of the lakes. This, they say, is one of the most unusual situations in the history of the trade route, and is traceable to an apparent excess of tonnage in past seasons stemmers and the storage room to, or after, the close of navigation.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 25.—No move is contemplated at present by Canada's new board of grain commissioners in connection with the grain storage situation said to be developing serious aspects at the lake head. E. R. Rawson, chairman of the board, stated this Tuesday that the commission had full knowledge of the situation, but would make no further statement.

An old farmer made a trip to the city and decided to startle the wife by appearing in brand new raiment. To make wear on the new suit he placed in the back of the wagon. A few miles from home he took off his old clothes and tossed them off a bridge into the river

He was surprised to see that the new clothes had dropped out of the wagon

Local Milk Plant Best Of Its Size In Province - Product Is Pasteurized

On invitation from Herb Stone, the proprietor, the editor made a recent visit to the new milk plant from which several hundred quarts of milk and cream are being delivered daily to the homes, hotels and restaurants of Vermilion. The products of this plant are pasteurized, the new department having commenced on September 1, when all bacteria in the milk was rendered harmless by raising the temperature to 142 degrees and holding it there for 30 minutes before cooling to a temperature of 45 degrees

If everyone could see the painstaking care exercised in the handling of the milk from the time it reaches the plant, great enough the various operations until the cases of 12 bottles each are placed in the refrigerator at the rear of the building, the public would be delivered to customers—they would be more than satisfied that Mr. Stone is putting forth 100 per cent effort to supply the people with an uncontaminated and pure product on his part. The equipment in the most modern on the market and the unsightliness, cleansing and sterilizing facilities provided are unsurpassed for a plant of this size.

The station is located in the west side of the town on the edge of the valley bank, having perfect sewerage and drainage. The water supply is obtained from the C. N. R. system with which it is connected by a pipe line. These are mentioned as being vital considerations in a sanitary milk plant. The building itself is neat and roomy, with concrete floors and drainage system. The walls are finished in hard white plaster. The construction, roofing and heating and the washing and sterilizing equipment are located in the main room, while the steam boiler has an apartment of its own, but readily accessible for steam hose connections.

Upon delivery in the plant the milk is poured into the pasteurizer through a strainer and then weighed. The pasteurizer contains an agitator. The steam is then turned on and agitator started and operated for 45 minutes, until a temperature of 142 degrees is reached which is the point at which the heat is held at this temperature for 30 minutes, when the steam is thrown in and pump started, conveying the milk through pipes and allowing it to flow over a 24-tube cooler two streams on each side and through these tubes is running the temperature of the milk to 45 degrees, which is reached when it has come from the last tube in the cooler. The bottling is carried on simultaneously. There is an eight-head bottling attachment from which at a time, shutting off automatically, and the capping automatic also. The rest. The cases are filled with the bottles as they are filled and capped, being carried where a temperature of 45 degrees is maintained. The milk bottles are labelled with a paper, being inserted in the cases following washing and sterilizing. The pasteurizer is operated by a 7½ H. P. electric motor

Cleaning Up

The bottle washer machine comprises two compartments and large tank and is operated by a 7½ H. P. motor. The bottles are placed in the washing compartment necks down over a system of small tubes through which water is forced into them by some minute thoroughly cleansing them they are then moved into the rinsing and sterilizing compartment with a similar system of tubes which carry out a process of first, rinsing, and second, sterilizing by steam at a temperature of 175 degrees. The operation is governed by automatic control valves. It is from here that the bottles are placed in cases with the aforesaid up

The general cleaning up of the milk plant is done with a hose which is now replaced by a brush wash with a solution of soda and water of 160 degrees, cleaning up all grease, etc. Then a system of brushing a similar solution is put on and over the cream is carried out the bottle being dried first. The cases and cans are given a similar treatment. Cloths and caps are provided for the employees and sterilized. A modern refrigerator is provided for the storage of milk and cream. A modern boiler is provided for the steam requirements

GIRL GUIDE NOTES

The next regular Guide meeting will be held Monday afternoon, Sept. 30th in the form of a Sing-Song. Some Patrols have been sadly depleted on account of girls moving away; the Red-wing Starlights, a banner patrol in badge work and attendance, has suffered most having Mary Shannon, Lois Whitby and Doris Lockham, all good Guides whom we miss very much.

At Monday's meeting, there will be a re-adjustment of Patrols, so all Guides should be present to vote.

Miss Alma Mix accompanied her brother Louis back to Edmonton during his recent visit here, and she is now attending Victoria high school, taking up subjects on her second year work.

ARE YOU ENTITLED TO HAVE YOUR NAME ON THE TOWN VOTERS' LIST?

During this month, which has about expired, and the month of October, applications may be made under the provisions of Section 204 of the Town Act for inclusion in the voters' list of the Town of Vermilion. This is a most important matter and the Standard is calling particular attention to it, as local notices are appearing in town papers stating who are entitled to be placed upon the list. There are a considerable number in Vermilion who are entitled to vote under the provisions given, but unless application is made during the time stated above, they will not be able to take their part in the voting, helping to shape affairs and policies as they affect the town's administration through elective representatives. Neglect to apply may be the source of future regret as big issues may develop unexpectedly in the administration of municipal and school affairs and you will have no say in them. Every town should be anxious to have the names of everyone who is entitled to vote entered upon the voters' list and use proper means of publicity to draw public attention to the matter. The following information will help you.

This section of the Act provides that the name of every male and female mother and every son and daughter of any person whose name appears upon the voters' list are entitled to be placed upon the said list (a) if he or she is resident with the said person within the town or assists him in a business in connection with which he is taxable; and (b) if he or she is of the full age of twenty-one years; and (c) if his or her name does not already appear on the roll and (d) if he or she duly makes application in accordance with this notice.

All tenants who have rented an assessed parcel for a period of twelve months immediately preceding the last day of August of this year, and who duly make application under the months of September and October are entitled to be placed upon the said list.

OLD HUNTERS! HEARKEN TO THIS

Bill Pickle, Jr., who does all his bread-cutting in the evening, took his trusty double barrel and two shells and wended red gravelward to the river to while away some time during the afternoon. A mile or so below town at Hank Hank's brought Bill 20 out of a reverie and he found himself at the side of a duck or goose with an open mouth range. Pulling the first barrel at random, nothing fell, but remembering his lack of ammunition Bill took long and steady aim and dropped the first goose of the flock with his second and last shot. We understand other hunters have up-to-date hours shooting at birds waiting for the geese to come into feed and wait in vain, so just take a tip from our hero and don't look for anything — maybe you'll have the same experience as he did.

The second annual Fair held at Mannville last week was an unqualified success. The exhibition represented the district north of the Saskatchewan river from St. Paul to Cold Lake and which is tributary to Vermilion. It is among the most fertile in Western Canada and excels in mixed farming.

Vermilion's eighth annual Fair is being held this Wednesday and Thursday. There are over 1100 entries.

EXPERTS SEEKING COLD LAKE TROUT SPAWNING GROUND

Prospecting for the spawning grounds of the lake trout in Cold Lake is still underway by a crew of men from the dominion fisheries department and there is hope that within the next few score sort of hatchery will be established, Mr. Edmonds of Ottawa, stated H. J. Walker of Ottawa, inspector of dominion hatcheries for the public provinces, who is at present in Edmonton en route to Lesser Slave Lake.

Before going ahead with plans for a hatchery at Cold Lake, it is first necessary to definitely locate the spawning grounds of the lake trout in that body of water, Mr. Walker explained. Old fishermen in Cold Lake around Sabey department officials that the lake trout exactly where the lake trout spawned, but when they actually had to point out the grounds, they reluctantly admitted that they were not sure. This resulted in the department having to undertake a thorough survey of the entire lake.

Mr. Walker stated that the Waterton Lakes hatchery, which opened this year, has proved a great success and that the department has plans of similar nature in the southern part of the province.

The last Town Crier Passes

Not so long ago, the newspaper made quite a feature of the reminiscences of the last town crier, the Town Crier. For years he had trod the streets of Provincetown, Massachusetts, ringing his bell and crying out the news and what not.

In Colonial times and during the early days of the Republic the Town Crier was a public institution. People depended on him for the latest news as well as for information regarding sales of goods by local merchants. But the newspaper and advertising media have made unnecessary years and years ago.

Today we turn to the newspapers for our news—and to the advertising columns for notes of merchandise and naturally so we do to the sports page, the home economics page, the financial page or to any one of the specialized features that make the modern newspaper an indispensable to our every-day life—and advertising is to indispensable to the news, for advertising IS news.

Advertising is the news of the commercial world and is the latest press dispatch. It tells us what and when and where to purchase to save money and bring real economy. It teaches our daily lives in thought and ways—it affects the health of our children, the happiness of our families and our own well-being.

He marries Molly Winters, a ballad singer, and makes her famous, too. She does not love him. Molly has a baby, Junior, whom Al adores. Al becomes part owner of the fashionable Club Bombo, and on the night of the third anniversary of his marriage presents his beloved Molly with a diamond brooch. He does not know that Molly, while preaching the virtue of her limousine, was ardently kissed by his friend, John Terry, who begged her to leave Al. On the way home with Al she is unmoved. When she sees Al later in the nursery bending devotedly over sleeping Junior, his baby son, her conscience bothers her. The in turn, makes her angry at Al.

CHAPTER XIV.

Al heard Molly's step and turned to embrace her. She deftly avoided his grasp, stifling the look of aversion in her eyes as she did so. At thought nothing of it; he believed she was merely anxious to avoid any noise that might wake Junior. Again he made a move as if to touch the child, but Molly caught his hand.

"Hi!" she murmured in an irritated voice. "You'll wake him. I'm tired. He might cry."

Al pretended in earnest pantomime that he had no intention of waking the Junior, but, unseen by Molly, his other hand crept toward the protruding toe of the boy. The truth was Al couldn't bear the thought of going to bed without a word or two with little Junior. So as Molly turned her self away to go to her own room Al nudged the baby's foot and smiled to himself. Junior's eyes opened sleepily to and, as he recognized his father, he murmured, "Hello, daddy."

At the gentle words Molly turned, a smile stealing over her face in spite of herself. There stood Al, pretending surprise that Junior had been awakened, but obviously delighted that it had happened. He quickly leaned over, gathered the baby to his arms and straightened up with the child held close to him. One chubby, soft arm went round his neck.

"Good boy, daddy," whispered Junior, snuggling closer "Want to come home."

Swiftly Al carried his precious bundle toward Molly, who waited, a look of indecision upon her face. She wanted to see Junior and cuddle him, too, yet the sight of his innocent baby face at this moment sharpened her guilty thoughts and aggravated her irritation toward Al. But Al was holding Junior forward for her, so there was nothing to do but take the child in her arms.

"Be sure careful," she whispered petulantly "You're spoiling my orchids."

Al noticed her tone and quickly took Junior from her. But as soon as she had left the nursery and Junior sat down on his father's lap, the baby began to chat volubly. He was thoroughly wide awake and Al forgot his chagrin over Molly's brittability in his delight over Junior. Was any sound as sweet as that high little voice?

"Hi-ee big!"

Al's head went back, as he laughed delightedly, just as if they had not gone through that nursery ritual a thousand times. Then Junior turned and demanded, "Mow, daddy, tell me story."

"Story?" repeated Al. "What kind? Animal story, giant story?"

"Frog story," answered Junior briefly, settling down comfortably in Al's protecting arms.

"All right," agreed the father. "Once upon a time—" Once there was a fat old froggie who lived in a hole in the ground under a great big tree. He had a big deep voice and—"

Al glanced down—Junior's eyes had closed. He tried desperately to hold them open, but again they went shut as the story continued.

When the tale was ended he was singing quietly. There was a fat old froggie who lived in a hole in the ground under a great big tree. He had a big deep voice and—"

Cultural Treatment And Soil Moisture Conservation

(Experimental Farms Note)

Throughout the three Prairie Provinces the problem of soil moisture has assumed such a tremendous importance as to be a factor in the agricultural prosperity of the country. Many methods have been suggested and tried out in order to conserve moisture...

It must of course be recognized that soil moisture conservation has its limitations. It is not possible to store in the soil enough moisture to produce a crop every year. The treatment of stubble land previous to seeding the crop is a different problem to that of summer fallow. The latter is designed to conserve supply of moisture accumulated in the soil during the fall and winter months. In spite of a wheat yield of 20 bushels per acre, the soil quite frequently shows the need of more moisture at a depth of one or two feet, and below this to be quite dry. There is not sufficient evidence to connect the moisture conditions of the soil as affected by spring ploughing or wheat stubble land but as a rule fall ploughing gives best results in districts where the average is more abundant and spring ploughing where moisture deficiency sometimes occurs. The question of the best time to sow this land is one which requires careful consideration. In many districts where spring ploughing is practised to any extent it is found that the best results are obtained from seeding as soon after ploughing as possible. Where conditions are favourable for germination and the soil is moist enough to germinate the seed at once, the young plants have a decided advantage over those which germinate more slowly. Where conditions are unfavourable for germination and the soil is dry, the seed may lie in the ground for some time before germinating. In the meantime the moisture in the surface soil is being dissipated by evaporation

Removal Of Friction and Strife

The setting up of the organization of the League of Nations had, as its main object, the removal of those racial religious, economic and political animosities and suspicions which kept the nations of the world, and particularly the nations of Europe, in constant turmoil and ever on the verge of war. Because of the bitterness and suspicions thus kept alive and active, all nations armed to the teeth, one against another, while a multitude of restrictions and prohibitions to international intercourse were established.

Not only were national boundaries marked by lines of fortifications, but intricate systems of espionage were maintained, passports were required of people passing across boundary lines, different gauges were built by railways, customs posts established everywhere, and hostile tariffs imposed by one country upon the products of other countries.

Thus were the people of each country kept warned against the possible enmity of other countries, suspicions were never allowed to die down, a constant state of friction prevailed, and strife was uppermost in every mind.

It was as inevitable as the rising of the sun that such a state of mind among the peoples of the world must end in some gigantic conflict. It came in 1914, and all but ruined mankind, and nearly destroyed civilization. The statesmen of the world realized that unless something was done to remove those suspicions and causes of friction, it would be only a matter of time until another and still more colossal struggle would take place.

When it became operative, the League of Nations further realized that, if disarmament was to be brought about, armies and navies reduced, and the huge drain on mankind for warlike purposes ended, the real causes of war must be removed, suspicions lulled, and a true understanding developed among all people. In other words, in such a program of international goodwill must replace existing narrow and blatant nationalism rampant everywhere.

The League therefore, set up the International Labor Office, with the object of improving the lot of workers in all countries, and to raise the standard of living of the masses of the people everywhere, realizing that, if people are contented and happy, and living under a fairly high standard, they will not be suspicious of the rights of others, nor quite so ready to plunge into war to better their own condition.

In like manner, the League has devoted its attention to many causes or sorrow and unrest in the world, and it is persistently seeking improvement in all departments of the world's work and methods of living.

It is because of many really great achievements in those directions, coupled with the horrors of the last war, that the minds of all people are to-day more open to receive and support plans for disarmament, and that, with the passing of the years, the prospects for permanent world peace become brighter.

World statesmen are now convinced that the greatest danger to the world peace is to be found in the realm of economics, in the rivalries of nations in the field of trade and commerce. This is the age of big business, the age of mechanics, mass production, and of endeavour to sell the surplus products of one nation in the markets of other nations. While this has been more or less true of all ages, and nations have been waged in order to annex territory with a view to later commercial exploitation or development, to-day the urge to secure new and larger markets is the strongest ally of those who clamour for large armies and huge navies.

Premier Briand's proposal for a United States of Europe is economic, rather than political. We venture to say it is not aimed at Great Britain, or the United States of America, but is designed to remove the multitude of restrictions which prevail all over Europe, isolating one nation from another, and doing economic hurt to all of them.

Then, too, the Franco-British proposal for a two-year tariff holiday during which all nations would agree not to raise their tariffs, and meanwhile participate in a sincere international conference to determine ways and means whereby, without sacrificing the interests of any one country, a larger measure of freedom in trade and commerce, and intercourse generally, could be devised.

The world is coming to realize and fully understand that trade barriers are now the most prolific cause of misunderstanding between nations, and the cause of more friction and heart-burning than anything else. Even Canada and the United States have come to a better and more sympathetic understanding and goodwill, are more frequently disturbed over tariffs than any other one thing, or all other things put together.

The ideal condition of world free trade may be an impossible dream for some generations to come, but surely much of the present friction can be removed, and the world begin to trace the path that leads to the ultimately desired goal

Sheep Ranching Expanding

Industry Is Showing Progress Development In British Columbia

The sheep industry from a ranching point of view shows signs of development in Western Canada, particularly in British Columbia, states the Department of Agriculture. Last fall upwards of 10,000 head of ewe stock were bought in Alberta and shipped to the interior points of British Columbia. In 1922, the demand for range ewes exceeded the supply and the demand promises to be equally as good this year.

A Real Necessity

"Don't Get Excited" Club Would Be a Boon To World

There are clubs and societies for every conceivable purpose under the sun, yet one of the most obvious needs in American today is left entirely unsupplied. That need is it don't get excited club whose object shall be to keep people from coming to the police when it isn't necessary.

The trouble with most of us is we get too excited over little things and not excited enough over the big ones. Agitation, loss of temper and surrender of self-command over the trivial annoyances of life are a sheer waste of time and energy. In most human affairs more can be accomplished through poise and placidity than through effervescence and seismic phenomena.

If a don't-get-excited club could be so organized as to conserve all the human energy that now goes to waste through needless excitement it would mean that mankind had reached the suburbs of a new era.

RHEUMATIC PEOPLE CAN OBTAIN RELIEF

By Enriching Their Blood With Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

Rheumatism is a disorder of the blood and is caused by poisons in the blood in this and impure, thus setting up inflammation in the muscles and joints. Wet or cold weather may start the pain of rheumatism, but is not the cause. The cause is in the blood. Hot applications or rubbing with liniments may relieve the pain but do not reach the cause and the trouble will soon back again. To get rid of the most painful trouble you must build up the blood and for this purpose nothing else can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Made from first class to last actually make new, rich blood that drives out the rheumatic poisons from the system. Mr. Henry E. Amiro, Lower East, Pubnico, N.S., says: "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for him. He says: "I had been laid up with inflammation. I said that I could not walk a hundred yards without a rest. I decided that I would feel faint. I could not sleep at night. I lost my appetite and could get pain. I was under the care of a doctor but did not improve much. Then reading of a similar case in a newspaper I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. By the time I had used three boxes, there was no doubt they were helping me. I took altogether about 8 boxes and was fully as strong as ever. Several of the trouble, able to walk for miles to my work, chop wood all day, and then walk home again. I cannot say enough in praise of them. I can strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Mystery Of Steel Hardening

Steel Now Produced That Is Harder and More Ductile Than Ever Before

Mystery and secrecy that for centuries shed romance over the art of steel hardening in America, has almost completely disappeared, according to W. H. Eisman, secretary of the American Society for Steel Treating.

The famous blades of Damascus, tempered, says legend, by being run through the body of a slave, held as secrets for modern swordsmiths. Steel is produced now that is harder than Damascus' had possibly more ductile.

Dr. W. S. Chrom, a metallurgist, of Canton, Ohio, has produced a sword with which he can shave, and yet so ductile that he can wind it several times around the arm. It is of carbon vanadium steel. As recently as 10 years ago, some of the processes of hardening steel were studied on in gloomy and secluded basements. The officiating smith even wore a high silk hat, because of the cadabras and made passes over the treating tank.

Potatoes played an important role. Half a spud was set afloat on the water. Where the potato came to rest was the best place to plunge the white-hot steel.

During the war, a great stir was made when a group of steel treaters in Pewgkeepsie, N.Y., could not obtain water from Sheffield, England. They thought this had given Sheffield steel its quality which steel treaters the world over had tried to imitate.

Today the process of steel hardening has become automatic with colored lights flashing the instant steel assumes the proper hardness.

During Hard Flyer

"Four Musketeers Of the Air" Duly Feted At Camp Borden

"Four Musketeers of the Air" is the title accorded a small group of Canadian aviators who are rapidly demonstrating to the world that while Canada's air force may not be the largest, it is very nearly, if not the best, at its own particular game.

The Musketeers are Squadron Leader C. McEwen, M.C., Flight Lieut. David A. Harding, famous flying ace, Flight Officer R. Mc Nab and Pilot Officer E. A. McGowan, all four being stationed at Camp Borden, and flying the Canadian army's Siskin pursuit 'planes.

At various exhibitions both here and in the United States, the Musketeers have thrilled thousands with their antics. Al Cleveland, Ohio, recently, they made the Hamilton and many more famous fliers who had performed there, said their performance was equal to, if not one of the most remarkable ever seen in the United States.

Camp Borden features individual stunting at the finishing part of a novice flyer's education. It is a means of obtaining perfection in the control of an aeroplane, and while formation flying is also taught every pilot must be individual practice of putting an aeroplane through its paces is more strongly endorsed. One of the Musketeers' favorite stunts is a very spectacular one. The 'planes, starting in formation at around 2,000 feet, suddenly zoom down. At terrific speed, with motors wide open, they spread out, fan-shaped, and suddenly zoom up. At the peak of the climb, with the motors nearly stopped, the 'planes gracefully fall back backwards and fly for some distance upside-down.

NO PLEBISCITE FOR ONTARIO SAYS FERGUSON

Toronto.—Launching the first campaign of his political campaign, Premier G. Howard Ferguson addressed Tories at a meeting yesterday here that there would be no plebiscite under his administration on the Ontario liquor control act.

"There will be no plebiscite so long as the Conservative party is in power," Premier Ferguson exclaimed, "and I happen to be the head of the government. We are quite prepared always to submit our record to the public to have it criticized and discussed, and we must be prepared to accept our responsibility."

He went on: "The government does not say the legislation is perfect. There and improvements are going to demonstrate its weaknesses. The Ontario liquor control act was inaugurated to be probably the best in the Dominion. It was administered by a very capable board.

"Let us try and improve any defects in the act as we go along so that any evils which may exist may be eliminated," Premier Ferguson declared.

"I or opposed in principle to plebiscites," the premier declared. "They are contrary to the principle of responsible government. A plebiscite is a range behind which the government may hide from responsibility."

Premier Ferguson had caustic reference for W. E. N. Sinclair, Liberal leader, on the liquor question.

"I see," the Ontario premier declared, "Mr. Sinclair is a bit sensitive in his effort to follow the path of prohibition. I am not quite sure where he is or where he will land in that respect. It appears to me the position he has taken is that the people have not yet reached the limitation; but Mr. Sinclair does not want the Ferguson Government to administer it any more than he would administer it who did not believe in it."

Aotrea Hopes In Power Of Marketing Law Without Limitation

Estevan, Sask.—"I am for co-operative marketing without reservation and without limitation, but shows all I am for control of the commodity that the farmers raise by the farmers who raise it, and I am for the absolute elimination of every part of that control by [illegible] have a financial interest in handling your grain pools. I am for co-operation as a means to an end, that your own wheat by the farmers who and being the absolute control of raise it in whatever technical method they think is the best method of control."

Before 700 farmers of the districts tributary to the town of Estevan, Aaron Sapiro, America's most famous co-operative farming advocate, gave expression to these sentiments as he outlined the principles of the local lodge of the Saskatchewan section of the United Farmers of Canada. The speaker declared that a campaign now being started in favor of a sentiment of one hundred per cent. pool by legislation.

Without equivocation of any kind, Mr. Sapiro announced himself as being in favor of one hundred per cent. pool by way of legislation, and in the course of an hour's address gave reasons why such legislation should be sought, why the farmers of the province should market all their grain through a single control, and why those who are now outside the pool should be compelled by law to become members of the co-operative through the single marketing organization.

Four questions were outlined by Mr. Sapiro as the basis of his address: first, do the farmers generally want co-operation? What is meant by the term "one hundred per cent. pool;" second, why was he brought to the province to advocate the pool? third, what objections are raised to it; fourth, why are the reasons for legislation greater than those against it.

Washington.—Invitations to the five-power naval conference proposed to be held late in January will be issued by Premier Ramsay MacDonald in the near future, but the exact time remains to be determined.

This was learned here authoritatively recently, and while it came the further information that there would be no joint invitations on behalf of Great Britain and the United States as has been suggested in some quarters. Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, said published despatches emanating from London, that Premier Ramsay MacDonald already had sent invitations through the British embassies at Tokio, Paris and Rome, were without authorization and entirely inaccurate.

The invitations from the British government will go to the United States, France, Japan and Italy, with all five expected to participate in the conference which it is now proposed shall be held in the British capital.

Considerable preparatory work must be done before the invitations are sent forward through the British embassies. It may be that action would be deferred until after Premier MacDonald has held his conferences with President Hoover, in Washington early in October, on points still in controversy between the United States and Great Britain on the cruiser question.

Making Trip To West

Premier King To Make Short Visit In October

Ottawa.—Premier Mackenzie King proposes to make a trip, probably to the Pacific Coast, starting about the end of October. It will be a somewhat hurried trip, the premier said, but he will make a number of speeches, some of them, in all probability, on the way out to the Pacific. Definite arrangements for the trip have been somewhat held up owing to the illness of Hon. Peter Heenan, but when Premier Ramsay MacDonald was coming to Ottawa. It has now been settled that Mr. Heenan will be in the capital shortly after the fifteenth of October, and Mr. King's trip will begin after the departure of the British prime minister.

Damage To Chinese Property Enormous

Government Estimates Cost Of Russian Raids At $75,000,000

Shanghai.—The Chinese Nationalist Government estimated damage to Chinese property from Russian raids of Manchurian border points at $25,000,000, according to a Kuomin semi-official agency despatch.

For three months the 2,000-mile Russo-Chinese border between Manchuria and Siberia, virtually the scene of sporadic fighting, the trouble starting over Chinese seizure of the Chinese Eastern Railway administration from the authority of the U.S.S.R.

FOR CONTROL AND LIMITATION OF THE DRUG EVIL

Geneva. — The British delegation at the League of Nations assembly has presented a proposal designed to bring out an international agreement for control and limitation of production of heroin, morphine and cocaine. The same was received by representing a complete reversal by the Labor Government of the late Baldwin Government's attitude in refusing to enter an agreement seeking to limit manufacture of narcotics.

The new British position was announced to the assembly's committee on social questions by E. Hale, member of parliament. The British recommendation is that the League Council invite the governments of countries in which narcotics are manufactured to confer together as to the possibility of reaching an agreement on the total amount of each of the various forms to be manufactured annually and as to the quota of each that these countries should manufacture. The new attitude adopted by Great Britain brings her into accord with the attitude of Canada, the United States and Italy.

By the British resolution initiative in calling a conference of the States is placed in the League's Council.

SHOULD HOLD EXPORT GRAIN FOR BETTER PRICE

Ottawa. — Nothing should induce the Canadian farmer to move his grain overseas unless he receives a good price. This is the position taken by E. R. Ramsay, chairman of the Board of Grain Commissioners. "There are sufficient storage facilities in Canada." Mr. Ramsay said in an interview here, "to take care of this year's crop as well as the large hold-over from last year. If there should be any congestion it will likely be only temporary

"The welfare of all Canada depends on the farmer receiving a proper price for his grain." Mr. Ramsay said. "There has been some reluctance overseas to pay the figure demanded, but this should not discourage the farmer in his desire to obtain an equitable return for his crop."

There was every indication that although this year's crop would not be large, it would be one of the best on record from a grading standpoint. "The bulk of the crop is grading No. 1 and No. 2." Mr. Ramsay continued. "There are no signs of any lower grades that the chief inspector has not enough of No. 4, 5 and 6 to make up a complete sample for grading purposes."

The chief commissioner emphasized the desirability of regulating the flow of wheat out of Canada. "If all the crop is moved within a few months it would result in the rushing of a large number of freight cars to western points with higher overhead and maintenance," he added. "If railway companies have to provide for a sudden demand and cars are taken off other lines of the system, there is sure to be a higher carriage rate."

Stabilization of grain prices from year to year is essential to the welfare not only of the western farmer, but of the country as a whole, declared The western farmer purchases from the eastern manufacturer on a table of prices fixed by the financial prosperity. One encouraging sign, Mr. Ramsay said, was that borrowings which he had been generally reduced in the last few years, and western banks were more and more able to finance the farmers from their own deposits.

The Hudson Bay route will be as important from the standpoint of imports as from exports, Mr. Ramsay declared later, in an interview. Possibly the shorter route would have the greatest value to reduced transportation rates on imports for the western farmer. British manufacturers would be in a better position to compete in prices and a pronounced increase in intra-empire trade would result.

"In my opinion," Mr. Ramsay said, "the Hudson Bay route should be regarded as a channel for bringing overseas products to the west. On their return voyages the boats will, of course, carry western grain.

"Not only will the Canadian farmer profit, but people in the Northern United States will be able to bring British goods in under bond, escaping the heavier railway charges from Atlantic ports. Canada transportation facilities would have the benefit of carrying outbound United States products as well. Hard spring wheats from North Dakota, Montana and Idaho are ready to market at the time navigation will be opened through Hudson Strait. Shippers across the border do sure to take advantage of the lighter charges through the northern port."

Mongolians Mobilize

Tokyo.—Japanese press agency reports state that the outer Mongolian Government is said to have viet officers to move to the frontier. The report adds that preparations have been made to move 50,000 troops in accordance with developments in the Russo-Chinese situation in Manchuria.

CANADIAN NOTES

Canada exports more than $70,000 worth of agricultural products for every man, woman and child in the Dominion, the Federal Minister of Agriculture announced over the railways broadcasting chain of the Canadian National Railways.

The first shipment of wheat to be made over the Hudson Bay Railway for trans-shipment by steamer from Churchill on the Hudson Bay is to be made this year by the Hudson's Bay Company, which for nearly 300 years has been a trading company in Canada. The shipment will consist of one million of this year's crop and will be sent to Garland in sacks. It is expected that the Hudson Bay Railway will be ready for freight and passenger traffic next June.

BOY SCOUT DISPLAY DRAWS BIG AUDIENCE

Items Were Much Enjoyed

A large and appreciative house greeted the Boy Scout display in the Community hall last Monday evening when the 1st Vermilion Troop put on their display of Scouting, and to say that the boys put their shows over would be to put it mildly, as they ably demonstrated why Scouting is popular the world over.

The items were varied and numerous and declared to show as far as possible all the different activities provided by Scouting for a healthy boys's exercise. Owing to the number of items contained in the program it would be impossible to comment on each one. The program itself was divided in two sections, the first part including the process of the boys in athletic first aid, drill and signalling and the latter part of the evening being devoted to a camp-fire entertainment. Outstanding in the first part of the program were the first aid work under trainer W. Grierson, the work being carried deftly and the signalling was done quickly and read accurately, while the bandaging of the injured was done quickly and with precision. The latter part of the evening was

Canadian Anomalies

Following the close of the Great War by the signing of the Armistice, Canada demanded and was accorded a place of equality with other nations of the world at the Peace Conference, and with the creation of the League of Nations Canada entered that League on exactly the same terms as all other nations. That is to say, Canada was recognized as a nation. And in signing the League Covenant Canada accepted the responsibilities of a nation.

At the last Imperial Conference, in London, with all the self-governing Dominions of the Empire and the British Government fully represented, a formal declaration was adopted setting forth that Canada and the other self-governing Dominions were fully autonomous nations within the British Commonwealth of Nations, possessing exact equality with Great Britain.

As a logical outcome of those declarations, Canada has established her own legations in certain foreign countries appointed her own ministers, and, in turn these countries have named ministers at Ottawa. Thus, as a nation, Canada has direct representation at Washington, Paris and Tokio, in exactly the same manner as any other country. Equally significant is the fact that the British Government has appointed a High Commissioner to Canada while Canada maintains a High Commissioner in London.

But while Canada is thus recognized as a nation it is the only nation in the whole world which has no nationality of its own, and no distinctive flag of its own. These are anomalies which other people find it extremely difficult to understand.

In England, people born in that country are recognized and officially listed as English, if born in Scotland they are listed as Scottish; in Ireland, as Irish; in France as French in Germany, as German; in the United States, as American. Even in Canada, on the other hand, a person may be listed as of any nationality under the sun except Canadian. Officially there is no such person as a Canadian.

The writer of this article was born in Canada as were his father and mother. His children's parents were born in Canada. His father's parents were born in Ireland, their ancestors having crossed to the Emerald Isle from Scotland. So the writer becomes in Canada, an Irishman although neither he nor his parents ever saw Ireland, if his grandfather had been born in Russia, then the writer would be a Russian.

In the face of such an anomaly such a ghastly absurdity, it is little wonder that the people of other countries laugh in the face of any person born in Canada who is bold enough to lay claim to his country being a nation.

Every nation in the world except one has a distinctive flag of its own. The exception is Canada. Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Newfoundland, the Irish Free State all have their distinctive national flags, as well as the Union Jack the flag of all of Great Britain and the Empire. Canada has a distinctive flag for its personal standard, and Order-in-Council it has been decreed that this shipping flag shall be flown over Canadian Government buildings in the British Isles, and in foreign lands, but it is not officially recognized anywhere else.

Thus, while a Canadian may fly a distinctive Canadian flag over a ship owned by him he may not fly it over his office building or his residence, and while such a flag may be flown over a Canadian Government building in London Washington, Paris or Tokio, it cannot be flown over a Canadian Government building in Halifax or Vancouver, or anywhere between these two points.

A person born in Canada is therefore, that peculiar individual anomaly, the peoples of the world who has no nationality he can call his own, and no distinctive flag that he can properly fly in his own land and over his own home and public institutions.

And yet the people of Canada find pride in calling Canada a nation. Why, this so-called nation of Canada has not even the right to amend its own constitution, a power possessed by other self-governing dominions of the British Commonwealth.

Canada is and is proud to be, and desires to remain, a part of the British Commonwealth of Nations. It is proud of and loyal to the Union Jack as the flag of that great Commonwealth, and will ever retain it. But just as the Dominion has its own Coat of Arms, and each Province its Arms, and each city its Arms, so do the people of Canada desire to establish and retain their own nationality, have their own distinctive flag, and enjoy full autonomy in their domestic affairs.

Much as a native born Canadian may love England, or Scotland, or Australia or New Zealand he does not desire to merge his identity or lose his individuality. He is a Canadian and desires to be known as such, not as an Englishman, a Scotsman, an Australian or a New Zealander.

If Canada is a nation, let it display the qualities and the insignia of a nation.

Student Aviator Gets Thrill

Fell Out Of Plane But Fortunately Had Parachute

Arthur Custer automobile dealer and student aviator of Springfield, Mass. experienced an unexpected thrill when he fell out of his plane while flying 1,000 feet over Springfield airport.

Custer, who was flying without a safety belt, but who had a parachute, pulled the cord of his parachute and made a landing unhurt. The plane fell in an open field and was demolished.

Women Are Excluded

All Weather Road Promised

From International Boundary To Prince Albert National Park.

An all-weather highway from Regina or the boundary to Prince Albert National Park will probably be put into condition, F. R. MacMillan, of Saskatoon, president of the Saskatchewan Conservative Association, told members of the Kiwanis Club at Prince Albert. He thought that this should be the policy of the government, and the fact that a cabinet minister in the Anderson Government, Hon. J. A. Maharg, was on a trip to the park was an evidence of the government's interest.

HEALTH REGAINED

"Contrary to what my friends may think, I am still living," says Mrs. Norman White, New Canada, Que., "and I give the credit to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I had been a sufferer for some years. I was weak and run-down; my heart would palpitate violently at the least exertion, I grew so weak that I could not do my housework. I was under a doctor's care, but did not get relief. A second doctor was called in, but with no better results. I was told that I was almost bloodless, and I became so weak I was forced to remain in bed. My friends did not believe I could recover. While in this condition a neighbor strongly urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. It was like grasping at a straw, but six boxes of this medicine were got for me, and by the time I had taken them I was able to sit up. Another six boxes were got, and soon I was able to go about, my health steadily improving. I continued the use of the pills until I felt my health fully restored. I still take the pills occasionally as a safeguard. My two daughters have also used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with the most beneficial results. The trouble in both cases was the anemia that so often comes when girls are entering womanhood. Under the use of this medicine both girls regained health, strength and activity. You can see, therefore, that it is impossible for me to praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills too highly, and I hope every weak person who may read this will benefit by my experience."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Escape From Submarine

Men Leave Submerged Craft In Recent Tests During Experiment

Ten men emerged from the sunken submarine T-17 in forty-eight seconds during a recent experiment in Italy, making what is called a world record for such a feat

Half of the participants used head pieces, while the others were not especially equipped. The submarine carried a new device consisting of a large bag with a torpedo tube permitting the men to leave the [illegible] entering the hull.

What's In a Name?

An Englishman's home is his castle, but whether he is able to call his castle he likes is a matter of some doubt. The thought arises because the Bank of England officers have decreed that the words "Bank of England" on a building in Burnley must be removed. The words, carved in bold letters in stone, have adorned this building for over a hundred years. Why they are there on one knows.

Her Little Boy Was Very Ill With Summer Complaint

Mrs Ray Fisher, Lenoxt, Sask., writes:—"For over a month, last summer, my little boy was suffering from summer complaint. He got so bad there began to be traces of blood in his stool, and anything he took would not stay on his stomach very long. He became so weak he could not stand up. A neighbor recommended

"Dierrea ruged and in despair I went for a bottle, not expecting any more benefit than from the many other medicines I had used, but to my surprise I noticed a change after he had taken a few doses, and before the bottle was half used he was the same happy, healthy boy he was before he took sick."

Wheat Grading High

Quality Year In Wheat Production In Saskatchewan

This year is a quality year in wheat production in Saskatchewan. Seventeen cars of No. 1 hard wheat have already been received by the flour mills at Saskatoon. In each of the years, 1927 and 1926, there was just one car of No. 1 hard wheat produced in western Canada.

The wheat graded by the Dominion grain inspector at Saskatoon up to the present time shows a very high proportion of the high grades, as follows:

No. 1 hard, 6 per cent.; No. 1 northern, 51 per cent.; No. 2, 29 per cent.; No. 3 4 per cent.

A part of the No. 2 in Garnet wheat to which the No. 1 grade is not given.

At the Moose Jaw inspection point 50 per cent. of the wheat is No. 1, 35 per cent. No. 2, and the balance mostly No. 3. A. McPherson, of the Dominion seed branch, reports.

This year northern Saskatchewan is producing wheat of equal quality to that grown in the southern part of the province. This is held to be unusual as excess moisture during the growing season in most years makes northern wheat inferior in quality. The Elrose line is producing a high percentage of No. 1 hard, Hughton and Watrous being outstanding shipping points.

Interested in Peace Garden

Financial Support Promised By Industrial Concerns In U.S. and Canada

Interest is developing in a proposal of horticulturists of Canada and the United States that an International Peace Garden be established at some point along the boundary between the two countries. The idea has brought expressions of approval from the Governor-General of Canada and Hon. William Phillips, the United States ambassador to the Dominion, as well as from several Canadian and American men of rank. The heads of many large industrial concerns on both sides of the boundary have promised financial support, and a considerable sum is in view as a nucleus of endowment for the garden.

Certain it is that a garden of the sort proposed would be a beautiful and fragrant memorial to the well more than a century of peace between Canada and her neighbor, and also an impressive pledge of goodwill, its spiritual value at all times would depend upon the degree to which it was a symbol of cordial feelings actually entertained by the peoples of the two countries towards each other and as carried into effect by them. — Regina Daily Post

Hopes To Carry Mail To America In Thirty Minutes

A "space rocket," designed to shoot upward for 32 miles, and, it is hoped, by the forerunner of a rocket that will carry mail to America in 30 minutes, is to be built at once, it has been learned.

Prof. Hermann Oberth, a Roumanian scientist, designed the rocket. It will be built under the supervision of the U.F.A: Film Company. Its object, for the first flight, is to measure the physical and chemical properties of the atmosphere. Instruments will be enclosed in it to this end.

Artificial Silk From Acetic Acid

Combined With Cellulose Will Make Fine Fabric In Process

Prediction that the acetic taste in vinegar will be used to make artificial silk was made by the United States Chemical Society today by Professor D. R. Keyes, of the University of Illinois. The sour substance with which chemistry's magnetic touch may make finer dresses was called by Prof. Keyes by its scientific name, acetic acid. The newspaper that carries a good line of advertisements is to the shopper what the time-table is to the traveller and the published guide to the tourist. Busy people start to study these advertisements in the home or in the office, and before they start shopping they know where they are going. . . In fact, business places are points of interest to all tourists, and the non-advertiser puts himself outside the pale so far as strangers are concerned.

Germany Planning World "Plane Lines

Company Aims For Regular Flying Boat Service Over Atlantic in Two Years

A gigantic network of air lines which will cover the entire world is being planned by Lufthansa, Germany's most important air company.

The plans are being worked out by Otto Merkel, who has given up his post as head of Lufthansa to devote himself to found ng an international company, which promises within two years to open regular air lines between Europe and the United States.

Working jointly with the Hamburg-American steamship line, preliminaries have been completed. The details of the new company are still somewhat uncertain, but the approximate direction of development has been mapped out

"Not only is the world's interest concentrated in air travel, but in all countries the best technical experts are working out the details," said Herr Merkel. "The experimental stage is behind us and the goal is clear. We have fine planes also, especially in America, excellent motors everywhere, responsible pilots and dependable instruments which will result in an even higher standard soon.

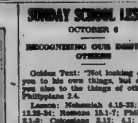
World Famous Artists On Canadian Radio

RAOUL KOOD



FLORENCE AUSTRAL

Florence Austral, the world's greatest dramatic soprano and Harold Bauer, one of the outstanding pianists of all time, two of the world famous artists who will be heard on the air this season during the Imperial Oil Hour of Fine Music, to be broadcast from Toronto every Sunday evening, beginning on October 6th, from 8 to 9 Central Standard Time. Miss Austral opens the series on Sunday evening, October 6th and Mr. Bauer will be heard on October 20th.

Announcement of a series of concerts by world famous artists on a Canadian radio chain was made yesterday by F. J. Wolfe, Director of Imperial Oil, Limited. The series will begin on October 6th and will continue for twenty-six weeks. It will be broadcast through stations at Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, London, Waterloo, Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Regina and Red Deer, and, with the exception of hook-up facilities at the end of the year, at Vancouver.

Among the universally known artists who have been engaged for the series are Florence Austral, the world's greatest dramatic soprano; Sophie Braslau, the great contralto; Harold Bauer, one of the outstanding pianists; Richard Crooks, the American tenor who, though one of the youngest of all women violinists; Hans Kindler, the famous Dutch cellist; The London String Quartet; Albert Spalding, great violinist; Luella Mallon, one of the most famous coloratura sopranos; Josef Lhevinne, the great Russian pianist; Richard Bonelli, leading baritone of the Chicago Opera; The Kedroff Quartet, formerly of the Imperial Palace at Petrograd, and others.

The series will consist principally of symphony concerts at most of which one or more of these famous artists will assist. A great symphony orchestra of more than fifty players has been engaged and will be under the direction of Reginald Stewart, who has lately returned from a concert tour in Europe, and who has been engaged as a guest conductor for the London Symphony Orchestra in April next. The concerts will originate in Toronto and will be offered from 10 to 11 o'clock Eastern Standard Time for twenty-six consecutive Sunday evenings, beginning October 6th.

"Our object in promoting these concerts," Mr. Wolfe said, "is to bring to people within reach of available hook-up facilities in Canada, music and artists which, without the medium of radio, could not be heard outside the great metropolitan centres. We do not regard radio broadcasting as a direct advertising medium and feel that it can function most usefully in giving entertainment of educational and artistic merit. The aim of the orchestra and guest artists will be to present the classical music and modern novelties of more than ordinary merit."

The series, which will be known as The Imperial Oil Hour of Fine Music, will go on the air through stations CHYC, Montreal; CFRB, Toronto; CKNC and CFRB, Toronto; CJGC, London; CKCR, Waterloo; CKY, Winnipeg; CNWC, Regina; CFQC, Saskatoon; and CKLC, Red Deer.

Recipes For This Week

(By Betty Barclay)

CHUTNEY TOMATOES

Remove outer yellow rind and most of the white by peeling very thick. Halve the fruit, and with sharp knife cut out the core. Combine sauce and place pulp in granite kettle with very little water and cook at moderate heat. When boiling point, add three-fourths pint of sugar to each pint of fruit pulp and juice, then cook slowly 15 minutes. Seal in small jars.

GRAPE JAM

Stem grapes, wash and press pulp from skins. Place pulp in a kettle, cook until soft, then rub through sieve to remove seeds. Cook skins until soft in just enough water to cover. Combine the two mixtures and boil for five minutes. Measure and allow one cup of sugar to each pint of fruit. Cook until thick—about will be in a very few minutes. Then pack in clean hot jars and seal carefully.

Everybody Was Pleased

He was in London for the first time, and his uncle, a stockbroker, was showing him round Throgmorton Street.

"Why is that little fat man wiskying and whispering to all those others?" asked the visitor.

"Oh," returned his uncle, "he's just bought in the stock of an oil company dirt cheap."

The visitor looked about him and noticed another man who was also whispering and chuckling to some friends.

"What is he so pleased about?" he asked his uncle.

"Oh," was the reply, "he's the man who sold the stocks."

Jostling Her Right

A little girl carrying two kittens to Oldham, lost her way, so accosted a passing rustic thus:

"Excuse me, but is this the way to Oldham?"

"No, miss," came the ready response, "you want to take 'em by the nurse of the bank!"

RECOGNIZING OUR DEBTS TO OTHERS

Golden Text: "Not looking each of you to his own things, but each of you also to the things of others. — Philippians 2:4.

Lesson: Nehemiah 4.15-23; Mark 12.35-37; Romans 15.1-7; Galatians 5.13-6; Colossians 3.13; 4.1; James 2.14-17.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 40. 5-10.

Explanations and Comments

Recognizing Our Debt To Others, Mark 12.35-37.—A scribe who was standing by, and knew that Jesus had answered wisely the Sadducees put to Him, asked Jesus, "What Commandment is the first of all?" Jesus replied by quoting Deuteronomy 6.4-9: "Hear, O Israel: the Lord our God, the Lord is one; and thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength." This is, we might say, the "In these terms some interpreters recognized the beginning of a primitive psychology, an attempt at a threefold or fourfold division or human nature, 'soul' referring to emotion, 'mind' to intellect, and 'strength' to will. But whatever may be thought of this suggestion, it is clear from the words are intended to claim for God the devotion of human nature in all its extent, and in all its intensity." — Hastings Rishker.

"The second is this," continues Jesus and quoted Lev. 19.18: "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." The chief service rendered by Jesus to this second commandment was to associate it so closely with the first. In the Old Testament the two Commandments lie far apart with no indication of any connection between them; but His brought the two together in such a manner as to suggest that they have an intimate relation to each other. Loyalty to God they are twin commandments; so closely are they connected that they cannot exist, or, at all events they cannot have a healthy existence, apart."—James Stalker.

Fulfilling Our Debt To Others, James 2.14-17.—"What doth it profit, my brethren." James asks (use Greek means literally, what is the use). "If a man say he hath faith, and have not works? can that faith save him?" When Ruskin says, "Whatever we think, or what we say, or what we believe is, in the end, of little consequence; the only thing of consequence is what we do," he is speaking of a more doctrine, a barren belief that does not lead to action; and so is James when he says, "What doth it profit if a man say he hath faith, but have not works?" Moreover, the "faith" referred to here, as the Expositor's Greek Testament explains, "faith is expressed in the "Shema" (Deu. 6.4 etc.); 'Hear, O Israel, the Lord our God, the Lord is One': this was the fundamental tenet of the Jewish faith, and that it is this to which reference is made, and not the Christian faith, is obvious from verse eleven, which contains the essence of the 'Theme.'"

Saving In Train Haul

Grain shipped from Saskatoon to Liverpool by way of Montreal has to travel 3,213 miles. By way of Churchill it has to travel 2,761 miles. The distance between the two ports and Liverpool is about the same the saving is in train and lake haulage in Canada, and charges and reloading.

Sweden Leads In Wood

Sweden today leads the world in the number of radio receiving sets, in proportion to its population. The latest statistics show that there are 412,115 sets to about 6,060,000 inhabitants, or 67.5 for each thousand citizens.

Germany is holding many centenary celebrations this year.

The Improved Glass Substitute

COMES WITH A MESSAGE OF HEALTH

THE sun is the all-powerful life producer, Nature's universal disinfectant and germ destroyer, as well as stimulant and tonic. Important ally.

Medical research has definitely proved that from the point of view of Health and Hygiene, the most effective among the sun's rays, are the Ultra-Violet rays, which possess the greatest power for the prevention and cure of disease and debility.

Scientific Test Further established that ordinary window glass does not allow the passage of Ultra-Violet rays, so that by using glass we are artificially excluding these vital health-giving rays. Therefore, the invention of WINDOLITE has completely satisfied the long-felt want. Exhaustive experiments have conclusively proved that it is a most effective substitute for glass, that it freely admits the Ultra-Violet rays, and that its use has a most beneficial effect on the growth and development of plants and chickens and on the well-being of cattle, enabled from the first time to have healthy light instead of darkness in their sheds.

Indeed, the discovery of WINDOLITE has during the last six years completely revolutionized gardening, given a new stimulus to poultry breeding, increasing the egg-laying capacity and fertility of chickens, has greatly improved the health of cattle and is now being used in domestic and household requirements.

Remarkable Self-Denial

Scottish Girl Saves Enough To Bring Family To Canada

After having been only two years in Canada, Miss Jean Turley, late of Gartness, Lanarkshire, Scotland, has been able to bring her father, mother, and ten brothers and sisters to join her in the home which she has prepared for them in Montreal.

By denying herself every luxury she has been able to accumulate the amount. The two readings previously made were then rescinded and the proposed amendment given the first two readings. The amendment to By-Law No. 11 which prohibits cattle, horses, sheep, pigs, etc. from being at large on the road allowances will be advertised in due course and the petitions calling for a vote on the longer proposed By-Law will be considered as also calling for a vote on the proposed proposed amendment to By-Law No. 11.

Auditor's financial reports for the months of August and September were presented and accepted. Settlement was made for road diversion on N. 21-56-5 at the rate of $20 00 per acre, amounting to $17.20. The Wild Land Tax on N.E. 15-56-1 was ordered cancelled for 1929.

In the matter of the cattle pass on S.E. 1-55-5 it was decided to close this road for repairs as the access is now too far advanced for work of this description. Notices were ordered put up at each end of the road affected to warn the public, and the owners notified.

Bills totalling $561.70 divided among the different divisions and general expense accounts were passed.

Council adjourned.

VERMILION MEN HURT IN CAR ACCIDENT NEAR WETASKIWIN

Car Skewed in Loose Gravel

While on their way to a Masonic conference at Wetaskiwin last Thursday afternoon, the Buick coach of K. Davies skewed in the deep gravel between Camrose and Wetaskiwin, and overturned in the ditch, righting itself by its own volition. Mr. Heckbert received a bad cut on the head and a sprained arm, while N. M. McKinnon sustained a severe gash on his cheek. Messrs. Corley and Davies, the other occupants of the car, were uninjured. Fortunately a truck arrived on the scene soon after the accident, conveying the party and their damaged car into Wetaskiwin.

"THE BELLE OF BARCELONA"

M. D. VERMILION VALLEY MINUTES

A meeting was held in the Municipal office on Saturday, Sept. 28th with all Councillors present and the Reeve in the chair.

Minutes of the last regular meeting held August 31st were read and confirmed.

A report on the proposed Stock By-Law was read. The report pointed out that By-Law No. 11 should be amended instead of a new By-Law being enacted; also that it should not read that cattle, horses, etc. be prohibited from running at large on unfenced lands but should prohibit them from being at large on road allowances. All of Township 50, Range 4 and that part of Township 50, Range 5 south of N. R. track should be exempt from the provisions of the amendment. The two readings previously made were then rescinded and the proposed amendment given the first two readings. The amendment to By-Law No. 11 which prohibits cattle, horses, sheep, pigs, etc. from being at large on the road allowances will be advertised in due course and the petitions calling for a vote on the longer proposed By-Law will be considered as also calling for a vote on the proposed proposed amendment to By-Law No. 11.

High School Notes

The great Lloydminster meet of Sept. 27th, 1929 is over, and Vermilion came home the triumphant holder of the trophy for another year, and two students are the proud possessors of cups. Janina Pilipowski proved the best member girl athlete and Alex Hrynyk the best junior boy Carman Long walked away with first place in the 100 yard dash and also the 220; Lila Browne got the 75 yard dash and came second to Jenny in the 150 yard dash Russel Dawes made a super human effort (because he was slightly annoyed at former failures) and cleared the vaulting bar with a foot to spare. The girls' relay was on 15 points with first place, but the boys could not cope with Walter Perry of Lloyd. Several prizes were won by junior girls and boys and we got 2nd and 3rd places in the half-mile.

The most spectacular event of the day was the senior girls' high jump Competitors was kept until the four best mark was reached, then Jean was her mark by clearing 4' 5" with "a mile to spare" as we heard remarked. But we wonder what Lloyd thinks of our "dignified" teachers when this happened. We saw two of them standing, hands clasped, and then execute an impromptu war dance. And what can one expect when Jean is at large on the road allowances. All of Township 50, Range 4 and that part of Township 50, Range 5 south of N. R. track should be exempt from the provisions of the amendment. The two readings previously made were then rescinded and the proposed amendment given the first two readings. The amendment to By-Law No. 11 which prohibits cattle, horses, sheep, pigs, etc. from being at large on the road allowances will be advertised in due course and the petitions calling for a vote on the longer proposed By-Law will be considered as also calling for a vote on the proposed proposed amendment to By-Law No. 11.

THIRD YEAR WILL BE CONTINUED AT V.S.A.

All students and ex-students of the V. H. A. will be pleased to know that Hon. Geo. Hoadley has decided to continue the third year for 1929-30. There was some talk of a modification of the plan, but the V. S. A. halls will still have the disputed third year. Already there are over a dozen diploma students registered for the course and others are expected. With these it looks as though the school will be continued in capacity. The third year course starts October 15th, while the regular course begins on October 29th. Mr. Dixon will have charge of the third year and the second man is still to be appointed

Seventy-five per cent of those taking the third year last winter passed in everything, which speaks well for Mr. Dixon's piloting. — The Radio

Getting a STRANGLE HOLD on that MORTGAGE

TIMES were long, loan years for you—and lenders—before success began to come.

Her hair is grey now—and you are no longer young.

But you dream of having a mortgage-free homestead for Baby, without the hardships you went through.

You can realize the Risk—the discipline and hope that will give your home peace.

It's THAT that makes you in the right—the knowledge that that even after your long years of toil and struggle your wife and family may not be able to left the mortgage—right has the right to profit from the accumulated labor, deprivations, economies and money investments of many years.

When you placed that mortgage on the farm did you assure your life for at least a corresponding amount, payable when the loan had to be repaid, or at death?

If you didn't you only added to the anxieties of your widow and family.

Afraid you couldn't pay the premiums on the policy? Could your widow pay the interest and maintain the sinking fund on the mortgage?

Don't continue that Risk—cover the mortgage with a life assurance policy that will discharge it—and leave a balance, payable immediately, for current expenses. Ask the Sun Life representative. It will entail no obligation on you.

during to the increased attendance at the South Side school since the opening of the fall term, the school board may have an alternative but to move Grade V class, which numbers 3 pupils, to the East End school. Previous to the fall opening the board was able to meet the request of a number who desired the teaching of Grade V at the south side, but there was ample accommodation at the time and no suggestion was anticipated. Previous to this IV was the highest grade taught there. Additional relief are from the country and the moving of a couple of families from the north side, have brought the number up to 32 with three more for whom room is to be had. First consideration will be accorded lower grade pupils and the board following a report from Principal Stevens to this IV was the highest advisement. In the event of attendance not clashing off later, the grade would be reinstituted.

PROPOSED CHANGES IN CLANDONALD-DEWBERRY SCHOOL DISTRICTS

A change which will affect several school districts in the Clandonald-Dewberry country is now under consideration and will go into effect as soon as Dewberry definately decides on their proposed two room school. Providing the school is built in the neighbouring district is not affected. Harwood, which is two and a half miles west of the line, will be moved into the centre of the district which will bring it approximately 5 miles from both Dewberry and Clandonald. It is proposed to divide the present large district territory between Harwood and the Clandonald village school districts and move the Willesdale school which stands at present some two miles east and one mile north into Clandonald. This will serve for the time being as the village school. School districts along the north C. P. R. line are rapidly changing, the last year both Derwent and Metrose built two room schools, and now Dewberry has practically decided on a two room building while it is very to see that Clandonald, which is probably larger than either of the two immediate neighbors, will not long find a one room school equal to its requirements.

SOME SALESMEN speak of the quality of their flour as if it resulted from secret and highly mysterious milling.

There are no secrets in milling.

The best flour is the result of intelligent selection of the very best wheat, a good mill, skilful milling and constant and never ceasing watchfulness.

That combination insures good flour. Nothing else does.

RUSSIAN GRAIN WILL NOT AFFECT CANADA'S TRADE

Ottawa. — Canada's wheat trade would not be imperilled by a resumption of trade relations with Russia by the Labor Government in Great Britain for some years at least, Right Hon. L. C. M. S. Amery, secretary of state for the dominions in Baldwin cabinet, said on his arrival here.

"In the present disorganized condition of Russia under the Bolshevist regime, it is highly improbable," Mr. Amery said, "that there will be surplus wheat to export for some years to come. The Russian farmer is probably only raising enough for his own needs." Accordingly Russian wheat would not constitute a competitive factor in the British market. Just how imminent was the possibility of a resumption of trade relations between Great Britain and Russia, Mr. Amery could not say.

Grant Priority To Dominion Taxes

Provincial Claim in Bankruptcy Is Beyond Supreme Court

Ottawa, Ont.—The Supreme Court of Canada, in a judgment handed down, held that claims for Dominion taxes had priority over claims for provincial taxes. The appeal was taken on behalf of the attorney-general of Canada and opposed on behalf of the attorney-general of Quebec.

The action arose out of a bankruptcy matter. Both the Dominion Government and the Quebec authorities had a claim against the bankrupt for taxes. There was not sufficient to pay both claims in full. It then became a question as to which claim took priority.

The trustee in bankruptcy, in his divided sheet, gave priority to the claim of the Dominion and in that he was sustained by the trial judge, Mr. Justice Panneton. The court of King's Bench held, Mr. Justice Guerin dissenting, that both claims should rank concurrently. From that decision the Dominion appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Will Start In December

Preparations Almost Completed For Western Air Mail Service

Ottawa, Ont.—The western air mail service will be inaugurated early in December and the tentative date is the first flight has been set for the second week of the month.

This announcement follows the statement of the Department of National Defence that the radio and light beacons and the emergency landing fields will be installed and ready for use by December 1. The Post Office department is fully prepared to put on the services at that date, and the Western Canada Airways it is understood, have completed preparations and should begin the flying end of the service on short notice.

The bi-weekly air mail service from Edmonton north along the Mackenzie River will begin earlier than the regular service across the prairie provinces. This northerly service will commence as soon as the winter recession sets in and the planes can use skis with safety.

New Airway Mapped

London To Capetown Will Be Longest in World

London, England. — The longest airway in the world—an 8,000-mile route from London to the Cape—is to be inaugurated by the Imperial Airways early next year.

As a result of the grant 20,000-mile aerial survey of Africa, made by Sir Alan and Lady Cobham in their big Short Rolls-Royce flying boat, a route through the heart of Central Africa, passing over deserts and jungles, has been mapped out.

Agreements have been made with the various governments concerned for supporting the air line, and preparations are now being completed for its opening. Passengers and mails will leave London every Saturday in a giant triple-screw Armstrong-Siddeley air liner, and will arrive in Capetown nine days later, having flown by a combination of big air liners and all-metal flying boats.

Reparations Bank Slammed By League

Committee Withdraws Resolution To Establish Intimate Connection

The League of Nations will not seek, for the present, to establish close relationship between itself and the international reparations bank provided by the Young plan.

This became clear when a resolution favoring the establishment of an intimate connection between the two was withdrawn from consideration in the Assembly's committee that deals with economic questions.

But its authors, Norway and Denmark, in withdrawing are believed to have gained part of their purpose.

Their move was interpreted in some quarters as a signal by the countries not concerned directly with reparations payments that they will not be greatly pleased if the proposed bank seeks to assume too dominant a function in the economic life of Europe.

Discuss Coal Prices

English Mine Owners Consider Question For Canadian Trade

London, Eng.—A dozen large coal mine operators from various parts of the country met Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, at the treasury, to discuss the question of prices of coal for the Canadian trade. The minister for overseas trade who has just returned from Canada pointed out the great possibilities of the Dominion for British exporters. It was stated the deputation was not officially representing the mining association of Great Britain, but it was understood that Evan Williams, chairman of the association and W. Lee, its secretary, were among those present. No statement was issued immediately.

Beaks Dirigibles Are Obsolete

London, England.—Emphatic denials of the statements in London newspapers that the dirigibles now under construction for the British Government—the R-100 and the R-101 were obsolete, was made by Commander the Hon. Brabazon, head of the Airship Guarantee Company which is building the R-100.

Hails Land To Hoofs

Toronto.—Lured by the brilliance of the beacon at Long Point, on Lake Erie, near Port Rowan, more than 800 song birds migrating to warmer climes for the winter, met death recently. Flying through a fog the birds were attracted by the bright light and dashed to death against the walls of the lighthouse.

Issue Interesting Report

Grain Commissioners Publish Baking Tests Of 1928 Flour

Winnipeg.—Low weight per bushel, lower flour yield, higher protein content; lower water absorption of the flour and excellent baking quality are features of a preliminary report on the milling and baking characteristics of western Canada's 1928 wheat crop, issued by Dr. F. J. Hr.chard, chief chemist to the Board of Grain Commissioners for Canada, and his assistant, T. R. Aitken.

Milling and baking tests conducted at the Dominion Grain Research Laboratory, in Winnipeg, indicate that, on the whole, the milling yield is inferior, but the baking quality, grade for grade, is fully equal to if not superior to that of last year, states Dr. Hrchard, in the report. The effect of frost and immaturity is not a serious consideration as was the case last year, practically all the wheat is sound and mature, but each grade contains an increasing number of undeveloped kernels and consequently the weight per measured bushel would appear to be the chief factor in determining the grade.

LABOR PARTY IN ONTARIO HAS ENTERED LISTS

Toronto.—The Ontario Labor party officially entered the lists for the coming election when it issued as the first step of its campaign, a manifesto giving the following by way of a minimum program:

Unemployment Insurance.

Extension of the public ownership principle.

A law to permit the election of police commissions.

A liquor referendum.

Compulsory public liability automobile insurance.

Amendments to the Old Age Pensions and Mothers' Allowance Acts.

The manifesto criticises Premier G. Howard Ferguson, leader of the Conservative party, for bringing on an election "just before it was necessary to appeal to the country. Pressing as an advocate of responsible government he has not brought it to use the British method where the Premier announces on the floor of Parliament before the elected representatives of the nation that on a certain date an election will be held."

The Labor party has always stood for the discussion of the liquor problem from the party platform says the manifesto. "It recognizes that the solution of the problem is the taking of the manufacture of liquor away from private capitalists. If there is to be government control, it must be control in the real sense of the word. The Labor party is opposed to the present system of a referendum

Will Remain In Canada

No Truth In Rumor That Sir Henry Thornton Was Leaving

Ottawa.—Sir Henry Thornton will remain in Canada as president of the Canadian National Railways. Any doubt on this point was settled by Premier Mackenzie King, following a recent meeting of the cabinet. In the absence of Hon. C. A. Dunning, minister of railways, who is in the West, the Prime Minister was unable to say whether or not a renewal of Sir Henry Thornton's contract with the government had been signed.

There was no question, however, about Sir Henry remaining in Canada, the prime minister said.

Recently there have been rumors that the president of the Canadian National might go to England

Colony For Doukhobors

Two Hundred and Fifty Members Of Sect Transferred From Jail To Colony In B.C.

Nelson, B.C.- Some 250 Doukhobor men, women and children who have been confined to the provincial jail here, were transported by the provincial police to Porto Rico.

Porto Rico is a former Christian community lumber camp which is situated some 15 miles south of Nelson. Last Friday when these band of Freedom were camping on the outskirts of the city, Peter Verigin offered this old camp site to the Doukhobors as a permanent habitat.

Starting early in the morning trucks and buses carried loads of prisoners from the jail to Porto Rico until 4 p.m. when all the Doukhobors had been safely landed. Each bus in addition to the prisoners, carried a couple of deputies to preserve order if necessary. This measure was not necessary

When all had arrived at the camp it was noticeable that many of the Doukhobors directly started to pick out living quarters from among the camp buildings

The majority of the buildings at the camp are windowless and door less, and the more industrious of the Doukhobors began to repair their future homes to protect them against the cold nights that are setting in.

Balloon Found Unmanned

Believed To Be One Piloted By French Man

Paris.—A tragedy of the air was indicated as a balloon without passengers floated to the ground near Kamaise, Jugo-Slavia.

The Aero Club of France was advised the balloon carried the club's flag, and that blood spots were found on the torn basket. An altimeter registering 3,000 meters (about 10,000 feet) was found by peasants nearby

It was believed the balloon was the one in which Pilot Nungesser, Ace of Cloud, near Paris, to compete in the Aumont Thieville Cup race. The place where the bag was found is 180 miles from Paris.

Convicted Of Manslaughter

Los Angeles. Mrs. Lois Pantages, wife of the theatrical magnate, was convicted of manslaughter by a jury which heard her trial on a charge of second degree murder

The jury of five women and seven men made no recommendation for leniency. The sentence for manslaughter is fixed by California law at from one to 10 years in the penitentiary. There were seven jurors kept as the verdict was read.

Mrs. Pantages was charged following the death of a Japanese gardener, killed when their auto mobiles collided last June

GRAIN EMBARGO IS REQUIRED TO EASE CONGESTION

Winnipeg. Serious congestion in the lake head elevators and the consequent tieups brought suggestions that the placing of an embargo on western grain shipments be imposed for the next month to the situation.

Fort William and Port Arthur terminal elevators with a storage capacity of 85,000,000 bushels, are nearing practically 70,000,000 bushels, leaving a comparatively small storage room through which to receive the incoming crop.

Lack of demand for Canadian grain in the world market and the resulting congestion at Montreal is responsible for the situation at the head of the lakes and railway officials here intimated that the placing of an embargo probably will be necessary.

E. E. Ramsay, chairman of the board of grain commissioners, commenting on the situation said an embargo seemed to be the only remedy.

A similar statement when every fall pointed out the grain board chairman He indicated however that last year at this time the shortage of cars to handle the heavy prairie crop had itself acted in the nature of an embargo, preventing progress of grain to the lake head. This season, with sufficient cars available to move the wheat east of Port Arthur and Port William elevators are reported plugged almost to capacity, while harbor conditions do not point to an early rush east of lake boats.

NON-PREFERRED ENTRY RECEIVES FURTHER CUT

Ottawa. The number of farm laborers which transportation companies will be permitted to bring into Canada from non-preferred countries of Europe will for next year be further reduced by 25 per cent. The new quota proviso can to encourage emigration from the British Isles will be continued including the two assisted passages

Representatives of the Canadian Pacific Railway and steamships, the Canadian National, the Dominion Express Company and several ocean shipping companies recently spent a day in conference with Hon. Robert Forke, and officials of the Immigration Department, laying plans for next year's movement. Although the transportation companies had hoped for greater scope in bringing out farm laborers, the decision of the minister seemed to have been fairly acceptable

A year ago in order to reduce the influx of immigrants from Central Europe the number of farm laborers which were allowed from non-preferred countries was limited to one-third the previous year's total This resulted in 10,000 less entering Canada. While the restriction was even greater than this year, the requirement that the movement be completed by May 31 will not be being continued. And there is also more latitude in the case of those who have relatives or countrymen here willing to assist them in getting located on the land.

At the conclusion of the conference the following statement was issued by the department

It was agreed that British immigration will continue to receive every possible encouragement A renewal of the existing passage agreement for certain classes of British migrants, which expires at the end of the present calendar year, has been recommended. These classes include families for land settlement, housecworkers, and juvenile immigrants moved under provincial government or recognized societies auspices.

No Canadian Race

Bureau of Statistics Accepts "Nationality—Canadian"

Ottawa. There is a Canadian nationality but no Canadian race, and any government form filled with nationality as "Canadian" is accepted it was learned at the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Complaint was made in Toronto of a father who three times entered his child as Canadian and the form was rejected. Ottawa being blamed. It is pointed out here that the vital statistics forms are made to the provincial authorities and not to Ottawa.

If the form was returned because the box for baby was left blank instead it must have been returned by the provincial authorities. The Bureau of Statistics accepts "Nationality—Canadian," but also seeks racial origin, which has nothing to do with nationality.

Exhibiting Canadian Pictures

Ottawa. Four pictures from the National Gallery of Canada will be sent to London shortly as the Dominion's contribution to the exhibition of Italian art, which will be held at the Royal Academy early next year The exhibition to be one of the most comprehensive ever held embracing Italian art from the 12th century to the present day

Two thousand dollars in the notes and loss sustained by Karel Sevak of Angle Lake through the granary being set on fire a night or two ago The granary contained one thousand bushels of oats, a quantity of flax seed and other farm implements.

The fire is alleged to have been set by an incendiary. Mr. Sevak was approaching the premises on horseback and Mrs Sevak who was watching from the house saw a man light a match along side and run to the granary, lighting the match with which he fired the building as he raced for the building

She gave chase but he jumped on his horse and rode away

Beatty O.K's Clandonald Settlement

Vermilion District Is Visited by C. P. R. Officials

Considerable interest was taken in the Clandonald Settlement, and the Benedictine Convent, erected to serve the educational and hospital needs of this district, by E. W. Beatty, K.C., and other directors of the Canadian Pacific Railway during their inspection of the Willingdon line.

The party was welcomed to the colony by Father Andrew McDonnell, O.S.B., M.C., managing director of the Scottish Immigrant Aid Society, under whose auspices the colony is operated

A visit to the Benedictine convent was first undertaken, the president and other members of the party expressing surprise at the advanced manner of the undertaking and commending the society on the splendid building and educational and hospital facilities provided for the colony.

Commenting on the convent, Mr. Beatty said it was a masterpiece of construction. "Not a foot of space has been wasted, and it would appear that everything possible for the comfort of the pupils of the convent has been taken care of."

Satisfaction at the progress made by the settlers in the colony was also expressed by the members of the party, who were greatly impressed with the scheme

The convent is operated by the sisters of the Holy Benedictine order, the most highly educated of all the Catholic teaching organizations, has three storey concrete construction; they rooms and dining rooms, and has two rooms set aside as hospital wards in case of emergency cases arising in the district. Three of the nuns, as well as being highly qualified teachers are also Trade-Union.

The plan of settlement carried through in the Clandonald colony met with the entire approval of the party, the opinion being expressed that "It was a plan which allowed for the constant supervision of the settlers, and was one that was really constructive."

Work on the extension of the town of Clandonald is progressing rapidly, a number of new houses and stores being built, while the new C.P.R. station has just been completed.

PROGRESS OF SPEED

Speed records made in the Schneider cup air races are a good index to the development of flying with breathless rapidity. Here are the records of the 10 races in which this cup has been contested (the 1914 race was abandoned):

1913	France	44.7
1914	Belgium	86.8

The Singing Fool

by HUBERT BAIL

Copyright, 1928, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

SYNOPSIS

Al Stone, singing waiter at Shanghai Joe's New York night club wins fame on Broadway and a considerable amount of popular songs. He marries Molly Winslow, a ballet dancer, and makes her famous, too. Molly and Al have a baby, Junior, whom Al adores. Molly becomes romantically interested in John Perry, Al's close friend, and Perry begs her to leave Al. On the third anniversary of his marriage Al takes Molly home from the Club Bombo, where he is part owner. She is secretly her conscience bothers her because of her interview with Perry. This is intensified when Al goes to the nursery and she sees how ardently he loves Junior. Al, in high spirits, tells Molly he doesn't love him any more. Al recalls, Molly hears Junior calling her.

CHAPTER XI

Junior had awakened to find that his toy, his woolly dog, had dropped out of bed. So he was calling to Molly to come and get it for him. As his high childish voice carried through the rooms to Molly and Al they gave a start. The expression on Al's face softened in an instant. Molly's anguish was the same as she brushed by Al to look after Junior.

Al turned, looking after her retreating figure, still in a daze from her harsh words. He had lost her love, she actually said so herself! Her words and the heart-breaking scene he had just passed through aroused fantastic and unreal to him. What had he done to deserve her indifference and her scorn?

Then, like a man in a dream, he followed her toward the nursery. Standing in the doorway, he saw her pick up Junior's woolly dog from the floor, replace it in the child's arms, and carefully tuck him in.

"Oh to sleep, now, Junior. Then Mamma can sleep too."

How strangely contrasting was that soothing voice to the tone Molly had used in addressing Al! And how kind the expression on Molly's profile as she bent over Junior! Surely this was not the end, thought Al. He suddenly determined that he would not let their life together be ruined in this within; he would fight to reawaken Molly's love!

As Molly came toward him he raised his hand with an apologetic gesture. "Darling, can't we talk this out? If I've done anything tell me!"

"No- no more talk!" Molly passed him, entering the living room. He heard her door close with a snap of finality.

But now Junior was sitting up, holding out his arms to his father. "Daddy, please sing me to sleep."

Al came forward quickly, picking up Junior, holding him close as if to drive away the misery which had inflicted him. Here, at any rate, was someone who loved him, trusted him, and always greeted him with the same adoring, happy smile. For a moment Al choked up and couldn't speak. Then he said hastily.

"What do you want me to sing, baby?"

"You know," whispered Junior confidingly, "that one about a little boy like me."

"Little Feller?"

"Yes, that one."

Slowly Al began to sing, rocking Junior gently to and fro. There was only an audience of one to hear —and that a very sleepy audience— but the tenderness and appeal of Al's words had not been matched since that night three years ago when he had sung the love ballad "Always," to touch Molly's heart. As the song continued Junior's head drooped in drowsiness and presently his eyes closed. When Al knew that he was really asleep the rhythmic words trailed off into a whisper and silence. Then, pressing the little form close to him for a last goodnight hug, he put his son back in the bed.

Once more the Up-toning from the room. Then Al stopped and gazed wonderingly at Molly's closed door. She was still up; in the semi-darkness of the hallway he could see a faint narrow line of light under the door.

Perhaps she was already repenting of her quick, unkind words — possibly passionately he wished that could be true! Her pride wouldn't let her make up to him now, but, perhaps in the morning.

Until the long black hours of the night faded into the gray dawn Al sat up in his bed and stared at the lights of the city, smoking one cigarette after another, wondering, hoping, planning.

In the morning Molly's manner was still cold, but her whip-lash tongue was silent. She avoided looking his eyes and when she spoke it was about necessary things concerning Junior or the household Al watched her, hoping to detect a softening glint in those icy blue eyes, but there was no sign of relenting. Finally he left the apartment for his work.

All through the day and evening Molly kept up an actual sharp pain in Al's heart as if a knife had been driven swiftly into him and withdrawn. But he went about his work the same as usual, trying to forget the scene of the night before. When he saw Molly after her performance that evening he thought she was in better humor. She was gay, chatty, by say means, but she made some attempt to treat him courteously. His heart gave a bound! Perhaps he had, he told himself, this mood of hers would wear off and she would be her own lovely self again. And Perry together would not be smashed, after all.

So the days passed, until March. Then, one night, during the last act, Al's attention was suddenly attracted by a commotion in the audience. Several men were standing up, craning their necks, and a woman's voice was screaming hysterically. Al's own heart began to pound with a sickening fear. Junior! Junior was sick, and Molly was not there! Without waiting to finish the song he was singing, he turned and ran off the stage.

Al's fears were realized. Junior was sick, very sick, and Molly was not there! Without waiting to finish the song he was singing, he turned and ran off the stage.

Al's fears were realized. Junior was sick, very sick, and Molly was not there!

Says Vancouver Best Outlet

Holding In Way Of Branch Lines For Peace River District Declares Beatty

"When rail connection is established between the Peace River District and the Pacific coast, it would appear that Vancouver would be the logical point for the outlet on the coast," declared E. W. Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who returned to Vancouver Wednesday from Victoria.

Mr. Beatty was non-committal as to when and how rail connection between the coast and the Peace River area should be made. He suggested that coast connection would be the natural consequence of developments in the Peace area, and intimated that it might not be advisable to undertake the great expenditure until the period had arrived when no mistake could be made.

Regarding the Pacific Great Eastern Railway situation, Mr. Beatty said that it would be time enough to discuss that matter when the survey now under way by the provincial government, the Canadian Pacific, and the Canadian National has been completed, and that the directors of this road, jointly owned by the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian National will likely have some announcement to make at the end of the year.

Answering a direct question as to whether there is any obstacle in the way of a branch of this road being run into British Columbia block of the Peace River area in order to give relief to farmers now located from 80 to 100 miles from the railroad at Hythe, he said that he saw no reason why it could not be done

Strange Aerial Cargoes

Airplanes Are Now Used To Carry Every Kind Of Shipment

Fifty tons of milk are being carried every week by aeroplane between London and the Continent, says a Tit-Bits writer.

Recently a consignment of seahorses for the Zoo arrived by aeroplane at Croydon. Great care was lavished on these fantastic creatures, half horse and half dragon, which were caught in the Bay of Biscay, and throughout the flight air was pumped into their tanks at ten-minute intervals.

Delicate goldfish are often transported in this manner, but the most valuable fish cargo by air was a number of very rare, unknown land specimens from the East Indies, some of which were valued at $150 each.

A barrel cage was recently built inside the fuselage an aeroplane which left Croydon for La Bourget, where it picked up a fully grown lion, complete with trainer, and brought them back at over 100 miles an hour.

Another special compartment was fitted in an aeroplane to accommodate a performing circus horse from Paris to London, while an air-freighter arrived recently from Amsterdam with a bear, a monkey and a consignment of parrots.

Twenty years ago it would have been impossible to build a road to the site of the new observatory on Mont Blanc. The aeroplane has made it possible to convey the stones and materials to a height of over 13,000 feet on mountain mules; but when the road is completed it will be one of the most expensive in the world.

It seems strange that milk, easily obtainable in all great cities, should be carried by air, but mountain-climbing hens were once regularly carried from Croydon to Paris, and these contained two gallons of milk in glass bottles, packed in ice.

The American visitors to whom the boxes were addressed had been impressed with the purity of English milk that they cheerfully paid 4s a pint to have it delivered to them in Paris!

World Change Denomination

A party of clergymen were attending a Presbyterian conference in Scotland Several of them set off to explore the country.

Presently they came to a river spanned by a temporary bridge. Not observing a notice that the bridge was unsafe, they started to cross it. The bridge-keeper ran after them in protest

"It's all right," declared the spokesman, not understanding the reason for the old man's haste; "we're Presbyterians from the Conference."

"I'm no' carin' about that," was the reply, "but if ye dinna get off the bridge ye'll all be Baptists!"
